Oakland Parking Meter Fines Get World Recognition

"The town of Oakland has finally gotten some recognition," said Mayor H.D. Swartzentruber on Tuesday.

The mayor was referring to the coverage in several news sources of Oakland's parking meter violation fine of only 50 cents.

Swartzentruber said he got a call from a radio station in Melbourne, Australia, on Sunday night. He consented to an interview, which was aired in Australia Monday morning.

The article read as follows: Oakland, Md. (AP)—This western Maryland town has found a way to maximize its revenue from parking meters, the mayor says. It keeps the fine for an expired meter down to a minimum.

Because the fine is only 50 cents, folks are more tempted to let the time on the meter run out or not pay at all, and that means more money from parking tickets, said Mayor H.D. Swartzentruber.

"They will take chances on 50 cents, but if you put your fine up to $2, they will put in a nickel," said Swartzentruber.

Oakland Police Chief John K. Sines said motorists pump about $12,000 annually into the 128 parking meters in this town of 1,500 people. Fines for meter violations bring several thousand more dollars into the town's coffers.

Swartzentruber, 85, said the meter violation fine went up to 50 cents a few years back. Before that, it was a quarter.

"I had a nice conversation with the lady after we were off the air," said the mayor. "She said she would send me a tape of the interview, and wants me to send her one of our parking tickets so they can see it," he continued.

Swartzentruber also said that Paul Long, of television station WTAE, Pittsburgh, commented on the parking ticket prices after the news one evening. He ended the statement by saying that the mayor was "his kind of man."

The mayor said, "To me, this is almost like a Ripley's Believe It Or Not. We've had this type of meter for over 30 years, and all at once, we have world-wide recognition."

An article from Associated Press has appeared in various publications, including the Washington Star and the New York Times.

Robert Truban, who is stationed with the U.S. Army in Seoul, Korea, sent his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Toby Truban, Oakland, a clipping of the article as it appeared in The Pacific Stars and Stripes.

"YOU'RE SO BRAVE, MOM," are probably the thoughts of Jason and Bobbie Keefalver as they lend their moral support to their mother, Rhea, as she prepares to give blood. She is one of the many blood donors who visited the American Red Cross Bloodmobile Monday at the Grantsville fire hall. On the right is a representative of the Johnstown Red Cross Region. Lela H. Bender, Grantsville Blood Donor Program Chairman, reported that Monday's quota was 140 pints. That quota was met with one pint to spare - a pint of blood that just may save a blood recpient's life in the future.

Garrett County's Serious Crime Drops 24 Percent

Serious crime in Maryland increased by three percent during the first six months of 1985 when compared to the same period of time last year, according to statistics released this week by the Maryland State Police.

Those same statistics, however, reveal that Garrett County led the state's 23 counties and Baltimore County in a decrease of serious crime during that same period, as the local rate dropped 24 percent.

The next largest decrease for the six-month period was in Carroll County, where the rate dropped 16 percent, followed by Allegany County with an 11 percent drop.

A total of 227 cases of serious crime were recorded in Garrett County during the first six months of this year, compared to 227 this year, the lowest figure in the state.

Specific crimes showing decreases in Garrett County were: larceny/theft, from 161 cases in the first six months of 1984 to 119 in 1985; breaking or entering, 107 to 92; and aggravated assault, from 23 to five cases. Crimes which showed an increase were: arson, from two cases to nine; forcible rape, from no cases to two; and robbery, from no cases to one. The number of cases of motor vehicle theft remained the same, with eight cases each six-month period. There were no murders reported in either period.

Statewide, the violent crimes

A FIGHT FOR SURVIVAL — "It's terrible that a club like the Sierra Club has the power to control government agencies and harass us like this." This was one of the comments made by Ken Buckel, director and manager of Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation, when he spoke before the combined membership of the Garrett and the Allegany Farm Bureau last Thursday evening at the Bittinger Fire Hall. He was referring to the fight his company, which harvests peat moss near Bittinger, is having with the Sierra Club, the EPA, and the DNR, to continue to operate their business on their own property. During his talk, he made an appeal to Farm Bureau members and concerned citizens to write letters to the agencies involved supporting the company's application for required permits and supporting their right to make a living on property they own and care about. See story on page 29.

Garrett County "Number One In The Sun"

As the result of a single advertisement in the August 18, 1985, edition of the Baltimore Sun's Sunday Sun Magazine Vacation Source, Garrett County had the distinction of having the most responses for requests for information, according to Diane Wolfe, executive director of the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

Sixty-one vacation sources advertised in this issue of the Sun, and Garrett County received a total of 951 requests. Jamaica, Hawaii, and Pennsylvania's Brandywine Valley were the nearest runners-up in the nunmber of responses received.

"These responses indicate that Garrett County is extremely popular as a Maryland travel destination," Mrs. Wolfe stated.

In 1984, U.S. travelers spent over $3.8 billion in Maryland, an increase of 11.3% more than 1983. Of that amount, Garrett County's total travel expenditures were in excess of $38 million, and the number of travel-generated jobs for that year were 1,012 in the County. These figures place Garrett County 12th among Maryland counties for tourism revenue.

Women's Refuge Seeks Volunteers For "Helpline"

Caring individuals are needed as volunteers to provide support services to victims of domestic violence, rape and sexual assault, reports Carolyn Grahame, director of Women's Refuge, Inc., a Cumberland–based agency which aids these victims in Allegany and Garrett counties.

The agency is seeking volunteers to help establish a 24-hour "helpline" in Garrett County, Grahame explained.

"We see our volunteers as the extension of our staff," said Grahame. "They are vital to the success of our program."

Volunteers in Garrett County will work with Joyce Hartig and Beverly Sincell, who are counselors stationed in Women's Refuge satellite office in Oakland. This office, located at 316 Oak Street in St. Paul's United Methodist Church, is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m.

A training program for volunteers will be provided through the continuing education division of Garrett Community College and will be arranged at a time most convenient for the majority of persons interested in becoming a volunteer, Grahame noted.

Trained volunteers take an active role in Women's Refuge by serving on the helpline at specified times from their homes. Anonymity of volunteers is protected from callers as much as possible.

The training is designed to increase awareness and understanding of domestic violence and sexual assault, enable participants to relate to victims in a helpful, caring way, discuss what medical and legal options are available for victims of abuse and discuss community resources which may be helpful to victims.

Women's Refuge has provided services to victims of domestic violence, rape and sexual assault and to their family members since January 1978. Services include a 24-hour helpline, a temporary emergency shelter, a speakers bureau, crisis intervention, information and referral to proper resources, supportive counseling, and accompaniment to medical treatment, law enforcement agencies and appointments with the judicial system. Grahame pointed out speakers are available to talk with groups in Garrett County.

For further information, persons should call Women's Refuge, Inc. Oakland office at 334-9701.

Turney Finds Butler Guilty Of Drug Charge

Chad R. Butler, 19, Accident, was found guilty of unlawful possession of marijuana by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Jack Turney on September 17.

Butler was fined $100 and sentenced to 89 days in the Garrett County Jail. The judge then suspended the sentence, placing him on 12 months unsupervised probation.

Butler was charged by Tfc. R.J. Resh of the Maryland State Police following an April 22 incident in Accident. According to court records, two bags containing marijuana and a bong pipe containing marijuana residue were found by Butler's stepmother in his bedroom.

In another court case, the judge ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Brenda K. Emerick, 24, Grantsville after finding her guilty of a theft charge filed by Cpl. M.R. Mattingly.

According to court files, Emerick supplied false information to the Security of American Life Insurance Co., Reading, Pa., regarding a disabling illness she was allegedly suffering.

During the time period from September 27, 1984 to May 20, 1985, the company made payments to the First United National Bank, Grantsville, for a 1978 Ford Bronco that Emerick was financing through the establishment. The total sum of the payments made reached $1,633.35. Emerick was ordered to make restitution for these payments.

She was represented by Michael Morissette, Oakland.

A battery charge filed by Gladys M. Pifer, Oakland, against Robert R. McRobie, 36, also of Oakland, was placed on the stet docket. McRobie was represented by Henry R. Adams, J.D., public defender.

Also placed on the stet docket was a charge of assault against Mark R. Shrout, 23, Oakland. The charge was filed by Annie M. T. Shrout following a July 21 incident. Shrout was represented by John Toston.

In court proceedings last Thursday, theft charges against a Deer Park woman and two Deer Park men were placed on the stet docket.

Rebecca R. Sines, 19, Alien A. Upole, 28, and Michael W. Upole, 25, were charged by Tfc. G.R. Chaney following an April 17 incident.

According to court documents, Sines and the two men stole from 10 to 20 bags of clothing, the property of Union Rescue Mission of Western Maryland, Inc., from a box in the Browning's Foodland Parking Lot.

Sines and Allen Upole were represented by Michael Morrissetts, Oakland, while Michael Upole was represented by Leo Wm. Dunn, Jr., Beltsville.

Oakland Attorney Receives Critical Court Ruling

In disciplinary proceedings against David N. Shaffer, an Oakland attorney, on September 20, Associate Judge J. Frederick Sharer ruled that the ultimate sanction of disbarment was inappropriate. The Attorney Grievance Commission of Maryland had filed a petition for disciplinary action against Shaffer last May 20, alleging that he had violated three main areas of the Code of Professional Responsibility, citing that he was charged with three motor vehicle violations and three separate bad check violations.

Also noted in the petition was the attorney's court-ordered removal as guardian of the property of Agnes Schlossnagel, and his alleged incompetence in defending John M. Miller in a rape case in 1979.

Judge Sharer stated in his summary that he found "by clear and convincing evidence" that Shaffer had violated disciplinary rules because of the motor vehicle and bad check cases, the Schlossnagel and Miller matters, and his "failure to withdraw from matters he was handling while in an impaired condition."

The ruling concludes by recommending that counseling concerning the respondent's personal problems and some limited supervision of his professional practice be attached as conditions to such sanctions as may be imposed.

The judge found that the Oakland attorney's convictions on three alcohol-related motor vehicle offenses within two and one-half years "is conduct which may tend to lessen public confidence in the legal profession, adversely reflects upon his fitness to practice and is prejudicial to the administration of justice" and violated two corresponding disciplinary rules.

Judge Sharer said Shaffer offered evidence of mitigation in that the bad check cases involved only his own personal account and funds and not those of professional accounts or clients' funds, and that "the overdrafts were the result of social, rather than professional, misconduct."

The bad check violations therefore do not constitute either fraud or moral turpitude, the ruling said.

Judge Fred Thayer of Oakland appointed Shaffer as guardian of the Schlossnagel property on June 6, 1983, and Shaffer was discharged by court order May 14, 1985, for having failed to perform the obligations of his office.

In the matter of alleged incompetence in defending Miller, Judge Sharer says the court remains satisfied that the inadequacy of Shaffer's defense of Miller resulted solely from inexperience and not from any physical or mental incapacity, and that Shaffer should have known that he was not sufficiently competent to undertake such a case as his first Circuit Court case.

According to the judge, Shaffer violated the disciplinary rule stating that a lawyer shall not handle a legal matter which he knows or should know he is not competent to handle, without associating with him a lawyer who is competent to handle it.

The judge revealed that during the time of the motor vehicle and bad check charges, Shaffer was using alcohol to excess and added that he had admitted himself to the Preston Memorial Hospital's Alcoholic Treatment Service, where he was diagnosed as being an alcoholic and treated for 30 days.

The ruling noted as mitigating factors the attorney's contrition, an otherwise unblemished record, and the absence of any aggravating circumstances and the absence of personal gain, and noted that Shaffer has since limited his practice to matters he feels competent to handle.

Shaffer earned his law degree at the University of Maryland and has practiced in Oakland since 1978.

Arson Offenses Rise In First Half Of 1985

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele recently announced the arson statistics for the first six months of 1985 for the State of Maryland.

The statistical data compiled by the Maryland Uniform Crime Reporting Program for the State Fire Marshal's Office, based on information from law enforcement agencies throughout the State of Maryland, indicates that arson offenses rose approximately 18 percent for the first half of 1985 as compared with this same period in 1984. In the first six months of 1984, 1,343 arsons were reported as compared to 1,586 during this time in 1985.

According to the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, the Washington Metropolitan Region had the most significant rise in reported arson cases during this first half of 1985, at 35 percent. Montgomery County records indicated that highest increase in arson, from 232 reported cases in the first half of 1984, to 354 such incidents for the first six months of 1985. Prince George's County had an increase of only one arson case, logging 119 for the first half of 1985 as compared with 118 reported cases for the first half of 1984.

The Western Region of the state including Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, and Carroll Counties had the second highest increase, and only slightly behind the Washington Metropolitan Region in arson offenses, with a 34 percent increase in 1985 over 1984.

The Eastern Shore Region, which includes Caroline, Cecil, Dorcheser, Kent, Queen Anne's, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worceser Counties also showed an increase in arson during the first half of 1985. Arson offenses jumped 7 percent, from 75 reported cases in 1984 to 80 in 1985.

The sharpest decline in arson occurred in Southern Maryland, in the counites of Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's. This area of the state experienced an eight percent drop in arson offenses, falling from 38 in 1984 to 35 this year.

The Baltimore Metropolitan Region of Baltimore City, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford, and Howard Counties was the next lowest area of the state, with a reduction in arson offenes of one percent. The Baltimore Metropolitan Region showed a decrease from 704 arson offenses in 1984 to 698 in 1985.

Approximately $10,000,000 in property was destroyed and 17 lives lost as the result of arson in the State of Maryland during 1984.

The Committee also elected Dr. Martha T. Schipper, Frederick County Health Officer, Co-Chairman. Dr. Miles noted that the PDC will review the Draft Rehabilitation Services plan section and the Acute Psychiatric Bed Methodology at its next meeting.

Horace W. Murphy, Review, Evaluation & Implementation Committee chairman, reported that the Committee reviewed the regulations concerning streamlining the Certificate of Need process and elected Joseph P. Montana, Allegany County consumer, as co-chairman of the committee.

An award was presented to Ms. Ruth A. White, Frederick County, outgoing recorder, for two years of faithful service to the Governing Body.

Kery C. Hummel, executive director, announced that a public hearing will be held on Thursday, October 3, 7 p.m., at the Lane Center of Frostburg State College concerning the newly-released Hospital Capacity Plan.

Hummel further announced that an intensive one and one-half day conference for all health and mental health professionals who interface with Alzheimer's patients and their families will be held at the Timonium Plaza Holiday Inn, Baltimore, on October 28 and 29, sponsored by the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association Baltimore/Central Maryland Chapter.

An orientation session was conducted with Edward Pigo, associate director of the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission, and F. Perry Smith, Jr., Western Maryland's representative to the MHRPC as speakers. Both touched briefly on the Hospital Capacity Plan and its effect on Western Maryland. Smith stated that the Western Maryland HSA is a leader among HSA's in the State of Maryland and expressed a desire that it remain in that light.

A short question and answer period was conducted by each speaker.

Cuppett announced that the next Governing Body meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 16, 1 p.m., at the Silver Tree Inn, Deep Creek Lake.

Those members from Garrett County present were Lawrence M. Beck, James E. Cuppett, Carolyn J. Ganoe, John S. Parker, and M. Virginia Rosenbaum.

Potomac Edison Files Increased Rate Schedules

The Potomac Edison Company has filed new rate schedules in accordance with the Maryland Public Service Commission's approval of a $6.2 million base rate increase.

The PSC order granting the base rate increase for PE's Maryland customers was issued September 9 and new rates are effective as of that date.

PE officials said residential customers in Maryland will notice a "slight difference" in their electric bills depending on whether they heat with electricity.

Non-heating customers who use approximately 750 kilowatt hours a month will see an increase of $1.00 on their monthly bills, or 2.22 percent. Their bills will rise from $45.06 to $46.06 under the new rates. The cost of a kilowatt hour for customers using 750 kwh a month will go from 6.01 cents to 6.14 cents.

Bills for heating customers on the electric heating rate using 2000 kilowatt hours a month will rise by $3.43 or 3.09 percent. Currently, those customers pay $110.87 and their bills will increase to $114.30. Cost per kilowatt hour for users of 2000 kwh a month will increase slightly from 5.54 cents to 5.72 cents.

Goldstein's Office Seeks Owners Of Unclaimed Funds

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says the reader of this article may be one of 7,680 people who are due uncollected insurance benefits, banks accounts or even the unclaimed contents of a safe deposit box. "We're trying to reach these individuals through newspaper ads which will be appearing throughout Maryland over the next two weeks," Goldstein said.

The Republican will publish the ads the weeks of September 30 and October 7, 1985.

The Comptroller noted that approximately $2.5 million in insurance benefits and bank accounts is waiting to be claimed by the individuals being sought or their legitimate heirs. "The unclaimed insurance benefits generally result from matured endowment policies taken out on children while they were young," he said. "Sometimes, the payments are not kept up, but the policy still has a cash value that may be claimed."

Goldstein also noted that his office is seeking the apparent owners of unclaimed bank accounts, such as checking or savings accounts where there has been no activity for five years.

Financial institutions and insurance companies are required to report these items to the State Comptroller's Office if they remain unclaimed for five years. "We advertise the names of the apparent rightful owners in the county of last known address," Goldstein said. "However, Maryland's law is custodial, meaning that there is no time limit under which the property or its monetary; equivalent may be claimed."

The comptroller also noted that his office is sending notices by mail to those individuals for whom an address is available.

THE CONVINCER, a machine that convinces its occupants that seat belts are a life-saving device, will be at the Southern Rescue Squad Hall, Oakland, on Monday evening for the benefit of the general public. The demonstration/display is part of the activities of Emergency Medical Services Week next week, which was proclaimed by Governor Harry Hughes. "The Best Care Anywhere" is the theme for the observance, designed to raise citizen awareness about the prevention and proper treatment of medical emergencies. Persons are invited to visit the Southern squad hall on Monday, beginning at 5 p.m., and "be convinced" about the value of seat belts. The Convincer will then be used by driver education classes at both county high schools later in the week.

Brenda McCartney Receives Doctorate

Brenda E. McCartney, Kitzmiller Elementary School principal and teacher-consultant for the Maryland Writing Project, was recently awarded a doctorate of education by the faculty of the University of Maryland, College of Education.

McCartney's dissertation was entitled "A Description of Student Response Groups in the Writing Process of Remedial Middle School Students."

She received a bachelor of arts degree from Fairmont State College in 1971, and a master of education degree from Frostburg State College in 1980.

McCartney taught elementary school in West Virginia from 1971 to 1977. From 1977 to 1983, she taught language arts/reading at Southern Middle School. During that time, she also served as Curriculum Coordinating Teacher for Garrett County Middle Schools for three years.

In 1983, she was named principal of Kitzmiller Elementary, and since 1982 she has been a teacher-consultant for the Maryland Writing Project, based in Towson. As a teacher-consultant she has provided in-service on strategies for implementing the writing process for educators in Garrett and Allegany Counties.

McCartney is currently serving as secretary for the Tri-State Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa.

On October 4, she will be speaking at the Maryland Reading Institute's Conference in Ocean City. Her topic will be "Maryland and the Bay Writing Project." She will speak about the National Writing Project and the Maryland Writing Project, and will also share her findings from the study she conducted for her dissertation.

McCartney resides with her husband, Sull, on North Second Street, Oakland.

Let's Write . . .

Most of us don't take the time to write letters, even for worthy causes. Therefore, we thought we would write a letter expressing our feelings about an important local issue and those persons who agree with our opinions on the matter may simply sign the letter, clip it out of the paper, and send it to one or more of the persons whose names and addresses are located on page 34 of this newspaper. The issue at stake involves not only the survival of a local, private company, but more importantly, the protection of our rights as citizens of this nation.

Dear Sir:

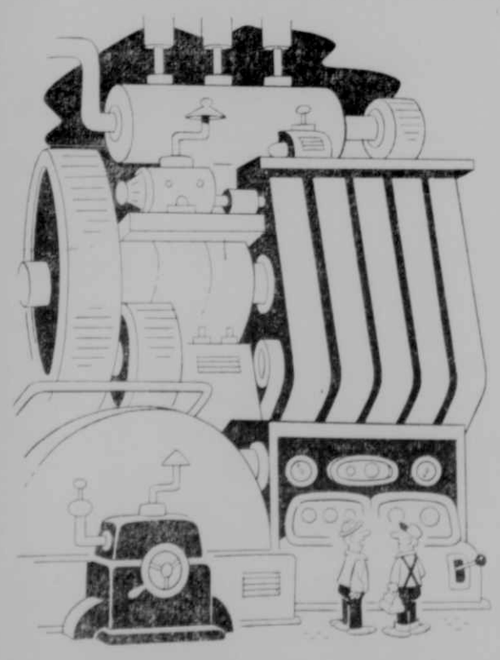
We, the residents of Garrett County, are outraged because of the harassment being experienced by a local, private company and perpetuated by the Sierra Club. Also at fault, we believe, are the state and federal governments which have allowed this large, wealthy organization to influence, manipulate, and control certain governmental agencies, such as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, to bring about its desired results.

We refer to the Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation, a company which has harvested peat in the county for over 20 years. Although this company has harvested the peat on its own property, it has reclaimed the harvested areas in a way that preserves the vegetation of the region, and its operation shows absolutely no evidence of pollution of the land and water, within the past two years it has been deluged with new, arbitrary, and unreasonable regulation which has seriously jeopardized the survival of the company. Indeed, the company owners are at the point of "throwing in the towel" because they cannot afford to compete against such a wealthy, powerful national organization as the Sierra Club.

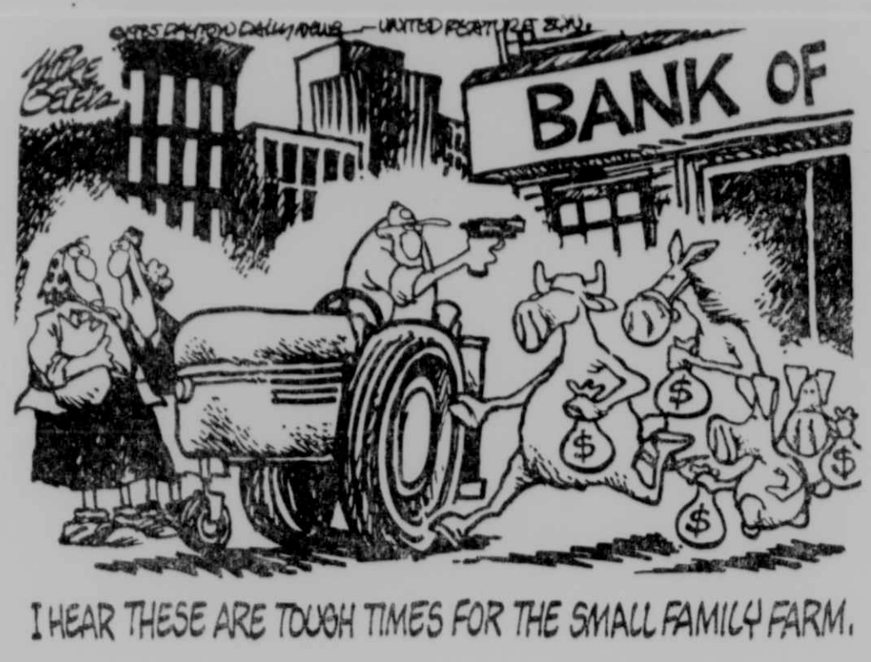
One of the basic principles upon which our nation was founded was laissez faire, whereby government is not allowed to interfere with the free enterprise system. This has become a farce, however, as government has repeatedly invaded and interfered with the operation of free enterprise.

We recognize that the Sierra Club has made significant contributions in the quest for protection of the environment. We, too, believe strongly that the environment must be protected. Ironically, the owners of the peat company are great proponents of environmental protection; in fact, some are even educated and employed in such capacities.

We do not believe that the peat operation is harming the environment. Water and soil tests prove this point. While the peat bog may be considered a "valuable natural habitat", there are dozens of similar acres of bogs in the same vicinity which could be preserved. Yet, the Sierra Club is interested only in this particular bog from which the company is harvesting peat. We fail to understand why the Sierra Club does not purchase and protect any one of these other sites. It seems that this has become a vengeful crusade against this relatively small company by Sierra Club officials who care nothing about Garrett County, its people, and its economy.



You may or may not know that our county historically has a high unemployment rate and, because of a small population, little industry, and state ownership of vast quantities of land inside the county, our tax base is small. We pay one of the highest county tax rates in the state, despite the frugal efforts of our county commissioners to lower the rate. While the peat company provides employment for a relatively small number of our citizens, it brings into the county a significant sum of money from peat sales which will be lost forever if they are forced to shut down.



It is downright terrifying to us that, in this great nation, the strength and influence of certain nonprofit organizations are really in control of our own government and can get their way even if it means walking all over innocent, private citizens by taking away their rights. You, sir, are in a position to do something about this abuse and harassment. You can be a hero, by standing up for the rights of the people, or you can be a coward, by buckling under the pressure being applied by this enormous, wealthy organization.

It was the heroes, who stood up for the rights of the people against the power of another government, who spawned the United States of America. It will take more heroes to preserve these rights against similar forms of tyranny.

Sincerely,

Address _____

To the Editor:

I was indeed disappointed to read in your last issue that the Choral Society will not be able to go ahead with their plans for the production of "Hello Dolly." I was involved in Publicity for their first production of "Oliver" and found their ensuing productions of "Fiddler on the Roof" and "South Pacific" highly professional, as would be expected from professional direction received from Nancy Learey and Jane Avery, among others. I can fully appreciate, however, their decision to cancel the plans if it were not possible to amass the talent to achieve the excellence of their previous performances.

I am in total agreement with the comment "This tells us (or someone) that there is definitely a need to be filled for our youth in Garrett County." A statement in reference to the many young persons who aspired to do the show. This statement, however, reverberates—like an echo in my head—because it seems to me it has been said before—many, many times—verbally and in your columns—by me, Frances Acton, in my capacity as former president of the Garrett County Arts Council, and in my present capacity as Producer of ACT IV Dinner Theatre. Which causes me to ask "Is Anybody listening?"

I have said it before and I will scream until I'm heard. We need to work together. all of us who have the talent for leading in these endeavors—on both sides of the bridges can work together to put on a season—from May to October of high quality performances—musicals included. There has been a small but highly dedicated group of individuals who have made great personal sacrifices over the past four years to bring a different kind of theatre to this area—and we have received accolades from far and wide—mostly far and wide—since our local following is sparse. ACT IV has a working nucleus of actors and highly experienced technical leadership. We also have the necessary light and sound equipment. We also have ready-made audiences in the form of tour groups. We would be most happy to work with the other talented and like-minded persons. I believe there is enough praise and glory to go around.

This letter may irritate some people. I hope it does. An oyster has to be irritated to make a pearl, you know. So hate me or love me, boo or applaud, be hostile or helpful—but don't be complacent. We can do great things—together.

Sincerely,
Frances Acton

P.S.

Those of you who supported the Playhouse for 30 years can stand up and be counted also.

To the Editor:

The American Indian Inter-Tribal Cultural Organization would like to extend to you our sincere thanks for the wonderful coverage The Republican gave our recent Pow Wow at the Garrett County Fairgrounds and for the personal help of Bernice Kepple, one of your reporters. Only through the efforts of local residents, such as Ms. Kepple, could the Pow Wow have been such a success. We heard over and over from the dancers and singers how welcome they had been made to feel by the Garrett County people they met. We, too, were warmed by the friendliness of the area.

We look forward to seeing you next year.

Sincerely yours,
Dick Baker
President

To the Editor:

My wife and I, along with other parents and spectators, attended the 4-H and FFA Livestock Auction at the Garrett County Fairgrounds on 8/17/85. I would like to thank each and every buyer who purchased animals from these fine young men and women. Their support is what makes it all worth the while for these kids.

We, as Garrett Countians, should take a moment and think about the fact that less than five percent of our young people will become farmers; and they will be putting the meat and milk products in the stores in which we shop each week hoping to get the best quality products.

Attending the sale, and watching many of our hopefully future farmers walking out of the auction ring shaking their heads because they did not get the price they knew they should have gotten for their product, made me stop and think. Many of the producers could have taken their animals to the local stock yards and received about the same price and made a profit. But these farmers have taken special time and effort to show their animals hoping to make extra profit. I hope that more people will participate in these auctions and bid on these animals, not only for the profit the young farmers will receive, but for the good of the whole community. I hope these young farmers won't give up.

P.S.

Thanks again to the buyers and to the auctioneers, Joe Friend and Bob Custer.

To the Editor:

As staff coordinators of the Maryland Farm Queen contest, we are disturbed by your September editorial. We are sorry you felt a need to write such a scathing (and inaccurate) editorial.

This contest is sponsored by the Women's Committee of Maryland Farm Bureau, and coordinated by a volunteer committee with staff assistance. It is the culmination of much effort by volunteers in 23 counties. Your alarming accusations cast aspersion on the state committee, staff, judges and all county contests.

Our greatest concern is that you have "used" a very nice young person from your own county to blatantly indict many other individuals. We would like to answer some of your statements.

We question some comments which came from "the majority of the audience," "the organizers of the event," and "a contest official." With an audience of approximately 800, we wonder how anyone could interpret a reaction from "the majority?" Contest organizers and officials have absolutely no reason to effect the selection of any county queen. We have had queens and runners-up from counties just as distant as Garrett, and they represented the state very well. Distance or geography have no influence on the contest.

As to accusations of "politics, manipulation, game-playing and contest fixing," perhaps some facts are in order:

Contest judges are chosen from surrounding states, and usually are not familiar enough with Maryland's geography to make distance determinations. Contestants are judged solely on speaking ability, personality, farm and school activities, and appearance. The judges evaluate the girls during a closed-door interview and during the contest itself.

This year's judges were amazed at the consistent high quality of the contestants. They were forced to choose between 23 girls who, according to them, could each have done an excellent job as Queen.

In any competitive event there are winners and losers. We regret that you felt it necessary to print such damaging statements about an event involving so many young people and volunteers. A short phone call to the Maryland Farm Bureau office could have cleared up many misconceptions before they appeared in print.

Yours truly,
Bonnie Becker

To the Mayor and Town Council of Kitzmiller, via the Editor:

This is to advise you that I have submitted my application for hookup to the town of Kitzmiller's water system with the necessary tap fee; however, I do so with serious reservations concerning the appropriateness of the water line installation to my property and adjacent properties.

I formally reserve the right to withhold all future payments for service and to reject the service itself if known deficiencies are not properly corrected.

The most serious deficiency remains the passing of an unencased, copper, potable water line through a known, open sewage ditch. This installation is in violation of your own rules and regulations, and I'm sure, county and state laws.

I am submitting a copy of this letter to the county and state health officials for their review and recommendations; also to the local newspapers.

Compounding the above deficiency is the fact that the line in question does not have the required three feet of ground cover; unless someone is foolish enough to claim that raw sewage and its accompanying contaminates are appropriate cover.

The writer also witnessed the addition of a considerable quantity of limestone chips, placed around the unprotected copper water line. Due to the highly corrosive nature of copper in close proximity with lime, I have serious doubts, that others share, as to the future integrity of the totally unprotected copper water line. The galvanic action of ground water, lime and copper is well established and will cause penetration of the water line and contamination of the entire town water system with raw sewage in a relatively short period of time.

This is a serious matter that cannot be pushed aside as Wendell R. Beitzell, administrator of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission has obviously tried to do. His statement to me that the water pressure in the line will keep contaminates out of the system even if the line is penetrated is an example of the attitude and mentality that has frustrated me to this point, initiating the writing of this letter.

Be assured, I do not intend allowing this matter to be covered up. It is of vital concern not only to me and my family, but the community as a whole.

Resolutely yours,
James C. Brady

Our Turn

A Soapy Dilemma
by Susan Alvarez

Back in the good old days, the only choice a fellow had when bathtime rolled around was to grab the cake of homemade lye soap, heat a couple buckets of water and head for the washtub on Saturday night.

Alas, today's father has several options and thus has several momentous decisions to make before indulging; especially since modern bathing products have the power to do everything - from giving one "that country-fresh look" to very possibly giving one an Irish brogue.

There are soaps designed to appeal to the chef in us: oatmeal, herbal, cucumber, and milk soaps all profess to bestow peaches 'n cream complexions.

For the floral-minded, there are lavender, heather, lilac and rose soaps. Combining them must make one smell like a bouquet.

For the delicate, there are the non-irritating soaps. For the he-man, there are the rough, tough pumice soaps, usually found with a picture of a bulldozer on the wrapper.

There are soaps that squirt, flake, float, draw like crayons and hang on ropes. Beyond this, there are soaps that apparently contribute to one's popularity on the job or improve one's athletic abilities. Some even claim to save marriages.

My personal favorite, though, is the bathing product that says it will "take you away." After all, moms have known for years that one of the best places to hide is in the bathtub. I wouldn't have made a good pioneer. I would have only been allowed to hide on Saturday nights.

the center line, strike an embankment, and overturn. The vehicle then came back across the road, striking the guardrails on the left shoulder.

Loughrie and two passengers, Cheryl Kisner, 18, Aurora, and Gregory Cussins, 22, Oakland, were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, where they were all treated and released.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the incident, charging Loughrie with driving while under the influence of alcohol and crossing the center line.

recorded a ten percent increase, the Southern Maryland and Washington Metropolitan regions both logged a six percent increase, the Baltimore Metropolitan region reported a two percent increase, and the Western Maryland region showed a seven percent decrease.

State Police pointed out that the figures are preliminary, and the slight increase in reported crimes should not be interpreted as an upward trend. Agency researchers are currently looking into these statistics in an attempt to determine possible reasons for the increase.

Mary Frankhouser, 84, Terra Alta, W.Va., is listed as "satisfactory" at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after a two vehicle accident which occurred on the Hutton-Oakland Road at 9:16 a.m. Sunday.

According to the police, John H. Smith, 45, Oakland, was traveling west in a 1976 Ford LTD, while Ronnie L. Metheny, 40, Terra Alta, was traveling east in a 1976 Chevrolet Nova.

Smith failed to negotiate a curve and crossed over the center line, colliding with Metheny's vehicle, causing Smith's vehicle to overturn.

Smith and Metheny, as well as three passengers in the Metheny vehicle, Sara Metheny, 40, Rhonda S. Metheny, 11, and Allen Metheny, 13, all of Terra Alta, were treated and released from the hospital after being transported there by Southern Rescue Squad.

Tfc. R.C. Resh investigated the mishap, charging Smith with crossing the center line.

Dorothy Lee, 61, Meyersdale, Pa., is listed in "good" condition at Cumberland Memorial Hospital following a single vehicle accident which occurred Saturday at 11:20 a.m. on Route 48. She was transported there by the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad.

According to police reports, Harry F. Lee, 64, Meyersdale, was traveling west in a 1978 Pontiac Bonneville when he apparently fell asleep. The vehicle ran off the left side of the road, struck the median strip and the guard rail, spun back across the road, and came to rest against an embankment.

Tfc. Dale K. Williams investigated the mishap.

A single vehicle accident occurred Sunday at 4:15 on the Bloomington Hill Road.

Wendy S. Rodeheaver, 20, Keyser, was traveling east in a 1972 Dodge Dart. According to the police, the vehicle lost its brakes, causing Rodeheaver to steer into a stop sign and a utility pole.

Both Rodeheaver and Lisa L. Riggleman, 20, Keyser, were treated and released from Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the incident, charging Rodeheaver with driving with defective brakes.

Larry Wayne Friend, 23, Accident, was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital after being involved in a motorcyle accident at 8:50 Friday morning in Oakland.

According to the police, Friend failed to put the kickstand of his vehicle up, which prevented him from negotiating a left turn. The vehicle traveled off the road and collided with a tree, throwing Friend from the motorcycle.

Tfc. R.C. Resh investigated the accident, charging Friend with negligent driving.

A single vehicle accident occurred Saturday in a private driveway.

Bradly A. Franzen, 21, Lexington Park, entered a private farm lane in a 1985 Honda Accord. According to the police, Franzen continued driving over several hundred feet of corn field and proceeding over two fence sections, coming to rest over a large tree stump.

Police said Franzen is diabetic, and was apparently in sugar shock at the time. He was transported to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, by Northern Rescue Squad. Officials at that hospital were unable to confirm whether he was treated and released.

Tfc. Dale K. Williams investigated the incident.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

GIVE WILDLIFE YOUR STAMP OF APPROVAL

If you've ever seen an eagle, Delmarva fox squirrel or peregrine falcon you know first hand why it is so important for our precious wildlife resources to be properly managed. There is nothing as exhilarating, fascinating or exciting as watching a great blue heron stalking fish in a pond, an osprey feeding young in her nest or hearing a great horned owl calling at night. Yet there is a chance that future generations may not be able to enjoy the same wildlife resources we take for granted.

"When we use the word 'wildlife' many people think only in terms of deer, squirrels, rabbits and other game animals," said Steve Schneider, Wildlife Public Affairs Officer for the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. "Actually the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service is responsible for managing all of Maryland's wildlife species including some 75 different mammals and 324 species of birds. The vast majority of these animals fall into the non-game classification. Although some of these animals benefit from the management work we do for game animals, State funds for non-game management have been almost non-existent for years," he added.

Fortunately that is changing. Recognizing the improtance of this work and the funding limitations, the Maryland General Assembly passed House Bill 738 in 1984 establishing a special fund and creating a voluntary Wildlife Conservation Stamp. The law allows the Department of Natural Resources to sell these stamps and related merchandise to raise funds specifically for nongame and endangered species work.

The first Wildlife Conservation Stamp (1985) features a pair of Northern (Baltimore) Orioles painted by renowned Maryland artist John W. Taylor, who donated the use of his painting to the State.

Stamps sell for $5.00. Signed and numbered prints of the original painting used on this year's stamp are also available. There is a limited edition of 1,500 prints, and they sell for $35.00 (plus $2.50 postage). The prints are approximately 12x15 inches, with an 8 x 10 image area.

"We had two options for pricing the prints. We could have had fewer prints and raised the price, but our objective was to allow the general public to make an investment in our wildlife resources. This way they also receive a beautiful and valuable work of art," said Eugene F. Deems, Wildlife Conservation Fund Program Manager.

Projects funded included the reestablishment of the Delmarva fox squirrel, the maintenance and expansion of the bald eagle breeding population, and the reestablishment of a breeding population of peregrine falcons. Cooperative research projects between the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service and conservation groups will also be funded from the sale of Wildlife Conservation Stamps and Prints.

To order a Wildlife Conservation Print ($35 plus $2.50 postage) or Wildlife Conservation Stamp ($5) send a check or money order to: Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Licensing and Consumer Services, P.O. Box 1869 Annapolis, Maryland, 21404-1869.

BPW Welcomes New Member

Jayne Brown joined the ranks of women helping women through the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club during the September 12 meeting.

Brown, a niece of Bob and Maxine Combs of Friendsville, is a native of Virginia and is presently employed as a production supervisor for Flushing Shirt Company in Grantsville. After living in the county six months, she already characterizes its people as "the best people in the world."

Induction was carried out by Cosette White, membership chairman, assisted by President Phyllis Buckel. During the ceremonies Mrs. Combs came forward to present the new member with the various BPW membership pins and the president's gavel that she had accumulated during her own 39 years of membership.

Following a presentation by Marci McClive on efforts to curtail abortions for women receiving government assistance, the group agreed to contact Sen. John Bambacus and Del. George Edwards to inform them of local women's opinions on such curtailment. The group decided to support the freedom of all women to have safe, legal abortions if that is the route they feel they must choose. The group wants the club's opinion to the legislators before the January session.

The evening's program was conducted by Cosette White in the absence of legislative chairman Pat White and consisted of points of information on comparable worth followed by group discussion.

Fair booth and Pow Wow reports were given and the group agreed to sell food at Autumn Glory if a booth is available.

The club's next meeting will be October 24, during the national and local celebration of National Business Women's Week, set aside to honor the contributions of all working women.

Senior Citizens Tour Hawaii's Main Islands

The local chapter of American Association of Retired Persons recently sponsored a tour of four of the Hawaiian Islands, Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Hawaii. Martha Armstrong, escort, along with 42 senior citizens took the tour.

Spokesman for the group, Margaret Dean, said the group first arrived in Honolulu on the island of Oahu, sometimes called "The Gathering Place."

While there, the group took a bus tour of the city, Waikiki Beach, the zoo, the University of Hawaii, the state capitol, some of the early mission houses and Kawaiahoa Church, the oldest church in Honolulu. The group also saw the Iolani Palace, the only royal palace in America, and Washington Place, now the official residence of the governor, but once the home of Queen Liliuokalani, Hawaii's last monarch.

The tour travelled through Chinatown on its way to the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, an extinct volcano known as the Punchbowl Crater. Dean said 20,000 American servicemen who gave their lives in World War II and the Korean War are entombed in the volcano.

A cruise took the group to Pearl Harbor where more than 1,000 sailors went down with the battleship, the Arizona.

Next on the agenda was a drive around the exclusive residential area called Diamond Head.

Another highlight of the trip was a Hawaiian luau, followed by music and hula dancing. The group also visited the Polynesian Cultural Center, a living museum of primitive South Sea Island villages. There they saw demonstrations of ancient crafts and dances and were treated to a nighttime revue, "This Is Polynesia."

From Oahu, the group flew to Kauai, known as the "Garden Island" because of its lush vegetation and flowers. Other scenic spots visited were Waimea Canyon, which bears a resemblance to the Grand Canyon, the Alekoko Fish Pond, the Menehune Ditch, and a boat trip through the Wailua River State Park which included a large cavern named Fern Grotto.

The next stop was the island of Maui, called the "Valley Island" named for the long, flat, fertile isthmus that connects two extinct volcanoes. While there they toured the Seven Sacred Pools, Haleakala Crater National Park and Hana Ranch.

The group then flew to the island of Hawaii where they saw the Rainbow Falls, Queen Liliuokalani Park, the tropical gardens in the Hilo district, Hawaii Volcano National Park and the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian Volcano Observatory and the Thurston Lava Tube.

Upon arrival in Kailua-Kona the group visted several different spots at their own pace. Some attended services in the historic Mokuaikaui Church while some visited the Huilihee Summer Palace. Some of the group took a cruise to Kealakekua Bay, where Captain Cook landed and met his fate in 1779.

Those taking the Hawaiian tour included Ernest and Alice Speorlein, who organized the trip, Letha and Edgar Smith, Helen and Jim Bryant, Hazel and Joe Welch, Frances and Kenneth Bray; Ethel and Ralph Buckel, Thelma and Jerome Salmans, Edmund and Helene Rowland, Edith and Harvey Riley, Mary Kay Lewis, Evelyn K. Watson, Elizabeth Watkins, Jean Sollars, Pauline DeBerry, Dorothy Jordan, Maxine DeBerry, Myrtle Durben, Ferne Beachy, Ruth Mateer, Laura Turner, Anna Durst, Priscilla Bell, Violet Pike, Dixie Wilson, Ruth Walker, Nellie Swartzentruber, Carol Paugh, Lavone Smith, Carrie Shaffer, Dorothy Edmundson, Phyllis Winkelvoss, Anne Connor and Margaret Dean.

Assistance Program To Expire Monday

Unless the U.S. Congress takes immediate action, federal legislation establishing the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) program will expire on September 30, 1985, according to officials at the Maryland Department of Employment and Training.

DET officials estimate that, ultimately, some 3,000 claimants statewide may be adversely affected by the phase out.

If legislation is not extended, no new petitions for TAA participation will be accepted by DOL after September 30, 1985. Those individuals presently in training or scheduled for training on or before September 30, will be allowed to complete their scheduled training. However, no financial benefits, called Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA), will be paid after the program expires.

The TAA program was established to provide financial assistance beyond the 26 weeks of regular unemployment insurance benefits, job training and job search and relocation assistance, for workers who either lost their jobs or experienced a decline in work because of increase in imports.

Warning - Cat Owners:

Several non-EPA approved "organic" citrus oil or extract flea shampoos and dips are now being sold in the over-the-counter market. They are promoted as being safe and non-toxic for pets since they are organic and natural. One of the organic products has been found to be toxic to cats. Studies were done on three cats in Illinois using an organic dip. The label stated the product was a non-toxic and safe pet dip that was for use on dogs. It did not mention cats directly, although the product was called a pet dip. Of the three cats tested, one died in 12 hours, one was made ill but recovered and one was not harmed by the dip. Although the product contained all natural ingredients, this does not mean it is non-toxic.

Dairyman—Do You Need A Balance Feed Ration?

The least-cost Dairy Ration Balancing Program called UMDAIR has been used in Maryland for the last two years with very successful results. Unfortunately, during the past two years Garrett County did not benefit from the computerized program because the program was based at the University computer system. The cost would vary from $20.00 to $35.00 per Ration. Now the program is available to you Free. I now have the program on our office computer. Last Winter a survey of dairymen using the ration balancing program revealed the following facts: 81% felt UMDAIR was useful; 65% thought UMDAIR was a valuable educational service; 76% indicated UMDAIR good management tool; 56% felt UMDAIR was keeping them in business. An average feed savings was 34 cents per cow per day with an average increase of 8 lbs. of milk per day per cow. So far, it is estimated UMDAIR has saved Maryland Dairymen $2 million. Again, the program is available free of charge. If you are interested, give me a call.

Host Families Are Needed for several young men (ages 19-25) from Panama who will be visiting the U.S. from October 1985 - February 1986. The program, sponsored by the National 4-H Council and Agency for International Development, is looking for farm families where the participants can work along with the family during their four-month stay. For details, contact the Extension Office at 334-2145 and ask to speak with Jim Simms or Alice Hevner.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service's programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, religion, age or national origin.

Jack Miller Of Maryland Farm Bureau Is Guest Speaker At Dinner

Jack Miller was the special guest speaker at the combined Garrett and Allegany Farm Bureau dinner/meeting last Thursday at the Bittinger Fire Hall.

Miller, the Maryland Farm Bureau's legislative lobbiest in Annapolis, brought the group up to date on legislation passed by last year's General Assembly and gave them a preview of what's coming up this year.

He included in his speech many farm-related bills that were passed or defeated, including a bill signed into law making leased or owned farm equipment exempt from property taxes.

Miller explained that Farm Bureau took a neutral position of the bill which passed requiring rabies vaccinations for cats. He said that Farm Bureau realizes that there is a serious problem with rabies in the state, but as Miller said, "Many farm cats are not pets, and I hate to say it, but you're not going to vaccinate some of those cats with anything less than a shotgun."

The animal rights bill that was defeated in committee was full of good intentions, according to Miller. "All farmers are in favor of humane transport of animals," he said. "It was not what was in the bill but what was not in it that defeated the bill in committee." He stressed that some of the animal-rights proposals are well and good, but reminded farmers that activist groups are against some necessities like dehorning young animals.

He spoke of the pesticide bill to ban the use of Sevin, killed with the help of Senator Bambacus. Sevin, he explained, is the most common and possibly the safest pesticide on the market for farm use. Part of the defeated bill stated that the state health department had to investigate and use any pesticide before it could be released for use in the state.

Miller brought the group up to date on changes in regulations regarding the pesticide applicators law. An individual must now take an exam to be elligible for an applicators license. He stated that both the Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland will offer the needed courses and conduct the exams.

Agricultural land preservation was another topic discussed by Miller. He related that Maryland's program is recognized as the best agpreservation program in the country.

He told the group that money for a 4-H Foundation building was allotted by the legislature. The foundation was able to get the grant and the building will be constructed on the campus of the University of Maryland. Besides serving 4-H, the university hopes it will attract more agriculture students.

The cost share for water related projects was increased from a limit of $5,000 to $10,000 for any one project. This is basically to benefit the Chesapeake Bay, reported Miller.

The ground work was completed to develop plans for protecting the quality and quanity of ground water. Agriculture is currently exempt from water use appropriations permits, however, no system has been set up to record farmers' use of water. A task force has been appointed to set up regulations for appropriations permits. They have established a priority for agriculture which is second under residential and health. Only those who use over 10,000 gallons of water a day would need a permit. Miller stresses that everything is fine the way it is, if we don't have a water shortage.

An "attractive nuisance" law was not passed into law by the legislature. That law would have held a farmer liable, for instance, if a child who has trespassed onto a farmer's property was hurt on a piece of equipment. "The damage that could be done to farmers by a law like that is phenomenal," said Miller.

In answer to a question from the audience, Miller said that it is against the law for three-wheelers and motorcycles to cross or travel on a farmer's property without written permission.

Miller reported that the coal slurry pipeline bill was defeated. That bill would have given Baltimore utilities eminent domain to cross private property.

He spoke about the grain buyers law and the licensing of grain buyers. Miller stated that there are problems with the present law. In a bill last year, the secretary of agriculture was given the ability to audit the books of anyone who buys one bushel of grain, and recommendations have been made to provide the mechanism for the secretary to see the books of a suspected grain buyer, if they refuse he has the right to get an injunction and go to court. "We've got to tighten up the law and see what we can do with it, or repeal it," Miller said. "As it stands now, it's a joke."

The Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas Commission was another subject Miller hit upon. From an agricultural standpoint, it has been decided that farmers can't water or feed but can graze on the buffer strip of the bay. Miller predicts that in three to five years the same regulations that now affect the Chesapeake Bay will be intact for all waters in Maryland.

Ken Buckel was asked to speak to the group concerning the problems between the Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation and the Sierra Club (see separate article).

Afterward, Miller, Bambacus, Edwards, and Buckel held a question, answer, and discussion session with the group.

PIONEER FARM BUREAU MEMBERS — The Farm Bureau dinner/meeting was a special evening for Mae and Merrell Wilburn who reside near Hoyes. In honor of her 80th birthday, Mae was presented a flower arrangement from the Farm Bureau Women's Committee. The Wilburns have been Farm Bureau members for many, many years (they can't remember how long). They are members of the Farm Bureau Discussion Group, and Merrell has served as secretary/treasurer for 38 years. The Wilburns are members of the Hoyes United Methodist Church, where Mae is a member of the Ladies Aid Society. Merrell is on the Garrett County Fair Board and is treasurer of the Garrett County Fair Association. They are the parents of two sons, Edward and James, and have four grandchildren. The family held a card shower for Mae's birthday, and she received 146 cards from friends and relatives. Congratulations were expressed to Mae on her birthday, and to Merrell for his years of faithful service to the Garrett County Farm Bureau.

A PERFECT PITCH from Southern quarterback Zack Gibson, pictured far left, to No. 40, Bruce Bosley on an option play against Central Preston Friday evening in Oakland resulted in a 53-yard scoring run by Bosley down the sideline. This touchdown was the third of four in the game by the Rams, who won the contest 30-6. Southern will travel to Musselman this Friday evening.

Rams Roll To Third Win By Routing Cavaliers, 30-6

The Southern Rams took advantage of two back-to-back turnovers early in the first quarter by visiting Central Preston Friday evening and went on to rout the West Virginians, 30-6, for their third win in as many starts.

The Southern offensive unit scored all 30 points in the first quarter, while the Ram defense remained just as stubborn as it has all season. The Cavaliers managed to record only 34 total yards in the first half and did not get any points until the waning moments of the game against the Rams' second team. Coach Tom Woods would most likely have his third straight shutout of the campaign, but elected to give his second and third team players as much playing time as possible.

Freshman quarterback Zack Gibson, who engineered a much smoother Ram offense than in the two previous games, scored the first touchdown on a one-yard run after Central Preston's first turnover. The run for the conversion points failed.

Central Preston took the ensuing kickoff and promptly fumbled the ball again on the first play from scrimmage, which set up a 24-yard touchdown pass from Gibson, his first varsity TD pass, to senior Mike Mongold. Gibson then scored on a bootleg for the extra points, giving the Rams a 14-0 lead with just a few minutes expired in the first quarter.

A perfectly executed option sweep, with the toss from Gibson to Bruce Bosley, resulted in the Rams' third touchdown, a 53-yard run down the sideline early in the second period (see photo). Bosley also ran for the conversion.

With about two minutes remaining in the half, Gibson led another drive which was capped by a one-yard scoring dive by fullback Scott Werdebaugh. Tony Refosco was all alone in the end zone when he received Gibson's pass for the two-point conversion, the final Southern score of the evening.

Coach Woods began to substitute regularly about midway through the third period, utilizing sophomore Bobby Bernard at quarterback.

Central Preston, behind senior quarterback Darryl Dupert, put together a long drive in the final moments of the game and Dupert ran the final ten yards for the Cavaliers' only points. The pass for the conversion was incomplete.

Bosley, one of the area's leading rushers, finished with 145 yards on 21 carries, to give him a season average of 132 yards per game.

Mike Smith and Jay Stewart were defensive standouts, while Woods praised Warren Livengood for "a solid effort" on the offensive line. He said he was also pleased with the improvement shown by Gibson and tight ends Mongold and Refosco, and the running performance of Bosley and Steve Schrock.

"We were really able to capitalize on our opponent's mistakes, which is something you have to do to win," Woods said. "We were also able to eliminate some of our own mistakes on offense, which resulted in some points. Zack (Gibson) played a good game. He is getting better and better, although there is still room for improvement."

Another interesting statistic is that, for the second straight game, the Rams did not punt the ball a single time. "When that happens, you know you are doing something well," Woods said, noting that in 11 games last season, the Rams punted only 12 times.

The only truly negative news Woods reported this week was injury and illness, respectively, to two key players, both of whom are listed as doubtful for the Musselman game this week. Scott Werdebaugh sustained stretched knee ligaments in the game and center Johnnie Mayne has been out all week with a skin infection.

"We just can't seem to get healthy and stay healthy," Woods said. "It's the worst situation I've ever faced."

Jamie Thomas, the starting quarterback who suffered a broken thumb in the first game of the season, will most likely dress for this week's game, Woods said, but will not play.

Expected to start at center is Rick Layton, who was the first team center before being injured in training before the season opened. He is expected to share the snapping duties with senior A.J. Murray. John Lewis, who shares the fullback position with Werdebaugh, will handle the position alone this week and Gary Wotring will fill Werdebaugh's linebacking spot.

Woods stated that the toughest test so far this season for the Rams will be this Friday evening at Musselman.

While the Applemen resemble Southern in experience and size, they return a number of highly skilled starters who have the ability to score quickly and break a game wide open. Winning has literally become a trademark of Coach Denny Price, whose teams over the past five years have amassed an unbelievable 56-5 record, including a spot in the state playoffs all five years, one state championship, and two runner-up state championships.

The Applemen also feel they have a score to settle with the Rams, who defeated them in the waning moments of last season's game in Oakland, 22-21, when Steve Bennett raced 95 yards for a Southern touchdown.

Musselman, currently 2-1, opened with a loss to Tucker County in its opener this year and is coming off a last-minute win over Frankfort last week, 28-26.

They are led offensively by fullback John Petry, a three-year starter at fullback, 5-9, 185 pounds; Brad Byers, a 6-1, 190-pound wing back; Nick Payton, 5-8, 145-pound speedster tailback; sophomore quarterback J.R. Franks, 6-4, 190; and guard David Scott, 6-0, 170.

Anchoring their defense are Petry and Byers at linebacker positions, Payton at defensive back, and Rodney Brill, 5-11, 165, also at linebacker.

Musselman uses primarily the wing-T offense and a 4-4 defense. They are starting nine underclassmen on defense and seven on offense, another similarity to the Rams. In their opening game at Tucker County, they had 85 dressed players at the game, making them one of the largest teams in the area.

"Musselman has had the strongest program we have faced in the past five years," Woods said. "They are young this year, but they are big and quick and we are going to have to play an excellent game to beat them."

He said he believes that the team which plays the best defense will win the game. "Both of the offenses have the ability to score a lot of points, so we have stressed defense all week long in practice," he said.

The Rams currently have the stingiest defense in the area, yielding only two points per game and less than 60 yards.

"This will be a big challenge and a key game of the season for both teams," Woods said. "I hope we have a large following of fans to the game, because it makes a big difference, especially to a young team."

A TOUGH BATTLE was waged Sunday afternoon between the Oakland Jets and Oakland Raiders of the Mt. Top Youth Football League. Both teams entered the game undefeated and it took three overtime periods to determine a winner, as Mike Fulmer, the Raider quarterback scored on a six-yard run to give his team the win, 6-0. Above, No. 25, Billy Welch, of the Jets, races around right end for a big ground gainer as a host of Raider defenders move in for the tackle. Welch was the leading rusher for the Jets and also played an outstanding defensive game, while Mike Hornyak paced the Raiders' rushing effort with 100 yards.

Raiders Edge Jets In Triple Overtime, 6-0

Defense was the name of the game when the only two undefeated Mt. Top Youth Football League teams, the Oakland Raiders and the Oakland Jets, met each other Sunday afternoon at the Southern High School field.

The battle of the unbeatens was scoreless at the end of the fourth quarter and it was on a fourth downplay in the third overtime period that the Raider quarterback Mike Fulmer ran into the end zone from six yards out to give the Raiders a 6-0 victory.

The win was the 17th straight for the Raiders, which tied the league record of consecutive victories.

Mike Hornyak once again led the winners in rushing, picking up 100 yards on 20-plus carries, while Billy Welch recorded 69 yards for the Jets. Welch also sparkled on defense with numerous tackles, including a quarterback sack.

Marshall Pike accounted for a pair of fumble recoveries for the Jets, while Jamie Ashby had one. Tommy Ritchey and Rob Reckart also provided strong defensive performances.

Leading the Raider defense were Bobby Orr and Jack Fitzwater in individual tackles, while Mondo Polce and Rob Moyer had numerous assists. Fitzwater, Chad Ward, and Polce also led the defense in critical situations with blocked punts, blocked passes, and interceptions.

Orr, Mike Rohrbaugh, Mike Dever, Fitzwater, Moyer, and David Kurtz provided most of the blocking for Hornyak's rushing yardage.

Ashby had two receptions for the Jets good for 41 yards, both of which were nearly broken for touchdowns. Pike also had a reception.

Coaches from both teams reported that, while the game was "hard-fought, physical, and demanding" the game was played with good sportsmanship displayed by the players, coaches, cheerleaders, and fans.

The Raiders will seek their fifth win of the campaign this Sunday at 1:30 against the Thomas-Davis Rams on the Southern field, while the Jets will attempt to rebound against the Terra Alta Dolphins at 1:30 at Northern High School.

Lady Huskies Unbeaten After Four Matches

The Northern High School Girls' Volleyball team opened its season with four straight wins this past week, including a three-game win over Southern last evening. Other victims of the Lady Huskies were Calvary Christian Academy twice, and the Allegany High School Campers.

In the opening match of the season, Northern crushed CCA in three straight wins 15-1, 15-1, 15-5. Leading scorers for the evening were Amy Swauger with 16 points, including five ace serves, followed by Missy Durst with 12 points and six aces. Karen Frank chipped in eight points. The service line was the deciding factor for Northern. They completed 59 good serves out of 62 attempts, for a 95% accuracy record.

Two days later the Lady Huskies travelled to Cresaptown to again meet the CCA Eagles and the outcome was the same. Northern swept three straight games, 15-9, 15-3 and 15-3, to win their second match of the season. Leading scorers in this contest were Amy Swauger with 14 points and five ace serves, followed by Missy Durst with 10 points.

Offensive power was provided by Amy Swauger with eight killer spikes and Julie Robeson with five kills. Defensive standouts were Robeson with seven blocks and Jenny Dailey with five. On the service line Northern sparkled again with 63 good serves out of 65 for a 97% accuracy rate.

Allegany fell prey to the Huskies in three straight games, 15-2, 15-5 and 15-1. Jenny Dailey led the Huskies in scoring with 12 points. She was followed by Amy Swauger and Tammy Swauger who each had nine points. Amy Swauger recorded four ace serves during the match.

Julie Robeson pounded the Campers into submission with 16 killer spikes while Swauger added nine kills.

Defensively, Karen Frank and Sherry Frantz recorded digs and saves to aid the Husky cause. Serving accuracy was 94% with 59 out of 63 being good.

Northern's Jayvees picked up the Little Campers in two straight games 15-4, 15-13. Offensive leaders were Shayne Couch with nine points followed by Lisa Swauger and Julie Yommer who each contributed five.

The scores of Wednesday's wins over Southern were 15-9, 15-7, and 15-3.

The jayvee squad lost to Southern, however, 15-6 and 15-5.

No other details of the match were available at presstime.

Ducks Unlimited Annual Banquet Slated Oct. 16

The Mtn. Top Chapter of Duck's Unlimited will hold its sixth annual banquet at Silver Tree Inn on Deep Creek Lake on October 16, at 6 p.m., according to Phil Davidson, chapter chairman.

"The Ducks Unlimited success story is really starting to spread," said Davidson. "Banquets much like ours which were held throughout the country last year contributed to a national fundraising effort which netted $38.2 million."

Davidson said that totals must increase this year if the North American waterfowl habitat race is to be won.

He further stated that DU's sportsmen/conservationists founders discovered through surveys conducted 45 years ago that 70% of North America's waterfowl production occurs in Canada. "Since federal duck stamp dollars cannot be spent beyond U.S. Borders, sportsmen funds earmarked for waterfowl conservation are not getting to the places where the great percentage of production occurs," he said.

Through Ducks Unlimited efforts, over $237 million has been raised in the United States since 1937, and the Lion's share of every one of those dollars has been sent to DU Canada to reserve some 3.3 million acres of prime habitat encompassing over 2,400 wetland projects.

Davidson said the only problem with that is that biologists estimate millions of additional acres of habitat must be reserved to stabilize North America's waterfowl population.

"When you consider that habitat today is diminishing due to agricultural and development pressures and that DU is the only non-profit conservation organization involved in the Canadian waterfowl habitat race, you can begin to see the significance attached to the organization's fund-raising events," he concluded.

Tickets for the fundraiser are $50 per couple or $35 per single and include a one-year Ducks Unlimited membership and a subscription to the organization's magazine. For tickets and further details, call Phil Davidson at 334-3822.

Southern Jayvees Whip Northern To Stay Unbeaten

The Southern High jayvee football team kept its season record unblemished this week as the Rams defeated cross-county rival Northern Monday evening, 20-14. It was the second loss in three starts for the Huskies.

Charlie Paugh scored the Rams' first touchdown, a 20-yard run, followed by a one-yard scoring dive by Chris Helbig and a three-yard touchdown run by Rodney Pike.

Although the Rams dominated the line of scrimmage most of the contest, the Huskies put both of their touchdowns on the board on spectacular plays, a 63-yard fumble recovery run by Jason Rush and a 70-yard kickoff return by Craig Umbel.

Barry Atwood, Danny Eggleston, and Kevin Selby paced the Husky defense.

The 3-0 Rams will travel to Keyser on October 7 and the Huskies will host Beall on Monday.

Southern Girls Open With Two Wins, One Loss

The Southern High varsity girls volleyball team opened its season with wins over Allegany and Hancock before falling to arch rival Northern last night, 15-9, 15-7, and 15-3.

Cathy Wilson and Chris Gregory each scored ten points, while Leslie Ellis recorded nine in the easy win over Allegany last Wednesday evening, 15-1, 15-8, and 15-4. Ellis had five placement shots for sideout or points, plus six ace serves, while Gregory had five spike points.

The Southern jayvee squad also won its match over Allegany, 15-13, 4-15, and 15-9, as Kendra Stemple recorded ten points and Lisa Dever had six ace serves.

The Southern varsity topped Hancock Tuesday evening in three straight games, 15-4, 15-9, and 15-11, as Gregory accounted for 19 points, ten on ace serves. Joy Thrasher added seven points.

The jayvee team picked up its second win, by defeating Hancock 15-3 and 15-4. Kelly Evans was the high scorer with 20 points.

Against Northern last night, Stacey Sines finished with seven points.

The undefeated jayvee team was led by Debbie Bateman and Kathy Kimble with 11 and seven points, respectively, in a win over Northern, 15-6, and 15-5.

Browning Hits Hole-In-One

It was like mother, like daughter at the Oakland Country Club on Sunday afternoon, as Karen Browning scored the most recent hole-in-one at the local course during the Autumn Glory Golf Tournament.

Mrs. Browning's mother, Marianna Naylor, also carded a hole-in-one on hole 13 of the Oakland course in 1976. Mrs. Browning's ace was on the par 3 17th hole.

It was the fifth ace of the season at the Oakland course. Others scoring one this season were Jay Meyers and Rick Green on number three, Dr. Jim Duke on number nine, and Don Conklen on number 13.

All are members of the Oakland Country Club, except Conklen, who is a member of the Alpine Lake CC near Terra Alta, W.Va.

Mrs. Browning was presented a dozen golf balls by the club, as were the other four who recorded aces this year.

GAINING GROUND for the Northern Huskies against Petersburg last Friday evening is No. 12, Rodney Lipscomb, the leading rusher for Northern so far this season. The Huskies lost the contest, however, 25-8, after committing a number of costly turnovers. Also identifiable in the photo are No. 72, Bill Friend, and No. 10, Kevin Sines, who completed 15 of 28 passes for 124 yards. Northern will travel to Frostburg tomorrow evening to take on the Beall Mountaineers.

Husky Errors Lead To Third Loss, 25-8, Against Vikings

For the third straight week the Northern High School varsity football team played on nearly even terms with its opponent in terms of statistics, but for the third straight week lost the game. The Huskies fell to visiting Petersburg last Friday evening, 25-8, despite the fact that both teams finished with 11 first downs, both had three turnovers, and the Vikings outdistanced the Huskies in total yardage by only ten yards, 230-220.

"It's really getting frustrating for the kids and certainly for the coaching staff," stated Jack Settle, head coach. "You can really just change the date and the name of our opponent and run the same story from the previous week," he said. The Huskies were defeated by Central Preston in similar fashion the previous week.

The Yardstick

Petersburg		Northern
7	First Down Rush	3
2	First Down Pass	5
2	First Down Penalty	3
11	Total First Downs	11
12	Passes Attempted	28
3	Passes Completed	15
1	Passes Intercepted By	1
87	Yards Passing	145
143	Net Yards Rushing	75
3-31.3	Punts—Average	6-28
7-70	Penalties—Yards	11-97
2-2	Fumbles—Lost	3-2
230	Total Offense	220

After a scoreless first quarter, Petersburg got on the board first on a two-yard run by Tim Moreland. The pass for the conversion was incomplete.

Brad Goldizen then pulled down a pass from Chad Curtis late in the third quarter, resulting in a 40-yard touchdown play. The kick for the extra point was no good, giving the Vikings a 12-0 advantage at halftime.

Petersburg went on top 18-0 in the third stanza as Moreland recorded his second touchdown of the evening on a two-yard run. The kick again failed.

The Huskies responded with a touchdown in that same period, as quarterback Kevin Sines hit freshman Ed Tabor with a 24-yard scoring toss, followed by a successful two-point conversion run by Sines.

Moreland, who finished with 84 yards on 14 carries, earned his third and his team's final six-pointer of the evening when he dashed into the end zone from five yards out in the fourth quarter. Brian Ginder tacked on the extra point.

One of the Viking touchdowns was practically gift-wrapped and handed to them by the Huskies when they fumbled the ball on their own nine-yard line. Another play resulting in lost points for Northern was when Sines' only interception of the game was in Petersburg's end zone on a first and goal from the eight. On another occasion, the Huskies failed on a fourth-and-one-foot situation deep in the Vikings' territory.

Besides the interception, Sines' passing was one of the bright spots in the game for Northern fans, as he connected on 15 of 28 aerials for 124 yards. Ed Tabor received seven of those passes for 124 yards and the touchdowns, while Wayne Tabor pulled down four receptions for 21 yards and added 32 yards on the ground.

"Our offensive blocking was just atrocious," Settle said, "by our backs as well as our linemen. Plus, we are still being nailed for far too many procedure calls."

The Huskies were penalized 97 yards on 11 calls, most of them procedure penalties. "It's as if our kids' minds go blank right before the snap of the ball. We have really been trying to remedy this and also to capitalize on breaks and opportunities. So far, this still hasn't materialized."

Ed Tabor was named offensive player of the game for his receiving stats, Dennis Hetrick, who turned in a third straight solid defensive performance in a row, was named the defensive player of the week, and Paul McClintock, received the specialty team player of the week award. McClintock also sparkled on defense with 11 tackles and a fumble recovery.

Others leading the Husky defense were Bill Friend and Matt Eggleston, who had an interception.

"Another problem we have had in all three games is that our defense has been on the field too long," Settle said. "As a result, we finally cave in defensively and we don't have enough depth to make replacements."

The Huskies won't get much of a break this week as they travel to Frostburg Friday evening to take on Beall, a team that is 1-2, but has numerous highly skilled athletes.

Maryland track champion Lamar Hall, 6-1, 160-pound senior end; running back Eric Harman, 5-8, 160-pound senior; 5-6, 152-pound junior Brian Miller; three-year starter Shevin Kuperman at running back, 5-8, 156-pound; and senior fullback Brian Edwards, 5-11, 179 pounds, anchor the Mountaineers' offensive unit, which has had difficulty in putting points on the board this season.

The Beall defense has been consistently strong all season, however, giving up only eight points to Southern and five to Berkeley Springs last week, a team the Mountaineers defeated last week, 9-5, on the final play of the game.

Leading the defense are Wayne Seifarth, a 6-3, 260-pound junior, and Eric Harman, All HFC linebacker last year.

Beall runs from the wing and flanker-I formations on offense and utilizes 5-2 monster and 4-4 defensive formations.

"Frankly, I don't think we have the resources to contain the kind of speed that Beall has," Settle said. "We are going to have to rely on our defense once again to force some breaks, and then our offense is going to have to capitalize and put some points on the board."

Although the Huskies are virtually injury-free right now, center Dave Jones is expected to miss the game this week because of a death in his family and Wayne Tabor was out with the flu the first half of the week. Although listed as probable for Friday night, Tabor will most likely not play both offense and defense.

Moved up from the Northern freshman ranks last week was Danny Sines, 5-11, 196 pounds, who is expected to start on the offensive line this week.

The kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

UP FOR A BLOCK go two Southern varsity girls volleyball players, as a Northern offender prepares to spike the ball. The Lady Huskies won the match, their fourth straight win of the season without a loss, while the host Rams dropped to 2-1 on the year. The match was played last night in Southern's gym.

Garrett Sweeps Twinbill From CCAC, Pittsburgh

Garrett Community College rallied for three runs in the seventh inning to win the opener, 3-2, and also came from behind to take the nightcap, 5-4, in the Lakers' sweep over CCAC South Campus of Pittsburgh Wednesday afternoon at McHenry.

The twin-killing makes the Lakers 3-2-1 for the fall portion of their schedule and they will be playing South Campus again on Saturday in a doubleheader at Pittsburgh.

Chris Huyett hurled a five-hitter with five strikeouts and only two walks in going the route for the win in the opener. Both South runs in the third inning were unearned.

Rick Harasti doubled home pinch-runner Dave McLaughlin with the winning run in the seventh. Matt Moore sent in the tying run with his third single after Bruce Erminio put Garrett on board with a run-producing base hit.

Brad Basinger had two singles and a walk, and Harasti added another single.

In the second game, Brian Wagner singled in the running run in a three-run seventh after two runs scored on a hard grounder by Erminio that went through the shortstop's legs.

McLaughlin singled in Basinger for the Lakers' first run in the second, Erminio singled and scored on Benny Shreve's grounder in the fifth. South went ahead 3-2 in the sixth on two singles and an error.

Bill Liller got credit for the win and Stacey Viands came on to get a save in the seventh.

Smith's Horses Take Top Honors At AQHA Shows

Two weanling Quarter Horses, owned and bred by Dick and Susie Smith of Small Oaks Quarter Horse Stables, have captured top honors at this summer's Quarter Horse Futurities and state Quarter Horse shows.

The Smiths traveled to Upper Marlboro for the Maryland State Quarter Horse Show and Futurity, held from August 26 to September 1. They showed a senior weanling colt named "Jon's Wimpy Music" by their stallion, "Wimpy's Little Jon", and out of a mare name, "Miss Music Melody." The colt won tenth place in a class of 36 entries.

At the AQHA Futurities held at York Springs, Pa., over Labor Day weekend, they showed "Jon's Wimpy Music" to another victory by winning first place in the 1985 Weanling Colts Class. He was also shown in the Senior Weanling Futurity Colts Class where he won third place out of 52 entries. They showed him in the QIP (Quality Improvement Class) where he won sixth place out of 33 colts entered in the class.

The Smiths explain that this colt's sire is by an AQHA Superior Halter Stallion, "Jonmar Jack", and his dam is by "Mr. Poco Music", an AQHA Superior Halter and Pleasure Champion. "It takes at least 50 AQHA points in one event to qualify a horse for a superior title," said Susie, "and an AQHA champion must have 15 halter points, 15 pleasure points, and 5 working points."

Another weanling from Small Oaks was also shown by the Smiths. A 1985 weanling filly, "Jon's Sandy Image", also by their stallion and out of a mare named "Triple Quick Rosy", placed first in the 1985 Weanling Filly Class. They showed her in 1985 Senior Weanling Futurity Fillies where she won eighth place out of 51 fillies.

The two weanlings were taken to the Tri-State Futurities held last weekend at Washington, Pa. The colt, "Jon's Wimpy Music," won second place in a class for senior colts, and "Jon's Sandy Image" won second place in the senior filly class. She also placed second in the QIP Filly Class.

Futurity halter classes are held by state Quarter Horse associations for weanlings, yearlings, and two-year olds. The young horses are judged on best Quarter Horse type, style, conformation, straightness, overall appearance, and balance. They also sponsor riding futurities for pleasure horses and maturities for horses four years old and older.

"There are top horses in the country competing in these futurities that travel from as far away as Texas and Canada," said Susie. She went on to say, "We are very proud of these weanlings because we raised them, they are by our stallion, and they were competing against weanlings shown by some of the top trainers in the country."

Small Oaks Quarter Horse Stables are located on Smith's Drive near Deer Park.

Farmers Warned Against Noxious Weeds In Grain

Maryland farmers are being cautioned by the State Department of Agriculture against buying rye and other small grain for cover crop use that may contain noxious weed seeds.

As the cold weather approaches, many Maryland farmers will be buying cover crop material to prevent soil erosion over the winter. Farmers are urged to avoid untested and unlabeled seed lots which frequently are found to be heavily infested with noxious weed seeds such as quackgrass, Canada thistle and Johnsongrass.

According to Malcolm Sarna, acting chief of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Turf and Seed Section, many farmers could be inviting new weed pests on their land if they buy seed for cover use that has not been tested or is being sold for feed purposes.

"Unfortunately, some farmers are not concerned with the quality of the seed they use for cover crop purposes," cautioned Sarna, "what we are trying to do is alert farmers about buying untested and unlabelled seed. Frequently this material is loaded with noxious weed seeds.

"We urge all farmers to buy properly tested and labelled seed. If dealing on a farmer to farmer basis, at least get it tested for noxious weeds, purity and germination. It can only save you trouble in the long run," he concluded.

MDA, turf and seed inspectors place under "stop sale" order seed lots exposed for sale that are found in violation of the Maryland Seed Law.

Farm Bill Review

. . . . . A Garrett County Viewpoint

by Bernice Kepple

Today, the U.S. House of Representatives will debate and possibly vote on its version of the 1985 Farm Bill. The session will begin at 10 a.m. and Representatives hope to complete their debate by the end of the day so that a vote can be taken by 10 p.m. One spokesman says that it is really up in the air, though, because this is an open rule session, meaning that any Representative who wants to offer an amendment to the bill can do so. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron's office feels that the debate may be lengthy because of three topics considered "very controversial", the dairy program, the sugar program, and the Bedell amendment. Because a lengthy debate is expected on each of these topics, a vote may be withheld until debate is continued next Tuesday.

The first topic on the House agenda is one that will probably affect Garrett County farmers most, the dairy program. It's a deep subject, a very complicated program, and my only consolation is that as I research the program I find people in knowledgeable positions ready to admit, "I'm not familliar with that section of the dairy program," or, "I don't know how this part of the program will affect that part of the program," or, "That's a very good question, but I just don't know the answer at this time." Asking you to keep this in mind, I'll plunge into the dairy portion of the 1985 Farm Bill.

The current law, which expires the end of this month, calls for a price support of $12.60 per hundredweight, with authority for the secretary of Agriculture to lower the support price to $11.60 if Commodity Credit Corporation purchases remain high. That has happened, the support price is $11.60 at this time, and CCC purchases are expected to hit 11 billion pounds by October 1. One Representative explained the proposed House bill as "allowing dairy farmers themselves to take responsibility for reducing surpluses, and to bring milk production into a healthier long-run balance between supply and demand." The way I read that, if you can't afford to stay in business, or you go bankrupt, you've "taken the responsiblility for reducing surpluses."

The House has its choice of two options today. They can support a diversion program or vote in favor of an amendment made by Congressman Olin Michel of Illinois which provides a straight price support system. With the unlikely passage of the Olin Michel amendment, there would be no diversion program and no need for livestock industry protection requiring producer assessments costing the producers $1 for each head of cattle sold. The Maryland Farm Bureau supports the Olin Michel amendment, saying that it's a drastic reduction but that farmers would as least know ahead of time what they are up against. The amendment calls for a 50 cent support price reduction every year for the next three years. Starting with $11.60 now, it would drop to $11.10 in 1986, $10.60 in 1987, and $10.10 in 1988.

On the other hand, under a diversion program farmers would be offered a chance to sign voluntary supply reduction contracts for a period of three to five years. When diversion programs were in effect, producers would pay an assessment equal to the amount that the overall program costs exceed the cost of purchasing five billion pounds of milk. That would cover all the diversion (supply-reduction) payments to farmers as well as government costs for purchasing milk above the five billion pound level. A complicated system of price supports would also be in effect along with the diversion program.

Many Representatives, including Beverly Byron, support the diversion program. They say it is the only way to significantly reduce milk production by dairy farmers, thus decreasing the amount of government purchases. An aide to Byron said that diversion would reduce the dairy program cost by $800 million, and reduce government purchases of milk in 1986 by seven billion pounds. The Olin Michel amendment, they say, would only reduce government purchases by two billion pounds and would not result in a significant milk reduction until 1990. The diversion program would be within the budget while the Olin Michel amendment would make the bill over budget. I guess we know which one the president would sign.

Congressmen are expecting many other amendments to be proposed before a final vote. After a final vote is taken, the House bill and Senate bill (which I'm told are vastly different) must still be merged into a comprehensive 1985 Farm Bill. What will the outcome be? At this point we'll just have to wait and see.

Crop Development Rapid In State

With no rain and below normal temperatures, crop development in Maryland advanced rapidly this past week, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

A full seven days were suitable for fieldwork. Farmers were busy during the week harvesting corn for grain, corn silage, tobacco, hay and apples, as well as planting small grains. Topsoil moisture is short across the state, while subsoil moisture is short to adequate in all areas except the lower Shore, where it is mostly adequate.

Corn remains in fair to good condition with the final development progressing rapidly. Corn had reached the dent stage in all but a a few fields in northern and extreme western Maryland. This progress is equal to last year, but slightly ahead of the normal 95 percent dented by September 22. Eighty percent of the corn acreage has reached maturity, eight days ahead of last year and well ahead of the 65 percent normally mature this time of year. Corn silage harvest at 85 percent complete is nearly a week ahead of last year's 75 percent and slightly ahead of the normal 80 percent cut by the last week in September. Corn for grain harvest at 35 percent is also a week ahead of last year's 15 percent and well ahead of the normal 20 percent harvested.

Small grain seeding made excellent progress during the week. Barley was 25 percent planted by week's end, equal to the 25 percent planted in 1984 and the normal planting percent. Planting of wheat advanced to the 20 percent level, two weeks ahead of the five percent seeded last year and well ahead of the normal 10 percent planted. Rye acreage was 25 percent seeded, slightly ahead of last year's 20 percent but equal to the normal pace. Oat seeding was completed on 10 percent of the intended acreage, one week ahead of last year's five percent and well ahead of the normal two percent seeded by September 22.

The fourth cutting of alfalfa hay was 55 percent completed, equal to last year, but 10 percent above the 45 percent normally cut. The fourth cutting of other hay is now 60 percent complete.

The apple crop remains in mostly good condition with 55 percent of the apples now picked.

WEATHER

Weather for the week ended September 20 was cool and dry. Temperatures averaged mostly three to seven degrees below normal. High temperatures were mostly in the low to mid 80's, while low temperatures were mostly in the mid 40's. There was no precipitation in the entire state during the week.

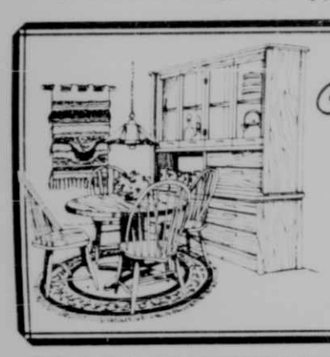
HISTORIC QUILT TO BE RAFFLED — A quilt featuring eight Garrett County historical sites will be raffled during the Autumn Glory Festival by the Garrett County Arts Council. The drawing will be held at the Heritage Craft Fest on October 13, at 3:30 p.m. Pictured above with the quilt, left to right, are Karin Rodeheaver, quilter; Dorothy Leighton, president of the Arts Council; Marcette Danner, board member of the Arts Council and quilt designer; and Michelle Gnegy, machine embroiderer. Pictured below is one of the quilt blocks depicting one of the historic sites, the B & O Railroad station in Oakland.

Historic Quilt To Be Raffled By Arts Council



One of the highlights of the Garrett County Arts Council's Heritage Craft Fest during Autumn Glory on October 12 and 13 will be the raffling of a quilt. The quilt features historic sites around the county.

Eight of the blocks are individually machine embroidered and include the Garrett County Courthouse as it was built in 1907, a renaissance revival style typical of the turn of the century; Oakland's B & O Railroad station which was probably completed in 1885 to serve the fashionable Oakland Hotel; Casselman Bridge built in 1814 to carry traffic on the National Road and at that time was the largest single span stone arch bridge in the country; The Log Church, or Our Father's House, built in the 1930's and now a mission of St. John's Episcopal Church; Mercy Chapel, an eight-sided church in Central European style, built in 1876 and still used today; Love's Mill, a miniature replica of a traditional grist mill, built in 1938; Clayton Cottage, a style known locally as "Missionary Gothic" because of the religious symbolism in architectural details, dates from the 1880's; Haynes or Carr Cottage thought to be the first one built in Mtn. Lake Park around 1882.

The quilt, done in shades of ivory, rust, olive and gold is on display at Sears Catalog Store through October 11. It will then be moved to the Oakland center of GCC, site of the Heritage Craft Fest. One dollar raffle tickets are on sale at Sears, Englander's Pharmacy, Gregg's Pharmacy, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, Marvin's Men's Wear, Southern Office Supply, Grandmother's House, The Emporium, Beachy's Pharmacy, Friendsville Pharmacy and Shear Delight Beauty Salon. Tickets will also be available at the Heritage Craft Fest during Autumn Glory, along with note cards depicting each of the eight machine embroidered quilt blocks. The drawing will be held Sunday, October 13, at 3:30 p.m.

This project is supported in part by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council. The local council is an affiliate of the state council and is a non-profit organization developed to promote the Arts in Garrett County. For further information, call Dorothy Leighton at 334-3315.

The Garrett County Chapter of the American Cancer Society held its first meeting of the 1985-86 year on September 17, at 7 p.m. in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board room where a slide presentation on oral cancer was given by Dr. Alvin Friend, a local dentist.

Dr. Friend reported that 95% of all diagnosed oral cancer patients are heavy smokers. He stressed that any lesion in the mouth not healed in two weeks should be checked by a dentist or physician.

It was reported by the chapter treasurer that $11,523.26 was raised in the county last year. The chapter set this year's goal at $12,500.

Patsy Stewart, secretary and crusade chairman, announced that there would be a Bingo and bake sale at the Rescue Squad hall on September 21 to benefit the society.

Other members attending the meeting were Pauline Parrack and Alana Winters, co-presidents; Pauline Faucett, vice-president; Dorothy Rudy, public information chairman; Helen Carstens, Reach to Recovery chairman; Nancy Barr, publicity chairman; Dr. Walter Naumann, medical advisor; Barbara Trask, field representative from Frostburg; Marsha San Julian, member; and Jan Shaffer, guest.

Cancer Society Notes Dedication Of Earl Clark

Members of the Garrett County Chapter of the American Cancer Society recently recognized Earl Clark as "a dedicated member who has served 18 years with the society as treasurer and director."

Clark, who moved to Garrett County in 1960, says community involvement has always been important to him. He said cancer has also been close to him because of several family members dying of the disease. "We've had firsthand experience with the heartache of cancer," said Clark, "and that's why the work of the society is so important to me."

Clark, a vice-president of First United National Bank and Trust, is also an active member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church where he has served as Sunday School superintendent for nearly 20 years. He is presently president of Methodist Men, vice-chairman of the finance committee, a member of the administrative board and the council on ministries. He is also a featured soloist often during worship services.

In other community involvement, Clark is a member of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, the Knights of Pythias, Oakland Masonic Lodge #192 AM&FM and the Ali Ghan Shrine in Cumberland. He served on the board of directors for the Garrett County Promotion Council for 15 years. Gardening, hunting and fishing are his hobbies.

His wife, Carol, is an Ob-Gyn practioner with the Garrett County Health Department and they are the parents of five children.

Legal Information Available Via Toll-Free Line

Maryland residents may now get free help on legal rights and services just by picking up the telephone.

Called Maryland Legal Line, citizens can now utilize a statewide toll-free number to access information concerning legal questions.

In a news conference held recently at Towson State University, university president Hoke L. Smith, joined by Herbert J. Belgrad, president of the Maryland State Bar Association, and Marvland's Attorney General, Stephen H. Sachs, formally opened the new consumer service by receiving a ceremonial "first call" from Maryland Lt. Governor, J. Joseph Curran, Jr.

By calling toll-free 1-800-638-8862, Maryland Legal Line number, members of the public may listen to tape-recorded explanations of more than 30 legal topics, ranging from "How to Find a Lawyer" to "Buying and Selling a Home" to "Should I have a Will?" The free service is co-sponsored by the Maryland State Bar Association and Towson State University.

"The more informed people are about their legal rights, the more likely they are to take the proper steps when drawing up a will or signing a rental contract", said Belgrad, "And the time to contact an attorney is before an issue becomes a headache."

Maryland Legal Line is staffed by university students and will be in operation seven days a week. The hours are: Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Fridays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sundays, 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

APPLES STILL A FAVORITE

Today, as in colonial times, the apple is one of America's favorite fruits. The versatile apple can enhance a variety of main dishes, side dishes, salads, breads, desserts, and beverages. It also makes a delightful low-calorie snack or dessert when eaten out-of-hand.

Along with their desirable flavor and texture, apples also have nutritional value. They contain several important vitamins and minerals, and also provide dietary fiber necessary for normal functioning of the intestine. When eaten raw after a meal, apples may aid in removing food particles from the teeth. The colorful skins of apples not only enhance salads but are also flavorful and nutritious.

Apples should be bright in color, but need not shine, because shininess is not an indication of quality. The skins should be smooth and reasonably free of bruises (don't pinch—it mars the fruit) and the peel should be firm.

Keep apples in top condition by handling gently to prevent bruises, and use any damaged apples as soon as possible. When storing small quantities, place apples in plastic bag and refrigerate. Large numbers should be stored in a cool, dark, airy place. Warm temperatures cause apples to rapidly lose their crispness and flavor, so be sure to give apples the cool treatment. Wash apples thoroughly before using, whether eaten raw or cooked.

The cut surface of raw apples may darken when exposed to air due to a reaction between naturally occurring ensymes and oxygen. To prevent this from happening, mix raw apple slices with lemon, orange, grapefruit or pineapple juice before combining with other ingredients.

Try this Apple-Pecan Pie recipe with some of those delicious fall apples:

APPLE-PECAN CRUMB TOP PIE

¼ cup chopped pecans
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
8 or 9 medium-sized tart apples (6 cups, sliced) (McIntosh, Stayman, Greening)
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons flour
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Crumb Topping*

Sprinkle pecans on bottom of pie shell. Pare, core and slice apples thin. Mix sugar, flour and spices; mix through apples. Heap apples in pie shell. Dot with butter or margarine. Top with Crumb Topping. Bake in hot oven, 425°F., 40 to 45 minutes or until apples are tender.

CRUMB TOPPING

½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
⅓ cup sifted, enriched flour
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Fall Begets Winter

And

a Garrett County winter demands preparation.

Use this special section to locate any item you'll need to winterize your home, car or farm.

Get car in condition before cold sets in

Before the thermometer dips below freezing levels, take advantage of the remaining warm weather to condition your car for the cold months ahead. The Automotive Information Council offers the following tips:

Starting with the exterior of the car, put the high-pressure nozzle on your garden hose and clean the under parts of the car thoroughly. Pay special attention to the fender wells, the door sills and door bottoms where rust can get a head start.

Make sure the under-door drain openings haven't become clogged by the summer's mud or road tar. If clogged, moisture will build up inside the door panels and provide an environment for rust.

Then give the car a good wax coating to protect the finish.

If you spot any paint bubbles or brown blotches, sand the surface gently and repaint the affected areas.

Read owner's manual

Then read your owner's manual, especially the sections on seasonal maintenance. Tire pressure, cooling system care and ignition system maintenance are most important for the upcoming months.

Find an open road or a vacant parking lot and run the car at various speeds to evaluate performance of the steering, brakes, shock absorbers and front-end alignment.

Listen for unusual noises such as pings, screeches, groans or rattles and look at the color of the exhaust smoke—if it burns blue or black you could have a problem. If in doubt, consult a mechanic.

If service needed

If service is needed, you should consider a service facility which bears the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE) or Certified Automotive Repairmen's Society (CARS) sign because the mechanics participating have passed comprehensive tests.

You might consider investing in road-service insurance and acquiring a gasoline company credit card to ease financial worries if you should happen to have a mechanical failure on a trip.

If you plan to drive long distances through the snow belt region, you might want to stock your trunk with safety supplies. These would include a flashlight, blankets, road flares, tire chains and long-handled shovel.

A CB radio may be handy for monitoring road conditions and calling for assistance if needed, says the AIC.

Improving Insulation Helps Reduce Home Energy Cost

With adequate insulation, Americans can save 20 to 30 percent of the energy used to heat their homes in winter and about 10 percent of the energy used to cool their homes in summer—with no sacrifice of comfort.

Government and industry standards recognize upgraded insulation as a major way to conserve energy required to power ventilating and cooling installations. Meaningful improvements can be made in existing homes and in those on the drawing boards.

Among the most efficient and cost-effective upgraded insulating materials are polyurethane and chemically related polyisocyanurate foam, which have more thermal resistance, inch for inch, than any other commercially available insulating material.

Available in many forms, polyurethane foam insulation more than pays its way in both initial and operating costs. In addition to helping to reduce fuel consumption, it reduces the need for certain materials in initial construction or in retrofit, and makes possible the use of less costly heating and cooling equipment.

There are many places in a house where polyurethane foam products can be used effectively, such as the walls, roof, ceiling and doors. Some of these products, and the energy-conservation benefits they bring homeowners, were described by Donald M. Durdan, market manager, construction and insulation, Polyurethane Division, Mobay Chemical Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Urethane Sheathing

One-inch thick urethane sheathing has a thermal resistance value about three times as great as wood fiberboard sheathing and about 45 percent greater than extruded polystyrene.

A resistance of R-19 can be achieved with one inch of sheathing in combination with conventional glass fiber batt insulation between 2 × 4 studs, covered on the inside of ½-inch gypsum board, and on the outside by wood clapboard wood shingles, or aluminum, vinyl or masonry siding.

In order to achieve the same R-value with other insulation, door and window extenders, or even 2 × 6 framing would be needed. The sheathing is lightweight, can be cut with a utility knife, is easy to handle, and can be installed by standard methods.

Roof Insulation

As the component of a home that is most severely exposed to the weather, roofs demand secure protection against the transfer of heat and cold, and the potential waste of energy.

On pitched roofs, sheathing panels can be placed over the decking and covered with plywood or nailers. Then shingles or roof tiles are applied the normal way.

On flat roofs, special urethane foam roofing panels, faced with asphaltic skins, can be placed on the decks, after a base felt layer has been applied. Then the panels are covered with a layered, builtup roof, capped with a layer of gravel. On either pitched or flat roofs, urethane insulation can be foamed-in-place.

Foam-Core Doors

Traditional doors have been called one of the home's "most serious energy drains." The average infiltration loss around a closed, well-fitted and weatherstripped door is said to be about 865 BTUs per hour. The loss doubles if there is no weatherstripping.

When it is zero degrees outside and 70 F inside a home, an average of 18,000 BTUs of heat energy—costing 5 to 10 cents—is lost for every minute an exterior door is held open.

A steel door insulated with urethane foam can have a thermal resistance value of R-14.85, or about 6½ times as great as solid wood doors.

A Georgia Institute of Technology study showed that foam-insulated steel doors could cut heat losses by as much as 85 percent compared to other types of doors.

Insulated Siding

Prefinished aluminum siding, backed with a half-inch layer of polyurethane insulation foam, provides an ingenious and cost-effective way of increasing the thermal efficiency of residential structures. Their appearance is upgraded in the process, too.

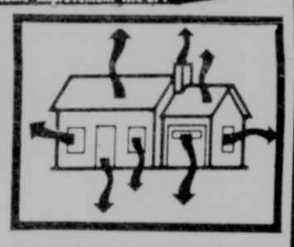
Available in the double-five profile recalling traditional clapboard, the siding can be installed as original finish, or it can cover any existing siding. Panels are deep-embossed to simulate wood grain, and prefinished in a variety of colors with a durable baked-on coating.

The siding permits addition of R-46 insulation to an existing home's walls without the need to tear up walls.

Nailable Urethane

Still another well-insulated building product is nailable urethane composite board. This material consists of a core of rigid closed-cell urethane bonded to a waferboard or another nailable surface on top of an aluminum laminate or an asphalt-coated facer on bottom.

Nailable urethane board provides a secure base for shingles, shakes, lapboards or concrete roof tiles. Standard thicknesses range from 1.2 inches to 4.0 inches, with "R" factor thermal values ranging to 29.4, depending on thickness.



For interior use when insulating exposed beam ceilings, A-frame, cathedral or vaulted ceilings, the nailable surface can be left natural for an attractive rustic appearance.

For the dollar- and comfort-conscious homeowner, energy-effective polyurethane-insulated building products can make an important contribution to satisfying ownership, and to appreciated value when a home is to be sold.

Put snow tires on early

For most of us in snow belt areas, winter means time for snow tires. Have snow tires mounted early enough to save yourself the aggravation of long lines and long waits when the snow flies. And remember that frequent tire air pressure checks are needed during the winter as well as during warmer months. A tire loses one pound of pressure for every 10-degree drop in temperature.

Going to wait until the snow flies before you put snow tires on the car this year? Read what a couple of tire dealers had to say about their business during the first heavy snowfall last year:

"It's crazy. It's nuts. There are people all over the place."

"It's been chaotic around here during the last few days. Many people procrastinate about buying snow tires until the snow actually falls—and then watch out."

"We hope that will help to convince you to make early preparations for winter driving," said Jack B. Scarcliff, director of consumer affairs for The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company. With winter weather only a few flips of the calendar away, Scarcliff offered some basic questions and answers on snow tires as a guide to motorists:

Q. When is the best time to put on snow tires?

A. It depends on the geographical area of the country, but early November is a good rule of thumb. Just be sure to beat the first snowfall to avoid the rush to tire dealers and service stations.

Also, when snow tires are put on or taken off, the regular tires should be rotated for balanced wear.

If snow tires are put on in rather warm weather, motorists should check the air pressure when it gets colder because a tire loses about one pound of air pressure for every 10-degree drop in temperature.

Q. What about radial tires? Don't they provide enough traction so that I don't need snow tires?

A. Because of their generally more aggressive tread designs, ordinary radial tires provide somewhat better traction than their non-radial counterparts on packed or shallow snow, but in deep snow only a winter snow tire will do the job. If you needed snow tires before switching to radial tires, you'll probably continue to need them.

In addition, if you have radial tires on the front, be sure to put radial snow tires on the rear axle. Radials have a quicker steering response than bias-ply tires, as well as different ride characteristics, and it is important for proper car handling to avoid mixing tires of substantially different handling characteristics.

Q. Should separate wheels be purchased for snow tires?

A. It's a good idea so they can remain mounted during storage. It also saves on mounting fees and reduces the possibility of damage that could result from twice-yearly switching. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, you can switch tires in your driveway, a job that takes only a few minutes.

Remember when storing mounted tires that the air pressure should be reduced 10 to 15 pounds, and that mounted or unmounted, tires should be stored in a cool dry place away from direct sunlight.

Q. Can snow tires be rotated?

A. Non-radial snow tires can be rotated to the opposite wheel position, but it is not recommended that radial snow tires be rotated because they may not perform as well if the direction of travel is reversed. To prevent this from happening, have the tires marked with chalk to show their respective positions.

Car care tips

Don't postpone a tune-up of your car simply because it seems to be running okay. Spark plug misfiring you may not notice will cause your engine to drink extra gas.

Even though manual transmissions can help reduce fuel consumption, you may be robbing yourself of this gas-saving advantage by using poor shifting techniques.

Shift into high as quickly as possible. Racing along in second gear can use up to 45 percent more fuel depending on the age and model of your car.

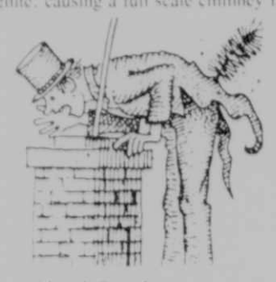
Don't Take Your Chimney for Granted!

Everyone loves the warmth generated by a cozy fireplace or woodstove, but to keep the fire "friendly," it's important to maintain both your woodburning appliance and your chimney.

Studies from the Consumer Product Safety Commission show that home fires related to woodburning most often originate around the chimney or stove pipe. You can avoid the threat of such fires by following a few guidelines:



1. Use only the chimney and stovepipe specified in the installation instructions. Factory-built fireplaces always come with a chimney designed for use as an integrated part of the fireplace system, and stove manufacturers will specify the kind of chimney to be used with their stove. Be sure that the chimney you choose is approved by local code officials.

2. If you are using a metal chimney, make sure it's not installed too close to combustibles. If you've added insulation in your home, check your attic to see that the insulation is not resting up against the chimney.
3. If you are using a masonry chimney, check on the condition of the liner, and also watch for other signs of deterioration.
4. Keep the chimney at least three feet higher than the place where it exits the roof and two feet higher than any roof within 10 feet. (That is a minimum, and it could be increased).
5. Don't overload your chimney by building too large a fire.

But installing the right chimney the right way is just the start. You must also keep that chimney clean to keep it safe.

Creosote is an unavoidable by-product of wood combustion, and as you use your woodburning appliance, creosote will build up on the sides of the chimney and stovepipe. Creosote is highly flammable, and if allowed to build up, it may ignite, causing a full scale chimney fire.

To avoid such fires, have your stovepipe and chimney inspected regularly (especially if you change the kind of wood you burn or if someone new is operating the stove or fireplace), and have the chimney cleaned when creosote accumulates from ⅛ to ¼ inch.

Using chemicals or burning particular kinds of wood, will not prevent the accumulation of creosote. But you can reduce creosote formation with the following burning techniques:

- When lighting a stove or fireplace, make a blazing fire for about 30 minutes to bring all surfaces up to operating temperatures. Some creosote is vaporized during this warm-up period.
- Burn shorter, hot fires as opposed to long smoldering ones.
- When loading fresh fuel, burn it hotter in the beginning. This will wrap each wood piece with a high-temperature charcoal layer and help it burn cleaner.

For more information on chimney safety, write to the Wood Heating Alliance, the trade association for the residential woodburning industry, and request their pamphlet "How Does Your Chimney Stack Up?" Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to WHA, Dept. WB, Suite 700, 1101 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Watch out if working on battery

In a world of precautionary labels, put this one on your "must read" list: stating, simply, DANGER . . . EXPLOSIVE GASES, the warning on your car's battery also says POISON . . . CAUSES SEVERE BURNS.

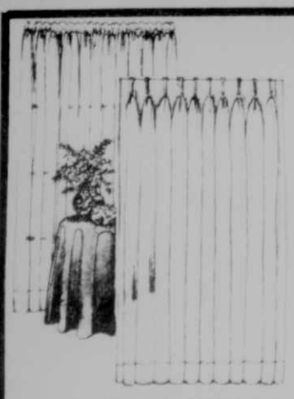
Sound scary? Consider that the battery is a device which uses chemicals to produce electrical energy. In so doing, it creates an explosive mixture of hydrogen and oxygen.

The ill-fated dirigible Hindenburg was filled with hydrogen.

A battery explosion can cause blindness, among other injuries, so the Car Care Council lists six don'ts to remember when you are working around the battery:

1) Don't use a match or cigarette lighter to illuminate what you are doing.

2) Don't lean over the battery when working on it.



3) Don't connect the ground jumper cable to the run-down battery. Instead, hook it to the frame of the car, as far as possible from the battery.

4) Don't be careless when using tools around the battery. You might accidentally make a direct connection from the hot terminal to a grounded part of the car, creating a very hot spark.

5) Don't hook up your battery charger incorrectly. Instead, follow the directions on the charger and be sure to plug in the charger to 110 v. current after you've made your battery connections.

The Council suggests the use of a couple of devices to minimize chance of injury. One is a good battery carrier, properly attached, when it is necessary to move a battery. Spilled acid can cause severe burns to clothing and skin.

The other is safety goggles, so that your eyes are protected from any possible flying acid or, worse, from fragments of an exploding battery case.

Dino's last call; Dolly's bubbly meal

By Cindy Adams

Ring-a-ding! Those who recently called the production office of Smokey Robinson's "Motown Revue" received a welcome jolt. The familiar, purry voice on the other end belonged to Dean Martin. It seems that when Dino dropped by the NBC studio, he snuggled into his old dressing room. Unfortunately, Dino's old dressing room is Smokey's new office.

Dean Martin

Dolly Parton and her ma took a Pan Am breakfast flight to Hawaii. Ma sipped coffee. Dolly sipped champagne. It went well with her Cheerios.

Rex Harrison is competing with his son Noel this fall. As Daddy and Claudette Colbert tour in "Aren't We All?" sonny's off on a 77-city, 32-week tour of "Noises Off." To say ta-ta, Noel's daughter Cathryn and her beau Albert Finney journeyed in from Saratoga, and Noel's wife Maggie trundled down from Maine. There. That's probably all you ever want to know about the Harrisons.

Geraldine Ferraro copped $1 million in a book advance, $30,000 in lecture fees and $500,000 for a soft drink commercial. It only goes to proves there's no such thing as a sore loser.

"Murder, She Wrote" star Angela Lansbury and her husband/manager Peter Shaw recently celebrated their 36th wedding anniversary. ... Olivia Newton-John and her baby-faced husband Matt Lattanzi are expecting a wee Newton-John Lattanzi. ... Meanwhile, Jessica Lange, soon to be seen as country crooner Patsy Cline in "Sweet Dreams," hopes to star in a film with her live-in lover, Sam Shepard, after their baby is born. The film's called "Machine Dreams," a Vietnam war story about a brother and sister — which Jessica and Sam clearly are not.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Jenner hosts a series of televised star wars

By Frank Lovece

Not at all. Not a bit. Well, maybe a little.

Bruce Jenner is examining his feelings about co-hosting "Star Games," the latest in syndicated junk-sports shows. "I feel a litte bit silly about it," Jenner, 36, admits with a disarming and unexpected giggle. "But," the former Olympic decathlete quickly adds, "you have to take these things for what they are. These are not the Olympic Games."

Bruce Jenner

Indeed. "Star Games" is cut from the same cardboard as "Battle of the Stars," "Games People Play" and many other specials in which either everyday people compete in silly ways or extraordinary people (read: celebrities) compete in less-silly ways.

"I really enjoy these kinds of show," Jenner maintains. "They're fun, the people are interesting and it does get competitive. You've got a lot of actors and actresses out there who're very successful at their profession, and they don't want to look bad when they're out on the athletic fields. It seems," Jenner adds, "that all actors want to be athletes and all athletes want to be actors!"

Whatever you call them, "Star Games" boasts many big names competing in various sports. Abetted by co-host Pamela Sue Martin, Jenner presides over 108 celebs kayaking, bicycling and tug-of-warring their way into our living rooms. There's the "General Hospital" team going against the "Fame" and "Gimme a Break" teams; "Falcon Crest" going against "Still the Beaver." Jenner even jockeys with other jocks: Former Chicago Bear Dick Butkus is the official "commissioner" of "Star Games," and Olympians Mark Spitz and Greg Louganis are around for commentary and demonstrations.

The stars of "Star Games" are, of course, the stars. And, according to Jenner, some of them are respectable athletes. "Lorenzo Lamas was very good," Jenner says. "Billy Moses ("Falcon Crest") and Steve Bond ("General Hospital") showed lots of promise. I was surprised!"

Dustin Hoffman donned lipstick and heels when he starred as a struggling actor who hits it big — as a woman — in "Tootsie." The 1982 film, which was nominated for 10 Academy Awards, airs Sunday, Sept. 29 on ABC.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Acting on a whim won Irizarry role

By Kimberly Redmond

I'm crazy about Vincent Irizarry, the handsome hunk who portrays Lujack (Brandon) Luvonecek on "The Guiding Light." Please tell me about him. — T.C., Waverly, N.Y.

Vincent Irizarry

Irizarry was shy as a youngster, and he didn't decide to become an actor until he was in college. An accomplished musician, Irizarry studied classical piano for six years. He readily admits that he didn't work as an actor for the first year he spent in New York City.

Soon after Irizarry began studying at the Lee Strasberg Institute, his career started to pick up. He portrayed Paul McCartney in the off-Broadway musical "Lennon." Soon after, he won the role of Luvonecek; the actor still maintains that his audition for the role was done on a whim.

I think Deidre Hall, who portrays Marlena Evans Brady on "Days of Our Lives," is great. What can you tell me that I don't already know about her? — T.P., Kearneysville, W.Va.

Miss Hall was born in Milwaukee, Wis., but raised in Florida. She hosted her own radio program on WLIZ, and was a disc jockey on WZXT in Palm Beach, Fla. Before joining "Days," she starred as Barbara Anderson on "The Young and the Restless."

Miss Hall recently appeared in the TV movie "A Reason to Live," and has guested on such specials as "Night of 100 Stars II" and "The People's Choice Awards."

THURSDAY

Phylicia Ayers-Allen and Bill Cosby have a lot to smile about — especially since "The Cosby Show" has returned for its second season. This week's episode, "Theo and the Older Woman," airs Thursday, Oct. 3 on NBC.

Kirk Douglas tackles abuse of the elderly

By Marc Minnelli

"Sometimes," Kirk Douglas says, "I make a film and end up with a by-product — an education. After playing Vincent Van Gogh in 'Lust for Life' (1956), I became interested in art and began collecting paintings. When I made 'Holocaust 2000' (a little-known 1977 film about an industrial magnate who decides to build a thermonuclear plant in a Third World country), I became fascinated with the dangers of nuclear power. But with this film," the 69-year-old actor slowly adds, "my education has been steeped in horror — the horror of humanity."

Kirk Douglas

The actor sighs, takes a sip of coffee and allows his statement to permeate the air. Douglas is talking about "Amos," the film in which he plays a disabled senior citizen living in a nursing home where patients are tortured, abused and killed. "Amos," co-starring Elizabeth Montgomery, Dorothy McGuire and Pat Morita, airs Sunday, Sept. 29 on CBS.

"When I read the script, I was certain so much of it had been hyperbolized: the beatings, the mental anguish, the murder. Then I did research and found that the scriptwriters had to tone the story down! I heard of a man who had turpentine poured on his testicles. I heard of a woman who was starved to death in her own home by her son! More than one million elderly people are abused each year," Douglas adds, his voice reaching a feverish crescendo, "both in nursing homes and in their own homes. They are starved, beaten, sexually abused, mentally tortured. I'm not saying this happens at every nursing home — and 'Amos' is not meant to only be a political expose — but the statistics are frightening. Something has to be done!"

Douglas feels "Amos" is the first step. He has since written an editorial for The New York Times ("I'm proud they gave it so much space"), continues to visit nursing homes ("Residents accept degradation to keep a roof over their heads") and is presently mulling over an offer to speak before a congressional hearing on elderly abuse.

"I'm worried that young people won't watch the film," Douglas confesses, "and that's the audience we must hit. Elderly abuse is much more an acute problem for the younger generation because at the end of the century, one out of every four people will be over 60." The actor sighs. "But when you're young, life is eternal. And death? That's something that happens to old people."

Fast walks, good food keep Amy Gibson fit

By Renee Ross

Amy Gibson used to swing a mean golf club. "When I was growing up, I played golf every day of my life," the actress says. "For a while, I even considered going into golf professionally."

Amy Gibson

When she turned 18, however, Miss Gibson decided to trade in the fairway for the small screen. She's currently stars as Alana Anthony on the CBS soap "The Young and the Restless."

Despite giving up golf, the actress's fitness plans fit her to a T. She swims, takes weekly jazz dance workouts and sports an interest in boxing.

"I've always found boxing and wrestling intriguing," she explains. "I'm an avid fan. When I was younger, I'd make sure I was home by midnight on Saturday night so I could watch wrestling on TV," adds the actress, who describes her age as "somewhere between high school and having a master's degree."

Like most fitness fans, Miss Gibson admits to exercise ups and downs. "I go through times when I work out a great deal," she says. "Other times I can be very lazy. Exercise is tough, but you feel great when you've done it."

The 5-foot-6, 118-pound actress is also a firm believer in good nutrition. "I was brought up with the saying 'You are what you eat,'" she recalls. "I've always been careful about food. I now work with a nutritionist who guides me.

Miss Gibson claims that the heavy makeup she is required to wear "tortures" her delicate skin. "When I work from 6 a.m. through 7 p.m. and wear lots of makeup, my skin is ready to crack. When I'm home, I steam my face a lot. And I just had my first professional facial. It was quite a nice luxury. I also find that it helps to switch skin care products from time to time because they don't seem to work on your skin after a while."

The actress credits the soap's crew for helping her maintain a trim figure. "They don't keep junk food around," she says, "just fruit. I usually have a yogurt for lunch and feel like I'm in heaven. Sometimes I'll take a lunchtime walk, and I find it helps me digest and feel lighter when it's time to go back to work."

Now that the actress moved to an oceanside home in Malibu, Calif., she looks forward to a new health routine. "My boyfriend and I plan to do fast walking on the beach," she explains. "I figure if I do 30 minutes of rapid walking, then swim, it'll be good for me."

Jackson knows the insides of show biz

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — When the new ABC series "The Insiders" premiered last week, audiences met Nicholas Campbell and Stoney Jackson. The actors play journalists who will stop at nothing for a good story — and that usually means battling an occasional criminal.

Stoney Jackson

"But we're not 'Miami Vice,'" insists Jackson, 25, who plays Mackey. "We're not trying to bust anybody. We're just after a good story."

Jackson says he relates to his character because "he has everything going for him. It gives me a chance to show off many sides of myself."

And there are many sides to show. When you first meet Jackson, it's easy to mistake him for a familiar rock 'n' roll performer.

"It destroys me when people say I look like Prince," the actor sighs. "He's five feet tall and has problems with his sexuality. He doesn't know if he's a man or a woman. I don't have any such problem."

But like Prince, Jackson has a few secrets. He won't reveal his real first name, but he'll quickly tell how he acquired his nickname. The actor's grandfather called him Stonewall Jackson; that moniker, in turn, was shortened to Stoney. "I use my real name on charge cards," Jackson explains, "but even my passport is made out to Stoney Jackson."

Jackson was born in Dinwiddie, a suburb of Richmond, Va. As a child, he frequently traveled with his physician-father — the actor remembers attending schools in Florida, Maryland and Virginia. Eventually, Jackson began thinking of an acting career, and that dream influenced his father's choice of a new assignment.

"My father had been at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla.," Jackson says. "For his post, he had a choice of Spain, the Phillippines or California. I wanted to study acting, so I talked him into coming to Long Beach, Calif."

While Jackson was a high-school senior, Jackson's father paid for a three-month commercial acting course. He appeared in more than a dozen commercials — "I didn't stop doing them until a few years ago" — before making his series debut as a drug addict in an episode of "Quincy." He eventually won the role of basketball player Jesse Mitchell in the series "The White Shadow." Now he has an even bigger break.

Something strange is going on at the Sunset Nursing Home, and Amos Lasher (Kirk Douglas) is going to find out what it is — even if it kills him — in "Amos." The made-for-TV movie, co-starring Elizabeth Montgomery and Pat Morita, airs Sunday, Sept. 29 on CBS.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I'm a big fan of Jameson Parker, the actor who plays A.J. on "Simon & Simon." Could you tell me about him? Also, where can I get a photo of the actor? — J.H., Henderson, N.C.

Jameson Parker

Parker starred on two soap operas before scoring with "Simon & Simon." He played Dale Robinson on "Somerset" before moving onto "One Life to Live," in which he portrayed Brad Vernon. Parker has also made guest appearances on several series, including "Hart to Hart" and "Family." He made his film debut in "The Bell Jar" (1979) and has also been seen in "A Small Circle of Friends" and "White Dog." Parker's TV-movie credits include "Women at West Point," "Anatomy of a Seduction" and "The Promise of Love."

Parker's father was in the foreign service. The actor was born in Baltimore, but he spent most of his youth in Belgium, Germany and Switzerland. He is married and the father of two sons. For a photo, try writing to the actor c o "Simon & Simon," Universal Studios, Universal City, CA 91604.

When I was young, my favorite show was "Emergency." Is there a chance it will be rerun soon? — K.L.Z., Jamestown, N.Y.

"Emergency," starring Robert Fuller, Julie London, Bobby Troup and Randolph Mantooth, was first telecast on NBC Jan. 22, 1972. The show ran until Sept. 3, 1977.

"Emergency" is in reruns; it probably isn't shown in your area. Why don't you write to a TV station in a nearby city (Buffalo, perhaps?) and see what can be done. Good luck.

I love Eydie Gorme! Please give me her address. — R.C.M., Hammond, Ind.

Randolph Mantooth

Energy Saving Heat Pumps Bring Year-Round Comfort

Although the electricity heat pump is not a new concept, it has gained popularity in recent years due to its versatility and low operating cost. A heat pump is quite simply the most energy efficient heating system on the market today. And it's cheaper than oil and comparable to gas. The fact that a heat pump provides both heating and air conditioning for your home, makes the heat pump an ideal year-round space conditioning system.

Unlike other heating systems, the heat pump transfers existing heat that is available in the outdoor air to the inside of your house, rather than creating heat from an energy source like gas, oil or electricity. Because it uses existing heat, a heat pump produces more heating energy than the electric energy used to run the system. In other words, heat pumps can produce anywhere from 1.7 to 2.0 units of heat energy or more for each unit of electric energy consumed.

There are two basic types of heat pumps, the add-on and the conventional heat pump system.

An add-on heat pump operates in sequence with your existing gas, oil, or electric furnace so that each unit performs in its most efficient mode. Heat pumps operate in winter most efficiently at temperatures above 30° F. Gas and oil furnaces in particular operate most efficiently at low temperatures, since they run longer and more frequently than at high temperatures. During most of the winter, the temperature is above 30° F, allowing you to save money with the heat pump. The relatively few hours on cold days when temperatures drop below freezing, the heat pump cuts off and the gas, oil, or electric furnace takes over. You can see the advantages of energy savings and lower energy bills with the add-on heat pump.

The add-on heat pump in the summer operates like a conventional air conditioner. So you have year-round comfort and economy.

A popular alternative to the add-on heat pump is the complete conventional system. With this system, if the outdoor temperatures drop below freezing, the heat pump compressor keeps running and uses electric resistance heaters for supplemental heat.

Many heat and air conditioning systems can be improved by either converting to a heat pump or installing an add-on heat pump. If you are considering adding central air conditioning, replacing your existing central air conditioner or furnace, building a new home, or just want to save energy and money, think first about a heat pump.

If you currently have a gas, oil, or electric furnace, or are building a new home, a heat pump will significantly reduce your heating costs. During the winter season in, for instance, the Washington, D.C. area, the electric heat pump should demonstrate a Seasonal Performance Factor (SPF) of at least 1.7 for standard and over 2.0 for high efficiency models. That means for every unit of electric energy supplied to run a heat pump, at least 1.7 units of heat energy will be produced by the heat pump. A Seasonal Performance Factor of 2.0 indicates two units of heat are produced for each unit of energy supplied to the heating system. Another way to present this is as a percentage, with 2.0 equivalent to a system having an efficiency of 200%. Electric resistance heat has an SPF of 1.0 or one unit of electric energy results in one unit of heat energy supplied, or 100% efficiency. Oil and gas furnaces always have SPF's of less than 1.0 and usually with efficiencies between 50% and 70%.

The following table illustrates the potential average savings achieved by converting an electric, oil, or gas furnace to a heat pump system. It shows conventional heat pumps are less expensive to operate than oil, gas, or electric furnaces. It also shows that the addition of a heat pump to an existing oil or gas furnace results in even greater all around savings.

SYSTEM TYPE	ESTIMATED ANNUAL OPERATING COST
Electric Resistance	$810
Oil Furnace	$760
Gas Furnace	$475
Heat Pump	$475
Oil Furnace with Add-on Heat Pump	$430
Gas Furnace with Add-on Heat Pump	$360

*System Seasonal efficiencies as follows: Oil 65%, Gas 61%, Heat Pump 1.7 (SPF).
NOTE: These figures are based on a properly insulated 1,650 square foot home assuming a heating season normal to the Washington, D.C. area.

Of course, the heating bill for your home will also depend on such factors as how well insulated your home is, how warm you keep it, and the general lifestyle of your household. But all things considered, heat pumps can save money.

Summer Operation

In the summer, the heat pump functions like a regular air conditioning system to remove your home cool and dry. This is accomplished by taking advantage of the scientific principle that heat flows from hot areas to cooler ones.

During the summer, the refrigerant in the indoor coil is made cooler than the indoor air temperature. The heat in the house will flow into the refrigerant as indoor air passes over the indoor coil, cooling the air to be distributed within the house. The heat which has been absorbed by the refrigerant is then compressed and pumped to the outdoor coil.

The refrigerant will transfer the heat at the outdoor coil, which is hotter than the outdoor air. Again, heat flows from hot areas to cooler areas. The cycle starts all over again as the refrigerant flows to the indoor coil. This is how heat is removed from your home.

Winter Operation

In winter, a heat pump keeps your home comfortably warm at the same time that it provides you with substantial savings on your heating bills.

It does this by relying on the fact that there is heat available in the outdoor air until the temperature reaches −460° F. Even at 0° F, the outside air contains over 80% of the heat that is available at 100° F.

The heat pump takes advantage of the solar heat available in the air to heat your home. The heat pump is changed from an air conditioner to a heating system through a reversing valve that changes the refrigerant flow. In the heating mode, the outdoor coil contains refrigerant which is colder than the outdoor air (usually 20 to 30° F colder). A fan blows outdoor air across the coil where heat is absorbed by the refrigerant. Again, the process relies on the scientific principle that heat energy flows from a warmer place to a cooler place.

Once the refrigerant has picked up the heat energy from the outdoor air, the refrigerant temperature increases. This is taking advantage of another principle of physics.

Once the refrigerant temperature has increased, it is pumped to the indoor coil. The heat is then released into your home heating duct system by a fan blowing across the indoor coil.

Balance Points

As the outdoor temperature decreases, there is less heat available in the outdoor air for your home. The point at which the total heating requirement for your home cannot be met by the heat pump alone. This temperature is called the "balance point."

ADD-ON HEAT PUMP. The balance is manually set by the contractor when add-on heat pump systems are installed. Once set, the system will automatically switch from the heat pump to the furnace as the outdoor temperature drops below the balance point. This combination of systems allows optimum performance from both the heat pump and the backup system.

CONVENTIONAL HEAT PUMP. When the outdoor temperature drops below the balance point, electric resistance heaters are switched on automatically to supplement the heat pump and keep you comfortable. Even with the supplemental resistance heat, a properly designed and installed heat pump system should have an operating cost less than your current system. In fact, a heat pump will have a total owning and operating cost which is competitive with any heating system.

Retrofitting

If you have a central air conditioner in your home or forced hot air heating, you are an excellent candidate for a heat pump system. There are two different heat pump systems that can be installed in your home.

The first system is an add-on heat pump. You can install an add-on system if your furnace is in good operating condition, and your existing air conditioner is old and needs replacement. An add-on can also make sense if you are adding central air conditioning to your home. The add-on heat pump will cool your home efficiently in the summer and heat your home very efficiently down to about 30° F in the winter. Below 30° F, your existing furnace takes over and the heat pump shuts off.

The second heat pump system is a total conversion of your existing heating and cooling system to a conventional heat pump. The best time to convert to a heat pump is when both your furnace and air conditioner are about ready for replacement or you wish to add air conditioning to your home that has an old furnace.

In either system, your ductwork may need some changes to handle the air flow required for a heat pump. Your heating contractor will be able to tell you if your existing ductwork is adequate.

Heat pumps, like all heating systems, work more efficiently in houses that are well insulated and weatherized. Therefore, when adding a heat pump system, it is a good time to make sure your home has adequate insulation, storm windows, caulking, and weatherstripping.

INSULATION

Installing Insulation is Easy, Do-It-Yourself Project

Homeowners will find that installing home insulation is an easy, do-it-yourself project, that even the inexperienced handyman can accomplish in a weekend, says Charles Hartmann, market manager of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation's Insulation Operating Division.

The only tools required are a sharp knife, a straight-edge, a ruler, and a pair of work gloves and safety glasses. Installation is simply a matter of measuring the area to be insulated, cutting the material to fit, and laying it in place between the home's structural framing members.

"With a little practice most homeowners will be surprised at how quickly and easily the entire procedure can be completed," Mr. Hartmann says. What's more, he adds, "today's blanket or batt type insulation products, available with or without vapor barriers, take most of the guesswork out of achieving the proper R-value or thickness, thus assuring the homeowner of achieving exactly the thermal performance for which he is paying."

First Step—Measure

The very first step in the installation process is to measure how much material will be needed, says Mr. Hartmann. This simply involves measuring the length of and width of the area to be insulated and multiplying these two dimensions to determine the square footage amount of material required.

After the square footage has been calculated, the next step is to determine how wide the insulation should be. Since insulation is usually installed between structural framing members such as joists or studs, the home owner will discover that the space between these members almost always measures a constant (22½-inches or 14½-inches)—depending on local building codes and age of the dwelling. (Studs and joists are installed on either 24-inch or 16-inch centers in virtually all conventional U.S. "frame" construction configurations.) Therefore, the typical home insulation project will require a material that is designated either 24 to 23-inches or 16 to 15-inches in width.

Having determined the required square footage and width, the final step is to determine whether a vapor barrier will be needed and the proper insulation thickness or R-value.

If the area to be insulated already has some insulation, which might be the case with an attic, un-faced insulation—insulation without a vapor barrier should be used. If there is no existing insulation, a material faced with either a kraft paper or aluminum foil vapor barrier should be installed. In either case, the homeowner will find that building material outlets carry an ample supply of both faced and unfaced material.

As for determining the proper R-value, Mr. Hartmann advises homeowners to check with their local utility or Fiberglas building materials retailer. "Both of these sources are prepared to offer valuable advice in selecting the right R-value for the right climate and area of the home to be insulated."

Second Step—Installing the Insulation

After you've decided what areas of your home to insulate, taken the necessary measurements and purchased the proper type and thickness of material, you're ready to get down to work! Following, is a step-by-step, do-it-yourself guide to insulating six critical areas of the home against winter heat loss and summer heat gain:

- Unfloored/unfinished attics
- Finishing attics to living areas
- Walls between heated and unheated areas
- Basement walls
- Floors above unheated crawl spaces
- Masonry walls in heated crawl spaces

Insulating Unfloored/Unfinished Attics

Insulating an unfinished or unfloored attic is perhaps the most popular do-it-yourself insulation project.

Begin by laying a piece of temporary flooring, a plank or section of ½-inch plywood should suffice. Leave the insulation in the bags or rolls until you're ready to use it, since insulation is packaged in a compressed state and will expand once the package is opened.

Start laying the Fiberglas insulation at the outer edges of the attic and work towards the center. This allows more headroom for whatever cutting and fitting procedures are required. You might find that a long handled "push" broom will prove helpful in extending the insulation to the edges of the attic.

Lay in the long runs first and place the left-overs aside for filling up the smaller spaces later. Where you encounter wiring, push the insulation under. Be sure to butt each individual section of insulation tightly up against the adjacent section for a complete barrier.

Be careful when you extend the insulation to the edges of the attic so that you don't block the flow of air from eave vents—if your home has them. You might even find it useful to install baffle boards at the inside of the eaves to keep from blocking these vents.

The space between the chimney and wood framing should be filled with an un-faced material. If you're installing insulation with a vapor barrier, simply tear off the facing. Also, be sure to keep insulation a minimum of 3-inches from recessed light fixtures.

If you are reinsulating over existing insulation, and the joist cavity is already filled with the original material, the new layer can be layed at right angles to the joists for a particularly snug thermal barrier.

Insulating Finished Attics

If you want to convert your attic to living space, the new wall and ceiling area must be insulated.

After you've constructed the knee walls along the sides of the attic and collar beams at the desired ceiling height, you're ready to insulate. Install the batts between the collar beams and rafters with the vapor barrier facing in towards the warm-in-winter side. Use a separate piece of insulation for these areas, since trying to fit a continuous length of insulation where beams and rafters meet could result in hard-to-fill gaps. Finally, again being sure the vapor barrier faces in towards the living space, install Fiberglas insulation in end and knee walls. Stuff left-over pieces around window framing.

Insulating Walls Between Heated and Unheated Spaces

Insulating walls in an existing home is usually a job for a professional contractor, since the stud cavities are not accessible. But in those cases where an exterior wall has been left unfinished, as is often the case with walls between a house and an attached unheated garage, insulation can be installed in the stud cavity—with the vapor barrier facing towards the warm in winter side of wall.

Insulating Basement Walls

A surprising amount of energy is lost through basement walls. To insulate these walls, begin by installing a framework of furring strips or studs to masonry surface. Nail the bottom plate directly to the floor and the top plate to the joists above; the furring or studs, then can be nailed to this framework, either 24 or 16-inches on-center.

Install the insulation between the studs much the way you'd insulate an above-grade wall. If you're using a faced material, staple the flange on the facing to the strips or studs, with the facing towards the warm in winter side of the wall. If you're using an unfaced material, install a separate vapor barrier such as polyethylene film or foil backed gypsum board.

Be sure to cut a separate piece of insulation to fit the band joist between the top plate and the sub-floor.

Insulating Floors Above Unheated Crawl Spaces

Floors above unheated crawl spaces are frequently a source of uncomfortable drafts—and energy waste. To insulate these areas, slip insulation batts between the floor joists with the vapor barrier facing up towards the warm in winter side; the insulation will remain in place temporarily. Begin at one end of wall and install wire mesh (chicken wire works nicely) perpedicular to the floor joists to permanently hold the insulation in place. In lieu of wire mesh, use "tiger teeth" or crisscrossed wire strung between nails to secure the insulation.

Be sure the insulation fits snuggly up against the band joist and overlaps the bottom plate.

Insulating Masonry Walls in Heated Crawl Spaces

Begin by measuring and cutting small pieces of insulation to fit snuggly against the band joist. Using longer furring strips, nail vertical lengths of insulation batts to the sill; make sure the lengths of insulation are long enough to

Getting Ready for the Bird Feeding Season

Fall in the air means that soon the birds will be swarming back to our winter feeders. Now is the time to get feeding stations ready, and here are three things we can do:

1. Clean up used feeders. I've been feeding birds all summer, and have just cleaned up the suet feeder, a couple of tubular plastic feeders (which I use for niger seed), my hummingbird feeder, and a large feeding table. With the caked-on dirt off the feeders I (and the birds) can see the seed. Also, with a clean feeder, there's little chance (though chances are very slim anyway) that birds visiting my yard could possibly pick up some disease from fungi collected in the feeders' nooks and crannies during the warm, wet summer months. Occasional cleaning is good practice.

How to clean: Usually a mild detergent and a bottle brush is enough, but the caked-on debris may need a good soaking. You might want to invest (as I have) in plastic feeders that come apart and are easy to clean. Rinse very well. I gave my hummingbird feeder an especially thorough going-over and put it away for the winter.

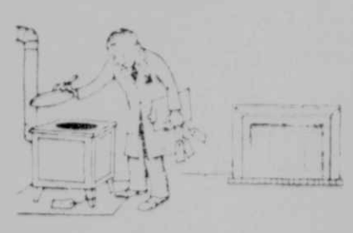
2. Buy some new feeders. You may want to try to correct some of the feeder problems you encountered last winter.

—Attracting certain birds. If some large, greedy birds such as grackles and blue jays hogged your feeders and drove smaller birds away, try the tubular feeder I've spoken of before. It lets you vary the size of—or completely remove—the perches. Short perches (or none) discourage the bigger birds and are convenient for the smaller ones. Chickadees, titmice, nuthatches, woodpeckers and a few of the smaller finches need no perch at all.

—Squirrels and other animals. A pole-mounted feeder is one of the best ways to thwart squirrels, especially if it is equipped with a baffle above and/or below the feeder and if the pole is placed a distance from tree branches and overhanging eaves that make springboards for the squirrels. A slightly costlier feeder, equipped with a spring or an adjustable counterbalancing mechanism, closes up under the weight of squirrels and large birds but is not triggered shut when lightweight birds land.

3. Make some new feeders. Making feeders is a great family or neighborhood project (either following printed plans or designing your own). This is a very inexpensive way to provide food stations for birds.

—A feeding table. Simply provide an open, shallow area set 1 to 1½ feet off the ground. All kinds of wildlife will feed, including a number of birds such as juncos, blue jays and mourning doves that won't visit a hanging feeder.



—A plastic bleach-bottle feeder. On each side of a bleach bottle, 2 inches from the base, cut two feeding ports large enough (perhaps 3" by 3") for birds to fly into. Put several small drainage holes in the bottom and hang from a wire strung through two tiny holes in the bottle's neck. Not as beautiful as a redwood feeder perhaps, but efficient. It will last a lot longer than a plastic milk or juice container which is apt to be affected by sun and/or cold.

Woodburning Safety Checklist

Using wood for home heating is helping many Americans save energy dollars these days. You may already be heating with wood or considering the purchase of a woodstove or fireplace. But before you make a selection or start that first fire, consult the Wood Heating Alliance's safety checklist to ensure the safety of your home and your family.

- Choose an appliance that has been safety-tested by a recognized, listed authority.
- Check fire and building codes for recommended installation procedures and clearance standards.
- Follow all manufacturer's instructions and clearance requirements exactly.
- Use the correct materials to vent your appliance. (Woodstoves and factory-built fireplaces require Class A, All-Fuel Chimneys.)
- If you are venting a new fireplace or woodstove through an existing masonry chimney, have it inspected first.
- Don't burn treated woods, liquids, or trash.

- Keep all combustibles away from your heating appliances.
- Have your chimney cleaned and inspected regularly, and burn small, hot fires to reduce creosote build-up.

The Wood Heating Alliance has a free booklet for woodburners called "Wood—Nature's Housewarming Gift." For your copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to WHA, Dept WB, Suite 700, 1101 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Time Is Running Out, Take Advantage Of Insulation Tax Credit Now

If you're thinking of adding additional insulation to your home, the CertainTeed Home Institute recommends that you do it now so you can still take advantage of the insulation tax credit. The credit, which equals 15 percent of the first $2,000 invested, up to a maximum of $300, expires December 31, 1985. The credit applies to fiber glass insulation as well as other types of attic or sidewall insulation; caulking; weatherstripping; storm windows and doors; modified flue openings; automatic furnace ignition systems; clock thermostats; and other energy conservation products.

To qualify, products must have been purchased and installed in a principal place of residence built prior to April 20, 1977. The residence may be a single family home, condominium or co-operative.

Renters (as well as owners) are eligible for the tax credit, as long as they pay for the insulation themselves. Vacation homes are excluded.

The 15 percent of the first $2,000 invested refers to materials and labor costs of a contractor. The credit is subtracted from the final amount of a resident's Federal tax liability. It is not a deduction, but a credit off the bottom line.

For more information, consult your local Internal Revenue Service office, or write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, for a free brochure which explains the tax credit in more detail.

Prepare Your Home's Exterior Metal Surfaces For Winter

Without his trusty can of oil, the tinman would never have ventured out into the rain. During the winter, don't let your home's metal surfaces face the snow and rain without protection either. The National Paint and Coatings Association suggests that you consider the following surfaces when you weatherproof for the winter months: drain pipes, down spouts, gutters, and window frames.

Most metal used on home exteriors today is aluminum. On some homes, however, the above mentioned surfaces are constructed out of steel. As the painting treatment of steel and aluminum differs, it is important to ascertain which type of metal you are working with before beginning to paint.

Begin rehabilitating steel surfaces by checking for rust spots. Using a wire brush or rough grade sandpaper, remove the rust. Repair damaged seams and holes with specially formulated caulks. Caulks can be applied with a "caulking gun" or with a putty knife or spatula.

To lengthen the life of aluminum surfaces, use a paint thinner to remove surface oil and dirt. A good metal primer followed with two finish coats will insure a tough, weather resistant surface. When repainting aluminum, spot prime areas where paint has peeled and recoat with a suitable exterior paint.

If the surface to be painted is made of steel, more than likely it has been galvanized at the factory. Galvanizing steel involves coating the surface with molten zinc. The zinc barrier which results from this process strengthens the steel while providing a corrosion-resistant surface. When possible, allow new galvanized steel gutters to remain unpainted for six months. This allows chemicals that protect the steel during storage.

After a period of natural weathering galvanized steel surfaces should be painted. Apply a zinc based primer or a primer specially formulated for galvanized steel surfaces. Follow the prime coat with a coat of exterior paint.

Peat Company Makes Last-Ditch Effort In Struggle For Survival

by Bernice Kepple

A fight for survival against outside opposition from a large, powerful environmentalist group is being waged by Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation, a small, locally owned business which has been in operation near Bittinger for 22 years. This opposition is coming from the Sierra Club, a national environmental organization whose Potomac chapter alone numbers 10,000 members in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. GCP&P's product is peat moss, harvested from the bog and sold as a mulch, plant food, and soil conditioner.

The company is the only one of its kind in Maryland, but to the Sierra Club, the business built up over the years by the owners and the five to six jobs created for local workers by the company is unimportant. James Dougherty of the Sierra Club calls the bog "an 18,000-year-old national treasure and an ecological diamond" that should not be disturbed. The Sierra Club's Potomac Chapter Conservation Chairman, Donald S. Goldbloom, said that those few jobs are unimportant compared to the age of the bog. "We'll do anything we can to keep them from mining that area," Goldbloom said.

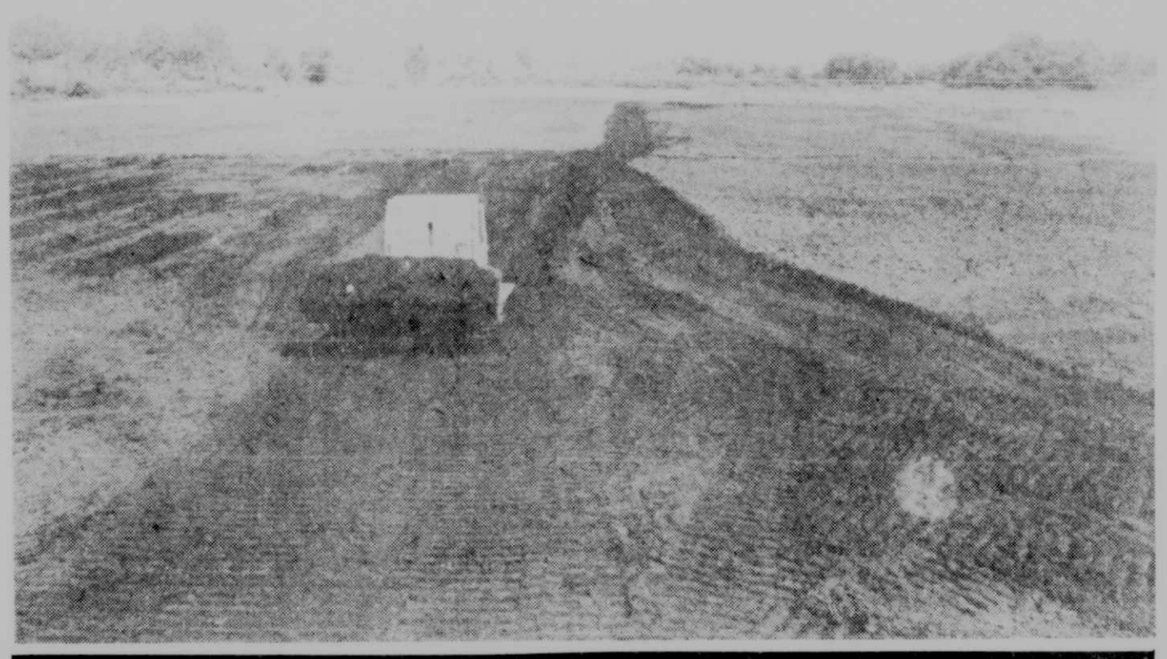
Owners of the company feel that other issues are at stake as well, such as a person's right to make a living with his property and the question of exactly what constitutes environmental damage, and whether or not the peat is being "mined", as the Sierra Club contends, or "harvested", which is what the company owners feel they have been doing all these years.

GCP&P board member and manager Ken Buckel gave a moving speech at the combined Garrett/Allegany Farm Bureau dinner and meeting last Thursday at Bittinger explaining the difficulties experienced by the company since the first of this year. Despite mass coverage by the news media, the Garrett and Allegany Farm Bureau members present were surprised to hear Buckel's account of the company's problems with the Sierra Club and how helpless the company is in this fight.

Attending this dinner meeting were Jack Miller, Farm Bureau's legislative lobbiest in Annapolis, Delegate George Edwards, and Senator John Bambacus. In response to questions from the audience, these officials suggested that the most effective way to help GCP&P would be with a letter campaign to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency. They stressed that Farm Bureau is the largest farm organization in Maryland and that letters from their members and directors might help the company in its fight to stay in business. (See suggested addresses inside box on this page.)

Buckel gave as background information the fact that peat in the bog was harvested by a family company from 1963 until 1983 when the 410 acre tract was sold at auction to settle the family estate. GCP&P, formed by some of those family members, bought the bog area for $270,000, outbidding the Maryland Nature Conservancy, which was interested in obtaining the bog.

Also interested in the bog, which carbondating shows to be more than 18,000 years old, was the Sierra Club which wanted to save it for scientific study. The club accused the company of not having the necessary permits and not complying with state and federal water protection laws. In April, the Sierra Club filed suit in U.S. District Court in Baltimore and in Garrett County Circuit Court in Oakland.



The suits were filed against the Department of Natural Resources, the Water Resources Administration, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and Environmental Programs, saying that those agencies had not correctly enforced the law. According to the suit, GCP&P had failed to comply with any of the permit requirements imposed by the Maryland Environmental Health Code, the Maryland Surface Mining Act, or the Maryland Natural Resources Code. Buckel explained that in their many years of operation, those permits had never before been required.

In July the company was all but shut down for the remainder of its harvest season due to charges by the Environmental Protection Agency saying they were violating the Federal Clean Water Act by harrowing or raking the peat. The EPA said the company must apply for a federal grading and filling permit because the harrowing process constitutes filling a waterway. They also charge that smoothing out lumps of peat can be interpreted as grading and leveling and requires the federal permit.

HARVESTING PEAT UNDER REGULATIONS — The first step in the peat harvest is to take off the vegetation and brush from as large an area of bog as possible. The larger the area, the more peat can be dried and harvested at one time. The company presently has two 10-15 acre plots in the harvesting process, one they own and one they lease on adjoining property. Under the brush, the top six to 18 inches are a dark, rich humus, harvested and sold as top-dressing for golf courses. This humus does not have as many nutrients and is lower in organic content than the peat. The organic content in humus is 70-75 percent, while in peat the organic content is over 75 percent. The peat is found next, in varying depths from six to nine feet. This peat is harvested a few inches at a time. Normally, the top four to six inches are harrowed several times so that it dries somewhat. The EPA charges that this harrowing is violating the Clean Water Act because when the peat is harrowed some particles fall back into the removal site, thus causing filling, and the company has been ordered to stop harrowing. The above photo shows an area that had been harrowed once before being ordered to stop. Instead of harrowing, the company is now required to scoop up several inches of peat (below), haul it to an area outside the bog, and spread it out to dry. The company had plans to harvest 80 acres at the most in the future, and the entire bog involves about 450 acres.

THE GLADES OF GARRETT COUNTY have many boggy areas like the one pictured above, owned by Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation, near Bittinger. Some cover what once were stagnant lakes and vegetation, which over the centuries have turned into peat. The bog stays wet, like a sponge, holding water and growing only scrub plants and bushes. The peat moss harvesting has been the only industry to grow out of these unproductive wetlands. In the picture below, on the left, is an area that was being harvested at the time the law suits were filed by the Sierra Club. On the right is an area where harvesting was completed. The first water that covers a harvested area brings with it native plant seeds which replenish the ground cover in one season, and the wetland remains with the same vegetation and water quality.

"Aging. It's just as important to beer as it is to wine."

Aging gives beer "balance." Just the right combination of flavors and aromas necessary to give beer its character.

Coors thinks aging is so important, they age their beer longer than any other major brewer. Almost twice as long.

Coors takes the extra time to age out a lot of the heaviness, a lot of the bitter after-taste you'll find in many other beers. And this gives you a beer with a difference worth tasting.

A beer that's a little less heavy, never bitter, but with all the spirit of a great beer.

Take Five

Ever notice the number of breaks a band takes while playing during an evening? Sitting out awhile refreshes them and brings them back eager to play more and better too.

By the same token, few of us can work around the clock at our best without pausing for rest and refreshment. As weeks turn into months, irritations and problems have a way of multiplying. We need a place where we can turn to renew our strength.

Just as there are band-stands, where musicians join together to perform music, the churches throughout our land serve as a central location where all may join together in the sharing of their faith. The Christian hope is the theme song, and our everyday lives are the unique instruments.

For a refreshing spiritual uplift, why not attend services this week?

TAKING NON-PRESCRIPTION DRUGS? SEE YOUR PHARMACIST

This is the theme that all pharmacists around the entire country are stressing this week. Why is it important? Because, many drugs that do not require a doctor's prescription can be dangerous and your pharmacist is qualified to advise and counsel you in the use of such over the counter drugs.

Of course, self-medication is only indicated with simple ailments and should never be attempted when there is the possiblity of something more serious. We will never hesitate to recommend that you consult your doctor if we feel that you may be doing yourself a disservice by continuing with a non-prescription drug.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SUPERHUMAN

September 29, 1985

Background Scripture: Ephesians 4:17 through 5:20.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 5:3-20.

Nothing is more hurtful to the image of Christianity than the naive failure to realize that Christians are human beings and therefore subject to the same frailties, temptations, experiences of failure that are common to the whole human race. Anyone who has ever read the epistles of Paul and the Book of Acts must realize that the earliest Christians were human beings, not cardboard saints. Paul and Peter had some pointed conflicts; the church at Corinth was divided into factions; immorality in various churches brought strong admonitions and protests from some of the apostles; and so on.

There's an old cliche about not staying away from church because it's filled with hypocrites, for there's always room for one more! Yes, there's lots of room for hypocrisy in the church and lots of other sins and sinners as well. As someone has said, the Church is not a club for saints, but a school for sinners.

YOUR OLD NATURE

At the same time we must acknowledge the human nature that is the common lot of all of us, we are called also to improve considerably upon our human nature. Yes, we are all sinners and there is no one truly righteous, but the writer of Ephesians also calls us to "Put off your old nature which belongs to your former manner of life..." (4:23). If we are followers of Christ, we are called to give up our old way of living "and put on the new nature."

What does that mean? Ephesians gives us some clear indications: avoid falsehood, "do not let the sun go down on your anger, "do not steal, talk evilly, avoid "all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander."

But it is not enough to give up the "old nature," Ephesians calls us to "put on the new nature, created after the likeness of God..." or as the Jerusalem Bible puts it, "put on the new self." And the new self is specified in being "kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you."

REVOLUTION!

The Jerusalem Bible helps us to understand that what is called for here is not just a few band aids: "Your mind must be renewed by a spiritual revolution so that you can put on the new self" (4:23, 24). A spiritual revolution! That's what's needed in many of us. Too often I assume that I need to make a few little changes here and there: a little more love, a little more faith, a smidgen more of kindness, and so on.

But that isn't what God wants of me, I'm afraid. What he wants—and I'm so reluctant to let him have—is a revolution, a spiritual revolution that will enable me, not to play church, but "walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself for us..."

Yes, we are human. But Christ calls us to be more than human—as he was and is.

Insight Into Education

THE GARRETT COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION
by Dr. Jerome J. Ryscavage
Garrett County Superintendent of Schools

Perhaps a vast majority of the Garrett County public knows of the "Board of Education" in that the Board is often referred to in everyday conversation and Board activities are often reported in the newspapers and on the radio. Oftentimes, however, the public is confused as to: (1) who the Board of Education is, and (2) what it is that they do or don't do for our schools. Hopefuly, this article will clarify these two points to some degree.

The Garrett County Board of Education, like each local Board of Education in the State of Maryland, is authorized by State law. This is done, in part, because the Constitution of the United States made no direct reference to education and, as a result, public education was assumed as a responsibility of the states. Most states, through various State laws, delegated much of this responsibility to local school districts - in our case much of this responsibility was delegated to the Garrett County Board of Education.

The Garrett County Board of Education is composed of five residents of the county who are elected to their positions. Three of these members are elected to their positions on a County Commissioner district basis. Currently the board chairman, Earl Clark, was elected from Commissioner District Three, Dr. Leo O'Neill, vice-chairman, was elected from District One, and Mrs. Beverely Ann Murphy, associate member, was elected from District Two. The other two associate members, Mrs. Anna Mary Fratz and William Goldsborough, are the two members who represent the county-at-large. State law stipulates the qualifications for these positions, the procedure for electing members and filling vacancies, and the method for removing members from office. The Superintendent of Schools is an ex-officio member of the Board of Education in that although the superintendent serves as both the secretary and treasurer of the Board of Education he has no authority to vote on motions.

Much of the confusion about "who" the Board of Education is stems from knowing the difference between the elected Board members and the paid staff of the Board of Education beginning with its chief executive, the Superintendent of Schools. The elected Board of Education basically makes decisions relative to broad policy matters. For example, the decision the Board of Education made several years ago on how the future vocational education program would be operated (i.e., in the existing two high schools or in a vocational–technical center) was a broad policy decision with many administrative implications. The administrative implications of this decision are carried out by the Superintendent of Schools and his staff. In the case of this example, all of the administrative work necessary to carry this decision out in the northern portion of the county has led up to the renovation of Northern High School and the split-session plan to accomplish this work.

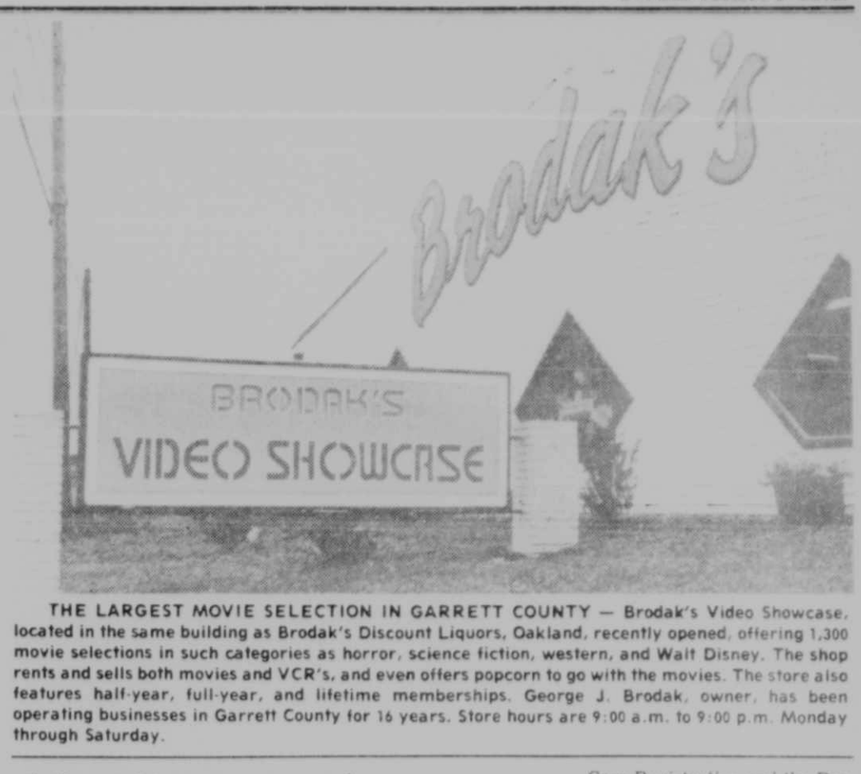
The elected Board of Education, then, meets on a periodic basis to consider policy matters whereas the paid staff of the Board of Education typically handles the day-to-day operation of the school system. During the last school year the Board of Education met 19 times in formal session. In addition, the Board of Education met another five to ten times informally - at these times the Board of Education cannot take any action. Lastly, the elected Board of Education visits schools, attends various school functions, attends both county and state-wide meetings, and, of course, listens to public comment about our school at all times.

The State of Maryland, again through law, defines the legal powers and responsibilities of the school board. Some of the State laws are very general (i.e., some outline only what a Board "may" do) while others are very specific (i.e., they indicate what a Board "shall" do). For example, Maryland law states, "All final actions of a county board shall be taken at a public meeting," whereas another Maryland school law states, "Each county board may establish and maintain day and evening schools for adults," Regardless of the law, however, individual Board members have no legal power apart from the official action of the Board as a whole.

Although the Board of Education has considerable authority over public educational matters in this county, it is financially dependent upon the County Commissioners in that the Board of Education has no taxing authority. This situation is somewhat unique in that only about one-third of the states in this nation operate financially dependent school boards. As a consequence, this oftentimes results in a situation in which the local Board determines its financial needs through its annual budget request, but does not receive the full amount of funds requested from the financial authority, the County Commissioners. The situation is ultimately resolved by the Board of Education having to reduce needed expenditures in the best fashion possible for all children.

In the end, all decisions by the Garrett County Board of Education have to be made with all the school children as their principal concern. Hopefully, the general public understands this as one reads and hears of school board action.

Day Care Providers Must Register With Social Services



Robert C. Shaffer, director of the Garrett County Department of Social Services, announced that by Maryland law, anyone who provides day care or baby–sitting services for one or more non-related children on a regular basis should register their home with the Department of Social Services. This registration will meet the requirements of the Annotated Code of Maryland Family Law, Article SSV 5-50.

According to Shaffer, one purpose of the registration is to develop day care services for children in a safe, healthful, and homelike environment. Another is to protect the health, safety and welfare of the children.

Shaffer stressed the fact that it is against the law for anyone to care for children on a regular basis who are not related to the caretaker in some way. Anyone violating the law is doing so at the risk of a fine.

The director stated that, although twelve homes in the county are registered with the Social Services Department, there is still a need for additional homes in all areas of the county.

Registration of Day Care Homes is a free service provided by the Social Services Department. Anyone wishing to register must submit character references, be at least 18 years of age, have a recent medical examination completed on all household members, and have no history of child mistreatment. A substitute caretaker must also be available. The home must meet certain physical standards and pass an inspection by the local Fire Marshal.

Peat Co.

Company officials felt that there may have been some connection between those suits by the Sierra Club and the EPA and the fact that the Nature Conservancy was not able to buy the bog. Buckel pointed out that there are two peat bogs nearby in the same area, but Sierra Club officials said that they are only interested in the one "where the action is."

Buckel reviewed the fact that a botanist with the National Heritage program says that there are endangered plant species and wildlife in the bogs of Garrett County. Buckel said that those species of wildlife mentioned by that botanist are abundant in most parts of the county, and include bear, deer, wild turkey and grouse. However, the botanist's report of bobcats in the bog and the supposed find of a porcupine quill not more than two years old indicating that porcupines live in the bog, have caused some snickers and outright laughter from county natives. "No one has ever seen a bobcat or any sign of one here," said Buckel, "and as a matter of fact, there is little food for animals in the bog and they don't normally stay in such a wet place, just pass through."

Goldbloom's comment that the few jobs are unimportant just isn't in agreement with opinions expressed by local and state officials. "I think the thing that's upsetting is that what you have here is a group of life-long residents of Garrett County - outstanding citizens who are trying to make a living in the soil in this county - and you have groups such as the Sierra Club and EPA trying to close them down," said Garrett County Commisioner John G. Braskey.

ATTEMPTING TO DRY THE PEAT — Buckel is now attempting to dry the peat by hauling it to another site outside of the bog to harrow it. It's necessary for the peat to become dry enough to be put through a shredder which breaks up the fibrous pieces and separates out pieces of root. Bagging of the peat is done mostly in the fall and early spring. The peat is not packaged by weight, but by cubic feet. A homemade bagger is used and 200 bags, holding one and one-half cubic feet of potting mix, or horticulture peat, can be bagged per hour.

Since the company was given the order not to harrow, Buckel has attempted to dry the peat by hauling it to another site outside of the bog to harrow it. It's necessary for the peat to become dry enough to be put through a shredder which breaks up the fibrous pieces and separates out pieces of root.

GCP&P officials noted that until now, their operation has not harvested a volume of peat moss high enough to fall under mining regulations. An amendment to the state Surface Mining Act, which became effective July 1, brought the company within the scope of the law because it removes an exemption for operations extracting less than 500 tons per acre of resources from the earth. Under this act, companies removing minerals other than coal from the earth must obtain a site permit and an operator's license.

Buckel said that after the company obtained a $100 operator's permit, paid a $1,500 reclamation fee, and a $500 per year water discharge permit, they found that the costs were just beginning. Lawyers' fees have added up along with the cost of numerous trips to Baltimore and Annapolis for various meetings, and additional permits may still be required.

One of these additional permits may be the federal grading and filling permit. Company officials argue that the company is not filling the bog with peat, because the peat is naturally produced in the bog. They also think that Sierra Club members hope the company is required to obtain the federal permit, because a public hearing is required as a part of the application process, and that would allow the environmental group an opportunity to oppose awarding the permit.

The company is not against getting the permit, but Buckel says, "We're afraid of the time and money it will take to get it with the Sierra Club fighting us." He said that the company is in the Philadelphia region of the EPA, and until this month only one other peat bog had received notice to shut down harrowing operations. He thinks that was done so it would not appear that his company was being singled out.

Because of that, Sixth District U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron agreed that the company was being singled out in this case. "I've got some questions on what they're considering a navigable waterway," said Byron. "When you've got 14 other peat bog areas that come under the same category, I'm concerned why, under the Clean Water Act, Garrett County is being singled out." Since that statement was made, eight or nine other peat operations in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains have been closed down, in order to be preserved.

Buckel also related that although only a small number of employees work at the bog, the company is not small as far as sales go. Sales are made statewide in Maryland, Ohio, North Carolina, Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and Garrett County needs the income that is brought into the area from the peat sales and related businesses.

Many of the mushroom farms, worm farms, golf courses, and greenhouses who buy from the company feel the same as one Moorefield, W.Va., greenhouse operator, who said, "I can never go back to mixing my own potting soil. If your company goes out of business, then I'll be forced out of business too."

Goldbloom of the Sierra Club met with the Garrett County Commissioners for one hour last month in an attempt, he said, to begin "constructive dialogue" between the two groups. Goldbloom indicated that he hoped the state would purchase the peat bog, thereby keeping the Sierra Club's two suits from reaching a court trial. In addressing the commissioners, he stated, "There is a well justified feeling by the local people that the DNR and outsiders are coming in the county and telling them what to do with their property."

But, he noted, he hoped the commissioners would understand the position of the Sierra Club in its belief that the bog should not be disturbed and should be preserved to allow scientific and archaelogical study as well as to protect the habitat of wildlife which make a home in a bog. During this meeting with the commissioners, Goldbloom insinuated that the Sierra Club, Nature Conservancy and DNR were working together to see if they could negotiate with the peat company. Goldbloom's comments prompted Steven T. Hamblin, director of the Maryland/Delaware Nature Conservancy, to meet with the commissioners and completely disassociate their group from the Sierra Club. Hamblin said that he had seen some of Goldbloom's comments in the newspaper and would like to talk to him and ask him "to speak just for the Sierra Club and allow us to speak for ourselves."

In the meantime, the Sierra Club placed another obstacle in the path of GCP&P by obtaining a restraining order that totally closed down operations at the peat harvesting company in August. Again, the Sierra Club's reason for obtaining this restraining order was "to preserve the bog."

GCP&P stockholders, Dale Glotfelty, Dr. Melvin Brown, and Buckel traveled to Baltimore again, this time for an evening hearing with a federal court judge in an effort to have the restraining order overturned. The judge requested that company officials and Sierra Club representatives come to a compromise. As a result of the discussion that followed, the judge lifted the restraining order, allowing the peat harvest to continue with these restrictions. No work may be done on the property owned by GCP&P, and work may continue on the adjoining property being leased by the company with only a specified number of inches of peat allowed to be harvested.

A hearing was to have been held on September 13 to determine whether the company could resume operation on their own property, however, due to the additional time and expense involved in another trip, the company's lawyers worked out negotiations postponing the hearing until a later date. "We can't afford to fight them much longer," said Buckel. "It's terrible that a club like the Sierra Club has the power to control government agencies and harass us like this."

The Sierra Club is not concerned with expense, though, and has no intention of dropping their suits. "We have a nice little war chest," Goldbloom had said back in May, "and we'll keep pursuing it." Buckel said that state appraisers visited GCP&P early this month, and the company is to meet with state officials at the end of this month to discuss the possibility of purchase by the state. "As much as I hate to give in," he said, "it's about all we can do. They aren't going to leave us alone."

At the Farm Bureau meeting Sen. Bambacus spoke of the Sierra Club as a national organization backed by millions of dollars, and reported that the current environmental movement in Maryland is one of the strongest in the nation. He said, "You've got to fight to keep them from doing something to you." He went on to say that their attitude seems to be that "we (Garrett County landowners) have made a mistake in our area and now they're trying to save us from ourselves."

Timothy Schmidt, Chief of Surface Mining Division, DNR Water Resources Administration, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, Md. 21401.

Dr. Torry C. Brown, Secretary DNR, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, Md 21401.

Craig DeRemer, Acting Director EPA, 401 M Street Southwest, Washington, D.C. 20460.

Referring to state officials and people in the urban areas of the state, Del. EdWards said, "If they could, they'd buy all of Garrett County, put a gate up, and drive everybody out so they could come up here on weekends."

Although down and out, Buckel and CGP&P haven't given up yet. Buckel told the group at the meeting that the company has applied for a needed state mining permit. On his last visit to the office of Timothy Schmidt, chief of DNR's surface mining division, Buckel reported seeing a large file folder full of letters from Sierra Club members asking that the permt be denied. In that same stack of letters, Buckel saw only one supportive letter from a private citizen in Garrett County.

As a last-ditch effort, Buckel asked that Farm Bureau members and directors write to the DNR asking that the permit be issued. Both Bambacus and Edwards backed up his suggestion, saying that letters and comments must come from the silent majority, the public, as well as elected officials. They felt that the company might also benefit by letters written to the EPA.

Buckel says he's tired of fighting, "I'm 61 years old and if the state thinks they can buy me out, I'll just retire. But after working 20 years to make something of the business, we've just started to see some profit these last three years, and I'm not ready to give up and retire."

"I COULD RETIRE", said Ken Buckel, "I'm 61 years old. I'm tired and we can't afford to fight them much longer, but after building up the company for 20 years, we've just begun to see some profit and I'm not ready to give up now and retire."

Letters have gone out from the boards of both Garrett and Allegany County Farm Bureau directors, and they asked Farm Bureau members and other interested citizens to use the addresses listed with this article to express their opinions to state agencies and help stifle this control of private property in Garrett County through unnecessary regulations and harassment.

Family Movie, "Heaven's Heroes" Slated Saturday

The family movie series continues this week at the Pleasant View Baptist Church when the film "Heaven's Heroes" will be presented Saturday at 7 p.m.

According to a spokesman from the church, the film is a true story about a Des Moines police officer, Dennis Hill, who is ambushed and killed in the line of duty.

"Circumstances leading up to this tragedy could not have been prevented or planned in advance, yet all the events in this Christian policeman's life indicated that God was in control of everything - even his untimely death," said a critic of the film.

The movie is open to the public.

GCC Achieves Computerization Through "Sheer Determination"

by Pam Ashby

How does an institution of higher learning begin a computerization program which simplifies a complex accounting system, registrations and student record data?

Garrett Community College accomplished that very task recently under the apt supervision of Leo Martin, former dean of finance at the college, and John Culp, who now serves as comptroller at GCC.

It all began when the college purchased an IBM System 36 in the summer of 1983. Lack of experts and additional funding, though, prevented the system from beginning operations immediately.

Leo Martin moved into the position of dean of finance in January of 1984 and computers started humming. His first job was to program GCC's accounting system and student records. He was no stranger to the computer field as he headed a computer center for the U. S. Army for several years and served as a systems analyist for the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company for three years.

Sister College

In March of 1984, Martin took a flying, one-day trip to Dodge City Community College in Dodge City, Kansas, GCC's sister in computerized colleges. He looked over their operations and found their system to be very similar to GCC's. While there, he worked closely with Vada Hermon, DCCC's computer genius, and it soon became clear to Martin there was nothing stopping GCC's computerization progress.

In the ensuing months many phone calls were placed between Hermon and Martin concerning the computer system. He also worked closely, via telephone and correspondence, with Borden and Barbara Slater, owners of Annray Computer Systems. Dodge City College supplied GCC with its first batch of software and later connected Martin with Annray, where the college still obtains its software.

Payroll

The first application on GCC's System was payroll, which became operational in April, 1984. Linda Fike, who had next to no experience with computers, was largely responsible for implementing that program. She is the director of payroll and benefits at the college.

Fike is self-taught in the world of computers and seems to easily grasp programming concepts. She commented on the payroll program, "It was fascinating to see it all come together. We just fit bits and pieces together a little at a time, and finally, it worked."

Fike's job is to gather information on each college employee regarding their pay, deductions and insurance benefits and then to feed them into the system for future reference. It makes payday a lot easier for her now since the touch of a button suppiles her with the information needed each payday or anytime medical benefits are utilized.

Fike believes in staying educated in the computer system, so she and other staff members attend Guided Learning Centers in Hagerstown occasionally that provide courses for the System 36. After a one-day workshop, the courses are relatively self-taught and each person may work at his own pace as time in his busy schedule permits.

As one secretary at the college put it, "Feeding a computer information is one thing, but knowing what to do with that information is another. It's an ongoing learning process."

Accounting and Purchase Orders

The accounting and purchase order application was put on the system in July, 1984, under the guidance of John Culp, who at that time, was the director of accounting. He was recently appointed to Martin's former position, when Martin left the college to accept a position at the Garrett National Bank in Oakland.

Culp says the computerization of the accounting department has greatly aided his department in keeping financial data as current as possible.

Working closely with Culp in the purchase order department is Bonnie Broadwater, purchase agent, and Donna Schrier. College inventory is now stored on discs that can be pulled and viewed anytime without going through cumbersome files.

According to Culp, a record of any item purchased by the college, no matter how large or small, is kept in computer storage and access to those records is easily gained with the proper password and the push of a few buttons. Martin termed the purchase order program "a mechanism to control expenditures."

"Essentially, John and Linda singlehandedly did those jobs with little background in the computer field. A lot was accomplished through sheer determination," stated Martin.

Student Records

Last summer, the student records program at GCC entered the world of computers. That application has greatly reduced the amount of manual paperwork involving student registration, state reporting, internal reporting and grade reporting.

According to Martin, Delores Edgar, administrative registrar, and her secretary, Linda Browning, worked diligently without first-hand computer knowledge, in putting the student records program in operation.

Now, with the password and coding, student records can be viewed at a glance by authorized personnel.

The Mastermind

Martin was the mastermind in GCC's new computerized accounting system and the purchase order process before they were even applied to the System 36. The general ledger and budget computer programs were also instigated by Martin.

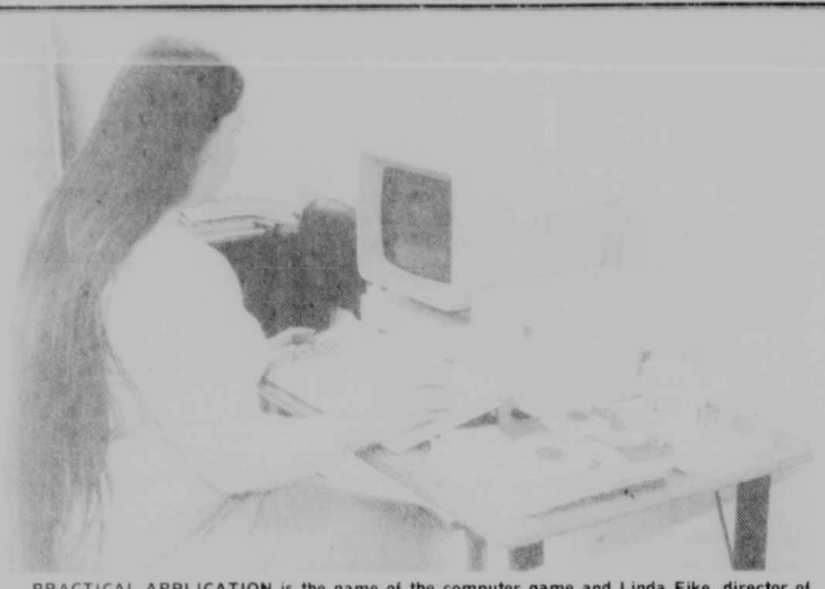
His prior experience in computer technology greatly aided the college and the staff in implementing each new program.

A sentiment echoed by most of the college staff was that Martin was able to relay his "computer smarts" to them in terms they could understand and apply themselves.

All interviewed, including Martin, were reluctant to take sole credit for any one operation in applying their computer knowledge to the System 36.

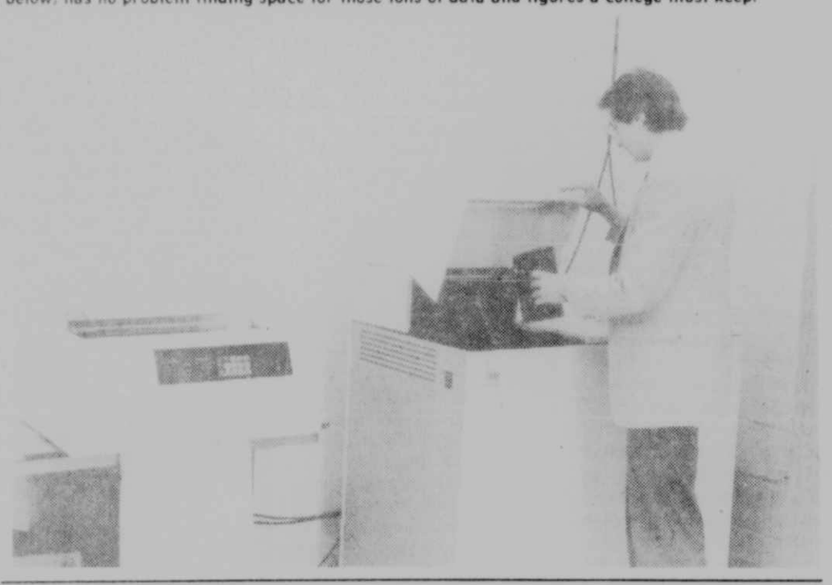
The System

The IBM System 36 has 512 K bytes of main storage, 200 megabytes of disc storage with four printers, 13 terminals, and one personal computer hook-up.



The word processing system at GCC was devised by Darlene Tressler, who at that time served as secretary to the director of admissions and now holds the position of administrative assistant.

Word processing units are used by the business classes of Tammy Manthos. Various other faculty members and students also have access to the word processors for a myriad of uses.



Now in the process of being added to the system is the financial aid department. Culp says that application should be completed by the end of the year.

The possibilities of the system are virtually endless, but those possibilities are useless without the super human beings "feeding" them with their knowledge and understanding of the system, not to mention their dedication to the betterment of Garrett Community College.

PRACTICAL APPLICATION is the name of the computer game and Linda Fike, director of payroll and benefits at GCC, can apply it with the best of them as a self-taught computer specialist. Linda is shown above perusing a faculty member's withholding tax information that she uses to prepare the college payroll. With 512 K bytes of main storage, John Culp, college comptroller, shown below, has no problem finding space for those tons of data and figures a college must keep.

WORD PROCESSING UNITS are now an intergal part of the business classes of Tammy Manthos at Garrett Community College, as students learn practical application as the first step into the world of computers.

THE MASTERMIND — Although he was reluctant to admit it, Garrett Community College officials stated that Leo Martin, former dean of finance at GCC, masterminded the complex hook-up to the IBM System 36 after making a quick trip to Dodge City Community College in Kansas, GCC's sister college in computerization. Martin has spent a great deal of his adult life working with or teaching about computers.

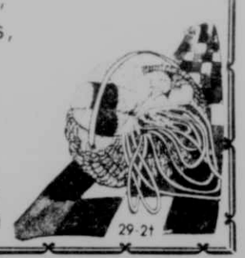
When you close your front door, how secure is it from burglary? Are you and your belongings safe?

Sturdy locks at doors and windows are basic protection. Deadbolt locks are advised; get the best, most pick-resistant lock cylinders your budget can handle.

Once you have locks installed, use them. Burglars need to get in quickly before they are noticed; your best protection is to make entry difficult.

Light foils burglars, too. Make sure that doors are well lighted at night. Trim shrubbery below window height, so there are no dark corners for thieves to hide in.

Top off the protection package with an electronic alarm system; have it installed professionally to avoid false alarms. Many systems will earn you deductions on insurance premiums.



Best backup for your home security plan: adequate theft insurance, just in case. We'll write it up for you at

THE ESCAPE CLAUSE

Often buyers will make their offer to purchase subject to certain contingencies. Normally these are not major problems—such as: contingent upon an engineering inspection which can take place within a few days or a stipulation that financing can be obtained which is understandable. The one to think about is the sale contingent upon the buyer selling his present property.

Some buyers will outright reject such a contingency because they would now have two houses to worry about selling rather than one.

If you do accept such a contingent offer, it would probably be wise to have your attorney insert an escape clause. This provision allows you to continue showing your home. If you receive another offer that you want to accept, you notify the first buyer that they must remove their contingency or withdraw. Either they agree to buy your home by the specified date come what may, or else they must void the contract and drop out of the picture, allowing you to sell to your new purchaser.

Maryland Salem Children's Trust Sets Open House For October 5

The Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Inc., a non–profit corporation whose main purpose is to provide a Christian home and a therapeutic environment for abused, neglected and emotionally disturbed children, will hold an open house on Saturday, October 5, from 2 to 5 p.m. at its 380-acre farm on Lower New Germany Road near Grantsville.

The open house will begin with introductions and a welcome, followed immediately by a short musical performance by the children and their music teacher, Ann Rebuck, a certified music therapist. There will be a horseback riding demonstration at 3 p.m., followed by refreshments and fellowship at the two children's houses.

One of the houses on the farm is 150 years old and the other was constructed in 1983. Each house has a capacity of eight children. Also located on the farm are a pole barn for the horses and a mobile home which houses the offices.

Considered for admission to the Salem program are boys and girls primarily between the ages of six and 13, who are court committed as children in need of assistance (dependent, neglected), in need of supervision or delinquent. Special consideration is given to sibling groups. Salem can become home for these children for as long as need be. The program is licensed by the Maryland Social Services Administration for children up to the age of eighteen. The children are referred by the Departments of Social Services or Juvenile Services from throughout the State of Maryland.

According to Louise Sutermeister, executive director, the plan to provide treatment in a structured environment is based upon the creation of an extended family atmosphere in a rural setting. Rotating houseparent teams who live with the children on a five-day-on/five-day-off period provide nurturing, discipline, structure and guidance for the children. A point and level system gives the children clear behavior limits.

Each child is seen on a weekly basis in individual psychotherapy. Music therapy and horseback riding lessons are also a part of each child's treatment program. A natural foods diet provides optimum nutrition for healthy children as well as for those with medical problems, such as hyperactivity and obesity. The children have indoor and outdoor chores and responsibilities such as housecleaning, dishwashing and feeding and caring for the horses.

Church attendance on Sunday is required, and an optional prayer meeting is held on a weekday evening in each house. Most of the children attend public school and are encouraged to participate in community activities such as 4-H, Boy Scouts and school sports. The Salem School on the farm offers an intensive special education program for children not able to attend public schools.

AN OPEN HOUSE at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust home located near Grantsville will be held on Saturday, October 5, from 2-5 p.m. The Trust, which established a home in Garrett County in 1979, is a non-profit corporation whose main purpose is to provide a Christian home and a therapeutic environment for abused, neglected and emotionally disturbed children. The local home is based on a 380-acre farm along Lower New Germany Road and includes one house that is 150 years old and a new house, constructed in 1983. Above, one youngster lands his model airplane on the kitchen table in the new house, while below two students rehearse for a musical performance which will be part of the Open House program. See story.

In addition to the eight houseparents (four per house), the staff includes the executive director, operations director, consultant social worker, special education teacher, music therapist, horsemanship instructor, tutor and part-time secretary/bookkeeper.

Ms. Sutermeister also stated that volunteers are currently needed at the local home, specifically persons with skills in carpenty, farming, painting, gardening, landscaping, and sewing. Also needed are a teacher's aide and persons to cut firewood. Interested persons are asked to contact the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Star Route, Box 60C, Frostburg, MD 21532; telephone 689-8176.

The Salem concept originated in the 1950's in West Germany, where presently there are two Salem Children's Villages. There are also several Salem homes in Israel and a Salem children's hospital in Uganda. The Salem Children's Trust was founded in the U.S. in 1976 and began operating a group home for children in Calvert County in January 1978. The Garrett County farm was purchased in August 1979 and the Calvert County property subsequently sold. The New England Salem Children's Trust, established in 1979, operates a similar program for 12 children in New Hampshire.

Ms. Sutermeister said the long-term goal of The Maryland Salem Children's Trust is to establish a children's village on the farm. This would include several houses for children, a grandparents' house, workshops, stables and barn and a guest house. A master plan has been developed to guide steps in creating the village. Development objectives for 1985 and 1986 include construction of a new home for the children, thus allowing use of the old farmhouse for needed office space, and construction of stables, hay barn and indoor riding arena.

The operation of The Maryland Salem Children's Trust is supported to a large extent by charitable contributions from churches, civic organizations, businesses, private foundations and individuals. Purchase of care funds received from the referring counties cover approximately 60% of operating costs. Remaining income needed for daily operation comes through fund raising efforts. Any construction, such as a new house, or capital improvements must be financed entirely by donations. A monthly newsletter written by the executive director has been an effective tool for fundraising and has established a channel of communication describing children, animals, special events, growth and needs of the program. Visits to the farm are welcome and should be prearranged through the office.

To reach the children's home, persons should take exit 24 off Route 48 just east of Grantsville; go up the hill and take the first right turn, continuing on Lower New Germany Road (following sign directions to New Germany State Park); go about one mile, pass seven new houses on the left and before reaching the eighth and last one, see the Salem sign and driveway on the right; go down the driveway about 7/10 of a mile to the house and parking lot.

Habitat Notes Monday Deadline For Applications

The Garrett County Habitat for Humanity issued a reminder this week that Monday, September 30, is the deadline for filing of all applications for the 1986 season.

The Habitat for Humanity is a non-profit Christian housing ministry which builds adequate, efficient, low-cost houses with money and labor donated by people who are concerned about the living conditions of their neighbors. The newly constructed houses become the property of the purchaser under the terms of a no–profit, no-interest mortgage. No government funds are used.

The local Board of Directors hopes to build five new homes in 1986. Application forms are available at the Department of Social Services, Community Action Office, the House of Hope, the health department and area post offices. Persons may call the Habitat office at 334-1731 to secure more information.

Lioness Club To Hold Pig Roast, Quilt Raffle

The Deep Creek Lioness Club is sponsoring a pig roast and quilt raffle at the Garrett County fairgrounds on October 5 beginning at 1 p.m.

Tickets for the pig roast are available from any member of the club or by calling 387-5814 or 387-4674.

The menu includes roast pork, round of beef, baked potatoes, barbequed beans, sauerkraut with kolbassi, rolls, dessert and beverage. The cost is $10 for adults and $5 for children.

It was incorrectly stated in last week's paper that the quilt to be raffled was made by Margaret Foley and Edna Lange. The quilt was made by Ann Kahl. We regret the error.

City Police Report Theft

The Oakland City Police Department reported a theft which occurred between 5:30 p.m. and 12:00 midnight on September 18.

According to police reports, unknown suspects removed a radio and two speakers from a truck belonging to Paul I. Coffman, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va. The truck was parked in a chicken plant lot. Losses were valued at $150.

The gear shift knobs had also been removed, and were found in the glove compartment. A coil wire on the vehicle had been loosened, but there was no other damage, according to the police Chief John Sines continues to investigate a report of a counterfeit $20 bill which was received at Englander's Pharmacy on September 14. The bill was passed on to the bank and returned after it was found to be counterfeit.

The Treasury Department in Washington, D.C. has been contacted.

A warrant was issued for Curtis Keller following an incident on Sunday.

According to police reports, Glenn Cuppett, Mtn. Lake Park, contacted the police when Keller took his vehicle without permission.

Police said Keller later returned the vehicle, then used his own car to smash into Cuppett's vehicle, causing severe damage.

CONFIDING YOUR WISHES

Unless you take certain commonsense measures now, the arrangements for your funeral and burial may turn into a source of conflict and misery among your loved ones. It is not enough to confide your wishes to your spouse or perhaps a close friend. Other relatives may take exception to certain arrangements and try to override such wishes and even take over responsibility together—particularly if you have entrusted this to a friend.

Your best course is to tell all involved parties what you have decided so there is no question about it later. You may even wish to name the responsible party in a "Letter of Instruction," along with specific wishes. Unless you do this, there is a good chance that such responsibility will be turned over to your closest living relative, regardless of your relationship to the person, and arrangements made alien to your wishes.

Local BPW Club To Honor Woman Employer Of Year

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club will honor its Woman of the Year and Employer of the Year at a program to be held Thursday, October 24, at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and the program will commence at 8 p.m.

The BPW Club, an international organization, annually honors a selected Woman of the Year and Employer of the Year during the week of National Business Women's Week, which will be observed October 20-26 this year.

The Woman of the Year program is designed to honor particularly outstanding business and professional women who have distinguished themselves in their careers and communities. The Employer of the Year award was established to honor outstanding employers who have promoted women in their business or agency.

Culminating the week's activities will be a special ceremony at which the Garrett County Commissioners will honor all business and professional women with the presentation of a proclamation which will be signed at the commissioners' regular business meeting on October 8.

A committee of impartial panelists will judge the candidates for Woman of the Year and Employer of the Year. The selected honorees will then represent the club and employer during the coming year.

The winning Woman of the Year for Garrett County BPW will be recognized on the state level by the Maryland Federation of BPW at its National Busiess Women's Week luncheon on October 26, at Patuxent Naval Air Station Officers' Club in St. Mary's County.

Teen Challenge Rep To Speak Oct. 5

H. Mason Sorensen of Teen Challenge of Washington, D.C. and Maryland will be the guest speaker on October 5 at 7 p.m. at the Mtn. Top Christian Assembly.

Teen Challenge is a Christian ministry that helps young people with life-controlling problems such as drugs and alcohol. Founded in Brooklyn, N.Y. by David Wilkerson, Teen Challenge gained international fame through Wilkerson's first book, "The Cross and the Switchblade", which was later made into a movie.

From the beginning, Teen Challenge has operated under the concept that a person with serious behavioral problems must be transformed spiritually, physically, socially and psychologically.

Since the inception of the work in 1958, Teen Challenge has grown to 150 centers, operating autonomously throughout the United States and 26 foreign countries. The 84 residential centers in the United States house over 1,200 youths daily, for up to one year. Those who enter Teen Challenge do so voluntarily and agree to remain in the program for at least one year. Besides religious and remedial subjects, basic vocational skills, such as printing, carpentry, etc. are taught. An opportunity to study for a General Education Diploma (GED) is also provided.

Teen Challenge is acclaimed to be the most successful drug rehabilitation program. Based on an independent survey, conducted by the National Opinion Research Organization and funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Teen Challenge has a documented 86% cure rate for drug addiction. This percentage is based on a chemical test given to those interviewed five years after completing the program.

Rev. Alvin Kyle, Pastor of Mtn. Top Christian Assembly, Mtn. Lake Park, invites the public to attend the program on the Teen Challenge ministry.

STEEP Meeting Set For Oct. 3

Local government and non-profit agency officers will meet on October 3 to begin their participation in the Small Town Energy Education Project (STEEP).

The project, which was originally pilot-tested on the Eastern Shore in 1984-85 by the Cooperative Extension Service, is being developed further in Allegany and Garrett counties before being made available across the state of Maryland. On the Eastern Shore it is estimated that it will save the 15 participating jurisdictions a total of $138,000 annually on their fuel bills. These savings are a result of furnace efficiency tests, energy audits, and street light modifications.

In Allegany and Garrett counties, the Cooperative Extension Service, Energy Council, and Potomac Edison are cooperating to make the program available. Five organizations responded to the project promotion with a total of 19 buildings. The Energy Council narrowed the list down to five buildings. They will receive an energy audit and furnace efficiency test, as well as technical assistance in energy-related concerns they may have. In addition, fuel costs for a four-year period will be recorded on a computerized monitoring program. At the end of the monitoring period, participants will be given assistance in setting up their own computerized monitoring program.

Owen Morris and Jim Stevenson, Energy Council members; Michael Lanteigne, heating and plumbing consultant; Ed Castle, Potomac Edison; and Patricia Easterday and Nan Booth, of the Cooperative Extension Serivice, will be involved in the meeting on October 3. Buildings that are being studied in the project are: City of Cumberland Public Safety Building, Human Resource Development Commission Administrative Office Building, Allegany Transit Authority Building, Town of Accident Municipal Building, and Garrett County Community Action office building.

PE Workers Help Restore Power To Long Island

Approximately 100 Potomac Edison workers left Maryland last Friday evening for Hicksville, N.Y. to help restore power to PE customers on Long Island in the aftermath of Hurricane Gloria.

Among those from Maryland were six workers and one foreman from Oakland, sixteen workers and two foremen from Cumberland, 22 workers from Frederick, and nine from Hagerstown. Also leaving from Maryland were 14 workers from Romney, W.Va., 18 from Winchester, Va., and eight from Luray, Va.

The immediate aftermath of the storm left 700,000 of the Long Island Lighting Company's 980,000 customers without electric service, according to Bill Sherrard, a company spokesman.

The volunteers from Maryland, West Virginia, and Virginia are among the 1,200 line workers from 17 utility companies expected to remain on the job on Long Island from 10 days to two weeks until power is completely restored. Together with Long Island Lighting's 2,500 linemen, the total work force of 3,700 line personnel has been working 16-hour days to help the utility recover from the worst outage in its history.

SEEING THE SIGHTS on Deep Creek Lake last week were Homemakers from all over the state of Maryland who gathered at the Wisp Resort, McHenry, for the Maryland State Homemakers Convention. Following Wednesday's meetings, the participants traveled to Will O' the Wisp, where they boarded several awaiting vessels and embarked for some relaxation.

Oakland Woman Hospitalized After Mishap

An Oakland woman was in "stable" condition before going into surgery this morning at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, and another was listed in "satisfactory" condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a two-vehicle accident on U.S. Route 219 on Tuesday.

Della N. Welch, 75, was originally admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, then transferred to Memorial Hospital. Evelyn Clark, 73, remains a patient at Garrett Memorial.

According to Maryland State Police, Clark was driving south in a 1985 Chrysler, nearing the intersection of 219 and the Blue Ribbon Road. Dina Polce, 18, Oakland, was driving a 1985 Pontiac Z28 which skidded on a wet road, causing it to cross the center line and strike the Clark vehicle head-on.

Responding to the scene were Southern Rescue Squad, Oakland firemen, and State Police. Tfc. L. R. Rosage investigated the incident.

Treated and released following the accident was John Rowan, 18, Mtn. Lake Park.

Grantsville Visit Of Bloodmobile Nets 141 Pints

The Grantsville visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile on September 23 was a success, as 141 pints of blood were collected, one more than the visit quota of 140 pints.

According to Lela Bender, blood donor program chairman, there were 14 first-time donors. Five persons were deferred for medical reasons.

Giving their eighth pint of blood and thus becoming gallon donors were John Helmick, Kathryn Beals, Cindy Stanton, Rachel Durst, Barbara Garlitz, Jacqueline Wilt, Sandra Hutzell, Annette Hoover and Paul R. Yoder. Raymond N. Yoder and Tim Butler became two-gallon donors, and Betty Jo Swauger completed her fourth gallon.

Every employee of Bender's Feed Service donated a pint of blood, Mrs. Bender noted.

Volunteer nurses were Mildred Yoder, Marlene Tice, Linda Maust, Bonnie Heatwole, Pauline Faucett, Rhoda Maust, Freda Maust, Alice Orendorf, Chris Maust, Rachel Miller, and Luella Yoder.

Other volunteer helpers were Susan Riggs, Rosie Miller, Lois Bender, Glenda Yoder, Mary Opel. Ercell Jenkins, Arlene McKenzie, Anita Duckworth, Mary Louise Bender, Ruth Horning, Hilda Sturtz, Kathryn Bowser, and Alice Younkin.

Emergency medical coverage was provided by the Northern Garrett Co. Rescue Squad.

Custodians were recruited by Raymond J. Yoder, and canteen service was provided by Ladies of the Firemen's Auxiliary. Potomac Farms Dairy and Buckel's Market donated milk and orange juice.

Coal Problems Topic Of U.S. Congressional Panel Hearing

The United States House of Representatives Subcommittee on Mining and Natural Resources held a hearing, at the request of Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron (D-Md. Sixth District), on "The Problems Facing Small and Medium Size Coal Operators." Frostburg State College in Frostburg hosted the hearing last Saturday which was attended by over 50 public officials, coal industry representatives, environmentalists, and interested citizens.

West Virginia Congressman Alan B. Mollohan (D-First District) chaired the hearing and filled in for Subcommittee Chairman Nick Rahall (D-W.Va.- Fourth District), who the Democratic leaders had selected to deliver the Democratic response to President Reagan's radio address Saturday.

In opening statements, Mollohan stressed the importance of the independent coal producer in maintaining a competitive U.S. coal industry, while Byron expressed her gratitude that the mining subcommittee had come to Frostburg to address some of the issues affecting the Maryland coal industry.

Some background was given by Byron and Mollohan, including the fact that Maryland produced about 4.3 million tons of coal, valued at over $100 million, during 1984 which was a 36 percent increase over the previous year's production. In Garrett and Allegany counties, between 700 and 800 miners were employed in 1984.

Byron explained that although productivity was slightly less than the national average of 20 tons per day per miner, it was a respectable 17 tons per miner per day in Garrett and Allegany counties in 1984. "Maryland miners can be proud that they produced more coal per shift than the 14.6 tons averaged by all mines in the Appalachian region," she said.

Figures were given to show that coal production is split almost evenly between surface and underground, while in 1983, the 28 surface mines out-numbered the six underground mines by four to one.

"The industrious mining communities of Western Maryland are helping to provide affordable and reliable sources of domestic energy," Byron said. "Declining oil prices," she went on to say, "have slowed the growth of the coal market. But we in Congress are keenly aware that the supply of cheap available oil is tenuous at best and that the entire world

Southern Band Wins Two More Class A Titles

The Southern Garrett Band traveled to Pennsylvania to compete in two Class A competitions Saturday and returned home with one Grand Champion of Show and two first-place awards among numerous other awards.

The first competition was held at Richland Park High School near Pittsburgh where the Southern Band took Grand Champion of Show, first place, best percussion, first place for silks and rifles and best drum major. First place included taking best marching and maneuvering, best general effect and best high music.

The band then competed in the Windber area field show competition and marched away with first place along with best silks and rifles.

According to band director, Richard Clever, the scores for the day were the highest of any bands competing that day.

Drum majors for the award-winning band are Bryan Custer and Shawn Reed. Drum captain and assistant are Jim Comfort and Patrick Mitchell. Teresa Rivenbark is color guard captain and Jodi Wilt is silk captain.

On Friday afternoon, the band traveled to Kingwood, W. Va. as the honor band at the 44th annual Buckwheat Festival. While there, they finished first in the AAA divisions and first in the parade.

GRAND CHAMPION OF SHOW was just one of the many trophies and awards won by the Southern Garrett Band this past Saturday in Pennsylvania. The band competed in two Class A competitions, one at Richland Park and the other at Windber Area field. The band walked away with best marching and maneuvering band and best silks and rifles at both competitions. At Richland, they also took first place for best percussion and best drum major. Pictured above, left to right, are Teresa Rivenbark, color guard captain; Bryan Custer, head drum major; and Shawn Lynn Reed, head drum major.

Edwards Hopeful MDOT Officials Will Reconsider

District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards said last night he is hopeful that the Maryland Department of Transportation is reconsidering its initial plan to locate the new Motor Vehicle Administration headquarters for full-service transactions to the DeHaven Road site.

The Dehaven Road site, which is located off U.S. Route 40, east of Cumberland, has been "the preferred site" of MDOT, but legislator and county officials from Garrett and Allegany Counties have different preferences.

They are hoping to get a site selected that would be located west of Cumberland. "We simply can't agree to anything less," said Commissioner Elwood Groves II.

At a meeting last week in Allegany County, Transportation Secretary William Hellmann said if "anyone could find a better site in LaVale" he would go look at it immediately. At that time, MDOT said they would make their final decision by October 1. No decision has been made which has prompted Edwards' hopeful attitude.

Edwards also said the MVA is looking for a better location for the local MVA transactions which now occur once a week at the Oakland National Guard Armory. He said plans to add at least one additional day to the Garrett County schedule "is in the works right now."

Proposed Rescue Tax Discussed At Public Meeting

Approximately 20 persons attended a public information meeting for the discussion of a proposed tax for the Garrett County Rescue Squads. The meeting was conducted by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners.

The proposed tax would allow for two cents of every assessed $100 real estate tax to be given to the local rescue squads.

"Basically, everyone who spoke from the general public recognized the valued services the rescue squads provide in the county. There was no adversity at all," said Robert Fousek, county clerk. "But there were concerns from some individuals as to what method should be used in obtaining funds for the squads."

Fousek said other taxing alternatives were discussed, such as soda tax or beer tax.

Brad Stewart, a CRT with the Southern Rescue Squad and Steve Hamilton, a CRT with the Northern Rescue Squad, presented their views on the proposed tax citing "a consistent rate" as the main purpose of such a tax. They said their services are mainly provided now through the efforts of fund-raising, and in Northern's case, a membership fee. They said it was hard to determine from one year to the next what their budget is.

The commissioners said they would keep the public record open until October 16, at which time they will have a legislative discussion with Senator John N. Bambacus and Delegate George C. Edwards to make a decision on what method of taxation to present to the legislature.

Currently, the 11 local fire departments are allotted five cents per $100 assessed real estate tax to aid in their yearly funding.

N.H.S. Renovation Project Underway

Contractors have begun work on the Northern High School renovation project, according to Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of schools.

The Garrett County Board of Education received word from the Interagency Committee on Public School Construction on September 23 that the project could officially begin.

John Morris, assistant superintendent for administrative services, said that the new construction, such as the vocational wing and some exterior work, will be done first. Interior work will begin when the weather worsens.

Morris said that the original goal was to have part of the vocational technology wing finished by Christmas, so that some students could be moved in after vacation. "I don't know whether that goal has been affected or not," he said.

Ed Green, Northern High School principal, said he is still assuming students will attend school in a virtually new Northern High School next September.

EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES WEEK — Proclamations from Governor Harry Hughes and the Garrett County Commissioners declare September 29 through October 5 Emergency Medical Services Week. When signing the state proclamation, Gov. Hughes praised the system as "The Best Care Anywhere." Garrett County Commissioner Chairman Elwood Groves commented at the signing of the county proclamation on September 24 that , "Garrett County is fortunate to have dedicated officials, both paid and volunteer, to provide emergency medical care 24-hours a day, 365 days a year." During EMS Week, emergency medical personnel, including physicians, nurses, emergency medical technicians, cardiac rescue technicians, aviation trauma technicians and paramedics within Maryland's five regions will participate in a series of activities that will demonstrate their vast range of skills contributing to the remarkable 88 percent survival rate that has been achieved for Marylanders they serve. Maryland's Emergency Medical System is coordinated by the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems, which includes the world famous Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore and provides the national model which, for over a decade, has been developing and shaping the way that emergency care can be most effectively rendered. Seated at the console above is Brad Frantz, EMS Council member. Standing behind Frantz is Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II presenting the proclamation to Steve Hamilton, EMS Council president. Charles McC. Mathias Announces Retirement From U.S. Senate

Charles McC. Mathias Jr. (R-Md.) announced Friday that he will not seek a fourth term as U.S. Senator.

Mathias said that he would like to do some writing, some teaching and perhaps return to the practice of law, in which he has not been very active since his career in public office began with his election to the Maryland House of Delegates in 1958.

After explaining his decision, he recalled that, "When I was elected to the Congress in 1960, we were a nation divided by barriers of law, customs and practice. Today there is no legal barrier of any kind between Americans of differing races and creed," said Mathias, who was elected to the Senate in 1969. "That is change at its most positive form and I am proud to have played a role in that peaceful revolution," he said.

While in Washington as a congressman and later as a senator, Mathias worked with seven presidents during what he termed a "turbulent but fascinating period" of U.S. history. Mathias says that when his term expires in 1987, his tenure will have spanned more than a quarter of a century as a congressman. "That's one-eighth of the history of the congress," he said.

Mathias said he had not accomplished everything he wanted but he has tried to do whatever is possible given the necessary restraints and traditional procedures of the congress.

Fellow U.S. Sen. Paul Sarbanes (D-Md.) said that he has been honored to work with McC. Mathias and be his colleague and friend. "Maryland and the nation have been fortunate to have a man of his quality in public office," Sarbanes said.

U.S. Rep. Beverly B. Byron (D-Sixth) said she was sorry to learn about the decision and said that "For the last seven years I've had the good fortune to have him as a colleague on Capital Hill. Over the years we have worked hard and long together representing our constituents and their interests in the House and Senate."

State Sen. John N. Bambacus, who was the Mathias campaign manager during his last election, said, "Without any question, he's one of the finest human beings I've ever known in my life." Bambacus says that he calls Mathias his mentor and that he is "truly one of the independent voices in the U.S. Senate" and well respected on both sides of the aisle because of his integrity and sense of fairness.

Mathias's retirement clears the way for a host of hopeful candidates for senator from Democrats Gov. Harry Hughes and U.S. Rep. Barbara Mikulski and U.S. Rep. Michael Barnes to Republicans U.S. Rep. Majorie Holt, former U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and others.

Oktoberfest, Parade Slated By Oakland VFD

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will once again sponsor an evening of entertainment as part of the 18th Annual Autumn Glory Festival.

The firemen's parade, featuring bands, marching units, and scores of pieces of fire fighting apparatus, will begin at 7 p.m., Thursday, October 10 in downtown Oakland and will be followed by the annual Oktoberfest at the fire hall. German-style food and beverages will be available at the fire hall from mid-afternoon throughout the evening.

The parade will include fire units from Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania, which will be judged prior to the parade at the Farmers' Market parking lot along U.S. Rt. 219.

The Oktoberfest, which will get underway at about 7:45 p.m., will again feature a local "oompah" band playing a variety of popular marches, polkas, and German music. There will be room for dancing and group singing will be led by Maestro Manning Smith, conductor of the band. Food and beverages, both light and dark, will be available.

Also during the Oktoberfest will be the presentation of the Garrett County Fireman of the Year Award by the Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association.

There is no admission charge to the Oktoberfest. All proceeds from the event will go toward debt reduction on the Oakland VFD's newest pumper and auxiliary equipment, which carried a price tag of approximately $120,000.

Road Rally Planned For October 13

The Eighth Annual Autumn Glory Road Rally, sponsored by the Garrett Organization for the Handicapped (GOH), will be held Sunday, October 13 with registration from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Garrett Community College.

A registration fee of $10 will be charged for all entries. A spokesman for GOH said that after covering the cost of the rally and prizes, the remainder of the registration fees, if any, will be utilized by GOH to continue its services to the handicapped citizens of Garrett County.

Each registered car must have a licensed driver and a navigator, although additional persons will be allowed in the car. GOH reported that they will not be responsible for any accidents, injuries, or traffic violations during the rally, and no alcoholic beverages will be allowed.

The rally will follow a Monopoly theme this year. Monopoly is a registered trademark of Parker Brothers Division of General Mills Fun Group, Inc.

Anyone wishing more information or pre-registration forms should contact Mrs. Alice Ann Ridder at (301) 334-3828.

Sanitary District Investigates Kitzmiller Resident's Complaint

Mayor James Barrick of Kitzmiller recently requested Wendell Beitzel, administrator of the Garrett County Sanitary District, to investigate a problem which had been reported to him by Kitzmiller resident James C. Brady.

Brady had sent the mayor a letter which also appeared as a letter to the editor in this publication, describing a potential problem caused when several copper house connections were installed under the Mill Race from the water main to the service meter connection. "The most serious deficiency remains the passing of an unencased, copper, potable water line through a known, open sewage ditch," wrote Brady in his September 26 letter. "This installation is in violation of your (Sanitary District's) own rules and regulations, and I'm sure, county and state laws."

In his letter, Brady stated that he had also witnessed the addition of a considerable quantity of limestone chips, placed around the unprotected copper water line. "Due to the highly corrosive nature of copper in close proximity with lime," he wrote, "I have serious doubts, that other share, as to the future integrity of the totally unprotected copper water line."

He went on to say, "The galvanic action of ground water, lime and copper is well established and will cause penetration of the water line and contamination of the entire town water system with raw sewage in a relatively short period of time."

Beitzel explained in his letter to Mayor Barrick that he and the Sanitary Commission felt that Brady's concerns were justified and they desired to have the matter resolved during construction of the system. To reach this end, he discussed the issue with engineers Greenhorne & O'Mara as well as the Sanitary Commission.

In his letter to the mayor, Beitzel stated that the district's action regarding disposition of Brady's complaint was based on the following factors:

1. The pipe is installed under the ditch and does not come into direct contact with the acid mine drainage or sewage.

2. Two soil samples were tested and the laboratory reports indicate that the soil in the close proximity to the water line does not create a potential corrosion problem for copper pipe.

3. Copper is a corrosion resistant metal commonly used in water systems for corrosion control.

4. A sewer system is planned for Kitzmiller that will hopefully remove the untreated sewage from the Mill Race including the Brady dwelling.

5. The system was designed by a registered-professonal engineer.

6. The design plans were reviewed and approved by the design-review engineering staff of the Office of Environmental Programs of the Maryland State Health Department.

7. The system was inspected by the engineering staff of Greenhorne & O'Mara, a large reputable engineering firm. The project engineer, Henry N. Doyle, advised the district after reviewing the soil samples that he did not feel that there was justification for encasement of the copper pipe.

8. The copper water sevice line is embedded in lime stone material which would tend to neutralize the acidity of the soil. Lime is often used in the water treatment process to adjust ph to control corrosion.

9. If a leak would develop, the water line is under pressure. Treated water would escape from the pipe. The likelihood of contaminates entering the system is very remote and could only occur if the pipe was under a negative pressure. This is a very remote possibility at this location. The water tank and entire upper elevation areas of the town would need to be completely drained for this to occur.

Beitzel concluded that the Sanitary District decided that the preponderance of evidence did not warrant the additional expense of preparing the change orders to direct the contractor to excavate and encase the water service house connection across the Mill Race. Thus, he said, a decision was made not to make any change from the system design for the service connection across the Mill Race.

Beitzel asked the mayor to advise him if he feels that the Sanitary District needs to take additional measures to satisfy Brady's complaint.

Trimble Honored By Hospice Staff

Nancy S. Trimble, R.N., M.S.N., Hospice nurse coordinator in Garrett County, was honored recently by the Hospice support staff. Trimble will be leaving Hospice and the Oakland area for anticipated relocation to Frederick County, according to Wayne R. Johnson, executive director of Hospice.

Trimble will continue as Southern Garrett County Home Health coordinator until her departure.

From January 1 to April 1 of this year, Trimble worked as volunteer nurse coordinator, then from April 1 to June 30, she served as halftime nurse coordinator responsible for activating the patient-family care services of the Hospice organization. She also assisted in the establishment of goals, receipt of referrals, home and hospital assessments of patients, equipment arrangement, coordination of volunteer services, acknowledgement of donations and memorials, bereavement correspondence, Hospice correspondence and public speaking for community and professional education.

She was also responsible for the development of protocol for transport of Hospice patients in the EMS system, which was accepted by the Maryland Hospice Network and recommended by Dr. Amin Ramzey at MIEMSS for statewide adoption. She was also the consultant to area agencies and institutions on pain and symptom management.

Trimble also gave direct home care nursing to many home-bound Hospice patients. She became certified as an adult nurse practioner during the time she served as coordinator. She was also involved in the ground work for hiring an executive director and she established an informal Hospice liaison with Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland and Hospice in Bransom, Miss.

Trimble obtained her B.S.N. from Ohio State University in 1972 and her M.S.N. from West Virginia University in 1981. She is an E.M.T./C.R.T. with the Northern Rescue Squad, a member of the Maryland Hospice Network and a member of the American Nurses Association and the Maryland Nurses Association.

Trimble, and her husband, Hugh, are the parents of a three-year-old son, Hugh Jr.

"Mrs. Trimble and her service, energy and knowledge of Hospice will be greatly missed. We wish her well in her new endeavor," said Johnson.

Sheriff's Office Reports Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department reported several arrests in the past week.

Robert Leroy Matthews, 23, and Carl William Noel, 22, both of Frostburg, were arrested Monday at 9:30 p.m. by Deputy L.E. Gnegy.

According to Gnegy, the Department held warrants for the two men for a breaking and entering theft which occurred at the Little Supermarket on Route 50 last Wednesday. It was reported that over $800 in merchandise was taken from the store. The merchandise was found in a hunting cabin on Route 50 last Friday.

Both men are being held in the Garrett County Jail awaiting bond hearings.

Carolyn Sue Simmons Aka Shiflett, 37, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested by Deputy Russell Drenning on two separate warrants.

The first warrant was issued on August 2, 1984 for a bad check, and the second was issued August 26, 1985 for welfare fraud and violation of probation.

The First United National Bank and Trust, Oakland, reported a forgery which occurred September 5 and 6.

According to Deputy R. Kutchman, someone negotiated forged checks, one for $115.50, and the other for $142, and cashed them at the Mid-Towns branch of the bank.

Both checks were recently stolen from Jerry and Daisy Hebb, Oakland.

A 16-year old juvenile was arrested September 26 at 12:45 a.m. for driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs and driving without a license.

Deputy L.E. Gnegy reported that he received a call concerning a vehicle being operated in an erratic manner on Route 135. The arrest was made at the Mtn. Lake Park Post Office.

County Officials Meet With MDOT, Projects And Concerns Discussed

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners met with officials of the Maryland Department of Tranportation Friday in the commissioners' meeting room to give county input on state highway concerns and projects.

Attending the meeting were commissioners Ernest Gregg Jr., John Braskey and Elwood Groves II, District 1-A Delegate George Edwards, County Clerk Robert Fousek, acting Planning and Zoning director John Nelson, serving as liaison between the county and MDOT, Development director Tom Jones, MDOT Secretary William Hellmann, assistant secretary David Wagner, District Six engineer Wallace Beaulieu, county state highway representative Paul McIntyre, MVA deputy secretary Hal Kasoff and MVA regional director Agnes Stoicus.

Listed are the county officials' and delegates' concerns on state highways and MDOT's position on those concerns:

1. Salt contamination on U.S. Route 48—MDOT officials gave a summary and update on the salt contamination problem, stating that some new wells had been dug for residents in that area and more are now in the process of being dug. They have also been discussing with state highway officials the past winter's cut back on the use of salt and the effect it had on water in the area. They said they were hopeful that preventative measures would alleviate the situation in the future.

2. Status of Loch Lynn railroad crossing—MDOT officials said there were no current plans underway for such a project.

3. U.S. Route 29 and Sang Run Road extended, Wisp traffic generation problem—MDOT said they would cooperate in addressing the increased traffic volume at that particular intersection. Helmuth Heise was present to give input as the private developer of the Wisp complex.

4. Md. Route 135 and Sand Flat Road intersection, blinker light—MDOT said they are planning to put a blinker light at that location during the 1986 work year.

5. Intersection of Glendale Road and U.S. Route 219, multiple lanes and/or traffic light for Thayerville Town Center area—MDOT said businesses in that area are required by the state to construct curbing de-acceleration lanes in that area. They said they would take into consideration a traffic light for that area.

6. Alter stop sign location at bottom of Swanton Hill on Md. Route 495—MDOT said it was in their 1986 plan to construct a new bridge at that site and extend the road. After that is completed, they will consider relocating the stop sign if the situation so warrants.

7. U.S. Route 48 and U.S. Route 219 at Keysers Ridge interchange; a southbound exit ramp—The commissioners explained the current dangerous situation at that location, especially with school bus traffic. MDOT said they already have a consultant working on the concept of a new exit ramp for that area.

8. Status of Deep Creek Bridge project—MDOT said the bridge should be opened to traffic by December of 1986.

9. County request for additional funds for Glendale Bridge project—The commissioners told MDOT officials that the project has been the most expensive one for the county ever. They said since it connects two state roads and is the main access for the Deep Creek Lake State Park and since it must comply with state-mandated height regulations, they felt the state should aid more in the funding of the project. MDOT said they would review the commissioners' recommendations and attempt to obtain additional discretionary funds that may be available for such projects.

10. Would MDOT support legislation to increase funding for county roads due to extreme weather conditions—MDOT said the possibility of that happening was legislatively nil, since other counties, especially those experiencing salt deterioration from the ocean, could claim their own extreme conditions.

11. Interstate 48; lighting at Northern exits of Friendsville, Finzel, Grantsville and Keysers Ridge—MDOT said they would be lighting some of those exits and studying the others after a traffic volume study was completed by the state. Delegate Edwards said he proposed that lighting two years ago and the commissioners stressed the need for it again this year.

12. Bypass lanes for Md. Route 135 and old Route 219 intersection—MDOT gave an affirmative answer saying that project would be completed by 1988.

13. Delegate George Edwards inquired about a blinking light at the intersection of Rock Lodge Road and Md. Route 495—MDOT said that this project has been approved and should be completed by April of next year.

14. Edwards also inquired about a truck pullover on Md. Route 42 and Elder Hill—MDOT made no definite commitment, but said they would study the situation.

MDOT officials also stated at the meeting that they are presently studying the improvement of U.S. Route 48 to include a provision of an interchange ramp from westbound U.S. 48 to U.S. Route 219 north and removal of an interim ramp to U.S. 219. This proposal would increase safety by eliminating the severe 8% grade for vehicles and improving sight distance at this location.

Under its secondary construction program, MDOT is also proposing to replace the bridge on U.S. Route 50 over the north branch, Potomac River and the Western Maryland railway. They said the existing structure, built in 1931, is posted for 20,000 pounds and has a substandard width of 27 feet.

Projects completed in FY 1985 by MDOT included the Hutton-Oakland Road resurfacing, National Pike resurfacing and guardrail, Friendsville Road resurfacing and a guardrail for the Oakland-Westernport Road.

Special projects proposed for FY 1986 include guardrail for the National Pike, widening and resurfacing of the Mattingly Hill Road, a slide correction on the National Freeway, resurfacing of the Oakland–Westernport Road, bridge over Crabtree Creek and box culvert on the Swanton Hill Road and a bridge deck replacement on the Finzel Road.

After the meeting, Edwards commented "I think Garrett County has been treated very well by MDOT with all the projects that have already been completed in the county and the ones being proposed for the next fiscal year."

He also added that any citizen with state highway concerns or possible future projects should contact him or Senator John Bambacus.

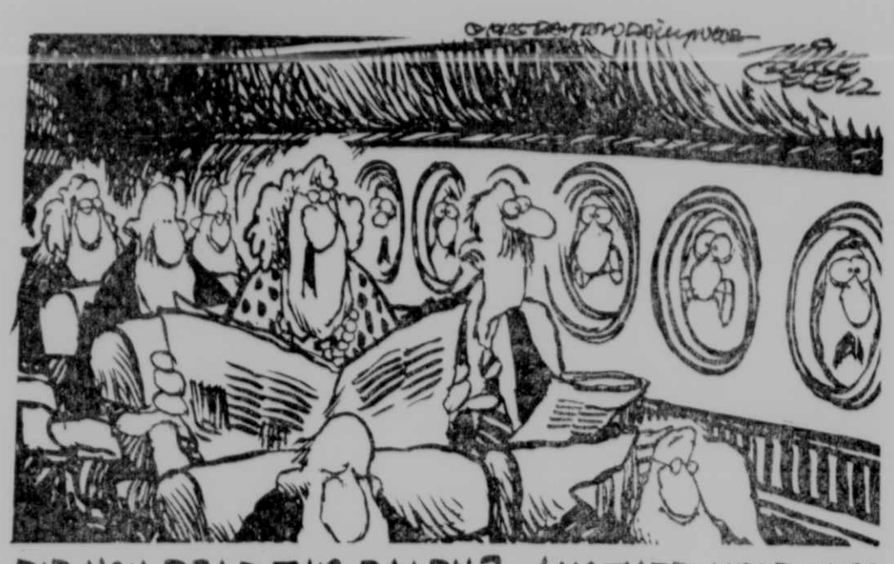
Building Self-Esteem . . .

A low self-esteem or feeling of self-worthlessness is, in our opinion, the single greatest cause of human despair. Such an attitude leads to a host of tragedies, such as drug and alcohol dependence, depression, withdrawal, failure, shattered relationships, and nearly all forms of crime.



The development of high self-esteem is not an easy process and, unfortunately, many parents are unaware of its importance in the rearing of children. Belittling, humiliating, and punishing their children on a regular basis for all the wrong things they do, and rarely praising them for the right things they do, normally leads to disastrous consequences. In many cases, the parents believe that negative reinforcement is the only thing that works. Then they don't understand when their children become dropouts, addicts, criminals, suicidal, depressed, and basically miserable human beings.

Praise, positive reinforcement, and motivation are so important to each of us. Good parents and good teachers recognize this and realize that these are the keys to effective teaching, positive student response, and sound development. On page five of today's issue is a feature article about one teacher whose program of instruction at Broad Ford Elementary School is based upon such a system.

Phil Caruso, physical education teacher, has proven what all the textbooks on self-esteem and self-confidence claim. His creativity has resulted in an extremely successful fitness program for the students in that school. One need only look at the accomplishments of so many students to see that Caruso's system works. He admitted that he is "astonished" at the response of his students when they are properly motivated and reinforced.

While not downplaying the importance of physical fitness, we believe that the value of Caruso's program goes way beyond the gymnasium. He is building healthier bodies, but more importantly, he is building self-esteem and confidence in these young people, many of whom come from environments that have stifled such growth.

We congratulate Caruso and all of our local teachers who use similar methods of instruction. What a tremendous contribution to these young people's lives and, ultimately, to society in general.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am outraged at the tone of your recent reporting of the GCP&P/Sierra Club controversy. Never have I read more blatantly slated "news reporting" in my life. I have not read a single article in the past few months which in any way attempts to explain the basis of the controversy, and just why the Sierra Club feels that particular bog is so worthy of saving as it is. You may reply that the Sierra Club hasn't explained itself to you, but perhaps you haven't tried hard enough to reach that information in a non-combative manner. Your paper has a journalistic responsibility to present all sides of the issue to your readers in an unbiased manner. Save the expression of your personal views for the editorial page where it belongs, and give us the facts, not your ecological misinformation and journalistic hysteria masquerading as news stories.

You will notice that I am renewing my subscription to your paper now. I am doing so because you have the only county-wide newspaper and I value the notices of events and the advertisements. I no longer trust your news reporting to be factual and unbiased and therefore renew my subscription with many misgivings.

Sincerely,
Joy B. Perry

Dear Ms. Perry,

We feel compelled to disagree that our reporting of this issue has been "blatantly slanted." In fact, we fail to see a single sentence in Mrs. Kepple's article (September 26 issue) that is in any way slanted. She simply reported the facts of what has happened in this case.

On numerous occasions we have reported the Sierra Club's reasoning for wanting to preserve the bog. We have indeed spoken to Sierra Club personnel, who believe strongly that the bog is a unique ecosystem that must be preserved.

We believe that any opinion offered by us on the issue has been confined to editorials. In fact, we would appreciate your pointing out to us specific words or statements in our news coverage of this issue that constitute bias or non-factual reporting.

Nonetheless, thank you for renewing your subscription.

To the Editor:

I must commend you on your efforts to alert and mobilize the citizens of Garrett County concerning the plight of the Garrett County Processing and Packaging Corporation.

I heartily recommend the excellent article by Bernice Kepple on Page 29 of last week's Republican newspaper to all your readers. It is my hope that this article and your editorial of last week will elecit a tremendous volume of mail addressed to the appropriate officials as suggested in the article.

A local business is being systematically destroyed by the heavy hand of federal and state harassment. Our neighbors are under attack and fighting for their economic survival. If we as responsible citizens will not take the time to write a few short letters to the appropriate officials on their behalf, then we have sadly begun to accept the most conspicious acts of tyranny without protest.

PE Workers

The number of customers on Long Island that were without power, according to a PE spokesman, more than doubled the 275,000 customers in the entire Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia PE system.

The spokesman said the crews will be assisting in restoring the power to customers and repairing lines damaged by high winds and flooding conditions. Approximately 35 bucket trucks, light line trucks and digger-derricks, three of those trucks from Oakland, were also sent from the state.

R.A. Roschli, PE's Western Maryland manager, said the farthest away local PE crews have been sent in recent years was to Harrisburg, Pa., where flooding had also occurred.

Hospitalized

A three-vehicle accident occurred last Thursday on Route 219.

According to the police, James C. Cooper III, 55, Thomas, W.Va., operator of a 1982 GL Subaru, and Mary B. Miller, 41, Eglon, W.Va., operator of a 1977 Ford Bronco, were traveling north near the Swan Meadow School. Both vehicles were stationary in the road, waiting for another vehicle to turn left into the parking lot of the school.

A third vehicle, a 1981 Chevrolet Luv operated by Cletis J. Lambert, 27, Aurora, W.Va., also northbound, failed to reduce speed, striking Miller's vehicle in the rear and forcing it into Cooper's.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the incident, charging Lambert with failing to control speed.

A two-vehicle accident occurred Sunday on Route 42.

According to the police, Hubert A. Friend, 80, was driving north in a 1977 Buick Regal, followed by a van, operated by an unknown driver, and a 1985 Chevrolet Chevette operated by Tracy L. Williamson, 22, Morgantown.

Friend put on his turn signal and slowed down to make a left turn into a private driveway. The van following Friend also reduced speed.

Williamson then attempted to pass the van and struck the left side to Friend's vehicle.

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated the incident, charging Williamson with attempting to pass in unsafe conditions.

Northern Rescue Squad transported injured persons to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland. Officials at that hospital were unable to confirm whether anyone was admitted.

A single-vehicle accident occurred on the Glendale Road Friday.

According to police reports, Larry H. Lankford, Huntsville, Ala., was eastbound in a 1975 Chevrolet Monte Carlo. Lankford failed to negotiate a right curve, crossing the center line and striking the Glendale Bridge.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the incident, and charged Lankford with crossing the center line.

Lankford was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Mary L. Clatterbuck, 19, Deer Park, was also treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital Thursday following a single-vehicle accident on the Sand Flat Road.

According to the police, a bee flew in the window of the 1976 Buick Skyhawk she was driving. While attempting to get the bee out, she lost control of the vehicle, causing it to strike an embankment.

Tfc. Gary Resh investigated the mishap.

A two-vehicle accident occurred September 21 on Route 135.

Denise M. Livengood, 18, Deer Park, was driving a 1985 Pontiac J-2000, and Steven Ray Steyer, 30, Oakland, was operating a 1977 Dodge 150. Both vehicles were traveling west.

Police said Steyer was driving in a reckless manner, and attempted to pass Livengood's vehicle on the right, striking it and overturning. Steyer fled the scene of the accident, and was apprehended the following day by Tfc. D.G. Riggleman.

Riggleman charged Steyer with passing on the right when illegal, leaving the scene of an accident, reckless driving, and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs.

Police said no one was seriously injured last Thursday evening when a tractor trailer struck another tractor trailer, a building, and three cars in the Keyser's Ridge Auto Truck Stop parking lot.

The vehicle was loaded with 46,000 pounds of steel and was unoccupied when it began to roll. The driver, Real Houle, 46, Sterling, Ill., had just parked the truck and was walking away from it.

As the vehicle rolled, it first struck another tractor trailer owned by Larry Wagner, Oakland. It continued on, striking the truck stop building and causing $1,500 to $2,000 damage to the wall.

The truck then hit a pickup truck owned by Lloyd Friend, Friendsville, then a Plymouth Reliant owned by Robert Alexander, Accident, and a Chevrolet Citation owned by Paul Yoder, Grantsville. The tractor trailer came to rest after it rode up on the Yoder car, demolishing it.

Dwylin Miller, Grantsville, a passenger in the Yoder vehicle, was slightly injured, but did not require treatment, according to the police.

All cars were towed from the scene with moderate damage.

Tfc. R.C. Resh investigated the incident, stating that the 50-foot long beams the truck was carrying did not spill. However, he reported that a major fuel leak resulted, and firemen from Grantsville were dispatched by Garrett Central Alarm.

Resh charged Houle with failing to secure an unattended vehicle properly, which will result in a $30 fine.

Also investigating the accident was Cpl. Richard J. Graham. Police said the truck was enroute to a job at the Deep Creek Lake bridge.

Coal Problems

market for oil can change literally overnight."

The first panel of witnesses, made up of state and local politicians, included Maryland Sen. John N. Bambacus (R-Garrett/Allegany), Del. Casper R. Taylor (D-Allegany/Wash.), Del. George C. Edwards (R-Garrett/Allegany), and Elwood L. Groves II, chairman of the Garrett County Commissioners. Allegany County Commissioner Linda Golden was also invited to testify, but did not attend the hearing.

Also attending the hearing were Del. William B. Byrnes (D-Allegany) and Del. W. Timothy Finan (D-Allegany). Allegany County Commissioners Arthur Bond and Francis Philpot were present for part of the session.

Sen. Bambacus, who gave a welcome on behalf of the officials present, said, "It's really good to have Washington come to Frostburg! Usually it's the other way around. We acknowledge gratefully your responsiveness and initiative in coming directly to the coal fields to find out what's going on."

Bambacus said that elected officials need to look at regulatory practices and policies, taxing policies, a commitment to research, the cost of programs, and the social costs of a depressed industry in communities.

"In a sense," he said, "there are parallels to be drawn with current displacements in the shoe and textile industries in New England, but there are differences. While American taste in shoes may be driven by changes in fashion, coal is coal."

In his conclusion, Bambacus told members of the subcommittee, "I submit that we must articulate a strong, clear, sound, and consistent national energy policy, especially with regard to our coal resources. We cannot—indeed we dare not—assume that there will not be another oil crisis down the road. Will we be prepared to satisfy America's energy hunger?"

Del. Taylor spoke next, saying that the two biggest problems he sees for the industry are the reprocessing of "gob piles" and a financially sound means of transporting coal.

Taylor explained that before the passage of the federal Surface Mining Act in 1977, there were six projects underway to remove gob piles, the waste piles of old deep mines. The expense of the required permits made it impossible for those miners to salvage the valuable low-sulfur coal contained in those gob piles after the 1977 law went into effect.

Also discussed by Taylor was the impact that the possible sale of Conrail could have on the Western Maryland and West Virginia coal industry. Speakers later in the hearing also pointed out that the cost of transporting coal between Frostburg and Baltimore or Philadelphia is two to three times greater than the cost of shipping the coal from Baltimore to Europe.

Del. Edwards told the subcommittee that some Maryland coal operators also operate in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. He said that in many cases Maryland would benefit from remining previously-mined sites, but for companies to come in and remine, they must assume responsibility for any water problems in existence and be liable for that bad water.

He expressed concern over some areas of violation, especially water violations. He said that when a company gets a violation it doesn't stipulate what volume of water the violation is for. The fine is the same for a couple of drops or a large quantity. He also said that if the sample sits around for a period of time, it could change the analysis of the water.

Edwards said he wondered why samples taken from a coal operation site are not directly taken into the lab for analysis. "Incorrect lab analysis places a burden on the coal operators and it takes 60 days to get the results, too long a time without anything being done." He also wondered if putting time frames on the regulatory agencies might be the answer.

New technologies were alo rated very important by Edwards. "The industry has the new technologies needed, the companies want to do a job well done and are concerned about the environment. The government can take the lead," said Edwards, "by promoting the conversion of heating systems now burning oil to mixtures." The mixtures he spoke of are water-coal and oil-coal mixtures called fluidized beds. "Fluidized bed systems can burn any kind of coal environmentally," Edwards said.

Commissioner Groves of Garrett County testified that 80 percent of the coal produced in Maryland comes from Garrett County. "The condition of the coal industry in the state of Maryland is not healthy," he said. "It has deteriorated dramatically since 1978, when some 40 mining companies were operating 65 sites in Garrett County alone. Today we have only 12 surviving companies operating at 19 mining sites. What has happened to Maryland coal?" he asked.

Groves reminded the subcommittee that, "In light of the fact that Garrett County historically maintains the highest rate of unemployment in the state of Maryland, I hope you can begin to realize how significant even a few jobs are to our total economy."

An important question asked by Groves was, "Are Maryland's coal producers, as well as those in the nearby counties of West Virginia, at a competitive disadvantage to many other Appalachian coal producers in terms of exorbitant shipping rates? Has the only servicing railroad, the Chessie System, been allowed to take undue advantage of its newly found freedom ushered in by the deregulation attitude in Congress and ICC?

Groves went on to say that, "If there is any area in the Appalachian coal fields that is captive, it is Garrett County. Garrett County producers not only by necessity must ship their coal on the Chessie System, but our information clearly shows that well over half of Garrett County's current coal production is in fact coal leased from the Chessie. In the current ICC regulatory environment which places the burden of proof on the customer to prove that the railroad is unfair in its rates, a customer who is both captive and a lessee of the railroad's coal is hardly in a position to rock the boat".

THURS., OCTOBER 3, 1985

Speaking in panel two for the coal industry and the Maryland Coal Association were: John Carey, president of the Maryland Coal Association; Alfred E. Whitehouse, environmental engineer for Buffalo Coal; Blucher Allison, of the Mettiki Coal Corporation; and Lawrence Streets, vice president of operations at Allegheny Mining in Mount Storm, W.Va.

Carey testified that the weak demand for coal is escalating operators' production costs; that between 1975 and 1984, production costs increased over 100 percent and machinery alone rose by more than 125 percent. He noted that the coal industry provides the economic base for over 1,035 jobs and using the standard industry multiplier, over 2,500 jobs in Western Maryland are related to the coal industry.

He also noted that permits to mine coal, alone, have increased from one or two thousand dollars 10 years ago, to 10 times that now. "The Maryland coal industry is suffering hard times. There are a number of proposals currently before Congress and several others pending. We feel that no one committee or agency is looking at the big picture of what each of the changes and increases are cumulatively doing to the industry. I would urge that your committee take on that role of overseer and look at each of the proposals before the various committees of Congress and assess its cumulative impact on the coal industry," Carey said.

More information on the coal hearing will appear in next week's edition of The Republican.

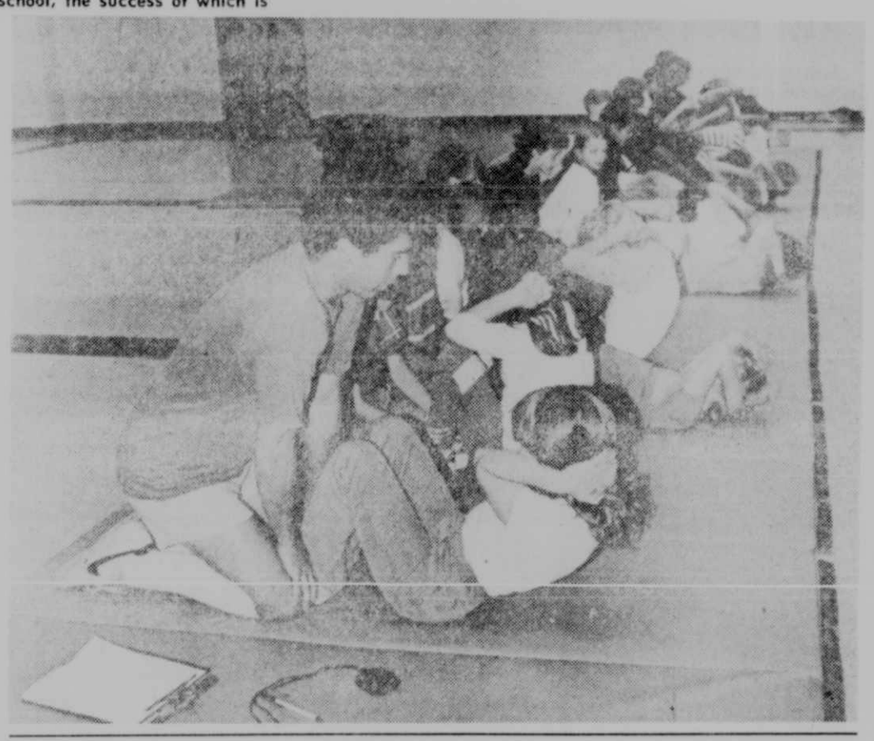
Local Physical Education Teacher Building Fitness, Self-Esteem With Unique Program

THE LONG JUMP AND SIT-UPS are two of the six events which make up the President's Physical Fitness Test. Broad Ford School physical education instructor Phil Caruso, pictured, has used a unique system of motivation and positive reinforcement to build a fitness program at the school, the success of which is unsurpassed in the state of Maryland. Because so many of the students achieved the President's Physical Fitness Award last year, the school won the Maryland State Physical Fitness Championship.

RECOGNITION AND REINFORCEMENT are among the ingredients of Phil Caruso's physical education program which motivate the students of Broad Ford Elementary School to excel in fitness tests. Goal and record charts line the walls of the gymnasium and hallways, providing extra incentive for the youngsters to progress in physical fitness and ability.



by Don Sincell

"Motivation is the key to our success."

So stated Phil Caruso, director of Broad Ford Elementary School's physical education department, following the recent announcement that the school had won the Maryland Physical Fitness State Championship for the 1984-85 school year. The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports presents the award to the school in which the highest percentage of students receive the President's Physical Fitness Award.

Fifty-two, or 37 percent of Broad Ford's students, scored at least in the 85th percentile on all six of the fitness test events last school year, which is the requirement for receiving the award. The events include the long jump, shuttle run, 50-yard dash, pull-ups, sit-ups, and 600-yard run.

Caruso, who called the championship "a culmination of seven years of work", stated that he was "shocked" when he heard the news that Broad Ford had won the award. The school had been entered in the competition the past five years, however had never won, even in 1984 when an all-time high of 47 percent of the students achieved the President's Fitness Award.

"It was a complete surprise when Mr. (Tom) Fowler (principal) informed me of the award," Caruso said, "based on past results. Previously, schools down-state were reporting anywhere from 75 to 90 percent, which is totally unrealistic. However, due to several protests to the President's Council, a new registration form was used for the first time last year, which required specific information about each student who earned the award, including height, weight, age, and scores for the six events. Before, schools just had to report the number of students who passed the test, enrollment, and percentage. Apparently this form discouraged these schools from falsifying their records."

Caruso said he wasn't even going to bother to enter the competition any more because of the unfair results and it was on the final day before the deadline that he decided to enter this past spring.

Using a unique system of incentives and positive reinforcement, which is backed by the administration of the school and the PTA, Caruso has developed a physical education program that is apparently second to none in the state. When Caruso began teaching at Broad Ford as a traveling physical education teacher in the county during the 1973-74 school year, he tested all of the children at Broad Ford in the six events of the President's Fitness test. Not a single student in the school achieved above 50 percent.

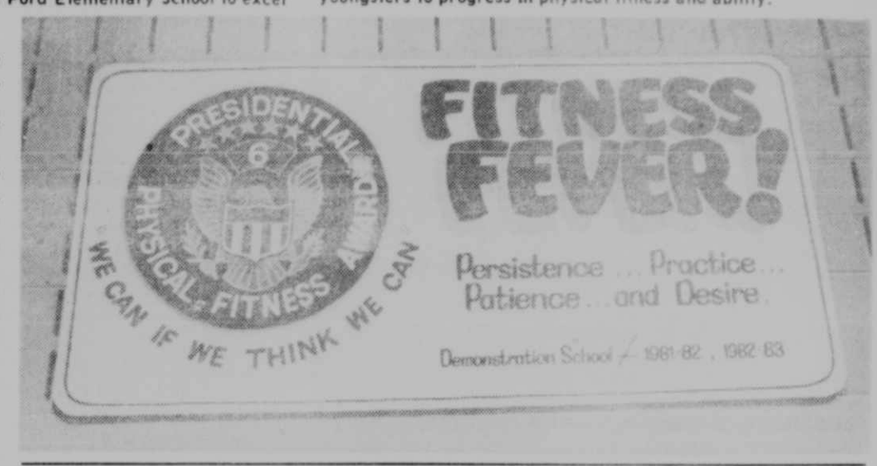
"I was appalled," Caruso said. "So I began working on the various skills with the students to help them improve on the fitness test."

At the end of that year, four of Caruso's students won the award, having achieved at least 85 percent in all six events. The following year, six students won the award.

"At that point, I still wasn't satisfied, because so few students were winning the award. One award at the end of the year just wasn't enough incentive," Caruso said. "It was then that I began to come up with ways of motivating the children throughout the year to improve."

Caruso went to the PTA of the school and requested $300 to initiate his incentive system, which involves a cabinet full of certificates, ribbons, patches, trophies, t-shirts and other awards that the children receive, not only when they master an event, but also when they show progress in an event. For example, if a child scores only in the 10th percentile on an event, but the next time he takes the test he scores 20 percent, he receives a progress ribbon.

Achievement ribbons are given when a student reaches the 50, 75, 85, 95, and 100 percent levels. Patches and trophies are awarded to those who score 85 percent in all six events, plus they have their pictures taken and displayed in the school. They also receive a t-shirt at the end of the school year if they maintain a fitness level of 85 percent or better.



Students also receive an award when they score an 85 percent in just one of the events, whereas previously there were no awards until a student achieved the 85 in all six events.

"The PTA had just spent $1,000 for a piece of playground equipment from which we had a few students fall and break their arms," Caruso said. "That's why I thought my request for $300 to buy these awards to improve our kids' physical fitness was more than reasonable, and they agreed with me."

Along with the incentive awards, Caruso displays various goal carts and words of encouragement on signs and posters throughout the gymnasium of the school. He also provides the opportunity for students to come to the gym before and after school to work on their various skills, use the exercise equipment, or just play a game of ball.

"It's not unusual for me to have 70 kids in the gym before school," Caruso said. "The other teachers love it!"

Caruso was given a fulltime teaching position at Broad Ford in 1980. After the first two years of having four and then six students achieve the President's award, at the end of the 1980-81 school year, 51 students had won the award. Fifty-four more won the award in 1981-82, 60 in 1982-83, 63 in 1983-84, and 52 in 1984-85, for a grand total of 280 winners since 1979.

"MOTIVATION is the key to our success," states Broad Ford Elementary physical education director, Phil Caruso. "I have been absolutely astonished at the accomplishments of our students. I am beginning to believe that nothing is impossible for them if they are properly motivated, encouraged, and reinforced."

The President's Physical Fitness Test is based upon the performance of fifth grade students. Yet, Caruso's program has been so successful, that not only fifth graders, but fourth, third, and now, even a few second graders, both girls and boys, have won the fitness award.

"When you realize that the second and third graders who have won this award have done so by competing against thousands of fifth graders in the country, and score higher than 85 percent of them, you get some idea of how incredible this

Northern GOP Women Convene

Garrett County Commissioners Ernie Gregg and Elwood Groves II were the speakers at the September 24 meeting of the Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club at Hill Top Inn, Grantsville.

The commissioners' topic was county government in general and the 1985-86 budget in particular. They explained that education costs compose 49.9% of the budget, while public works is the second largest segment at 28.4%. Assessments and the constant yield tax rate were explained.

They also reported that they were pleased with the status of the county road system, noting that all work is ahead of schedule. They said there are 700 miles of county roads in the county, double the size of the state road network in the county.

They said that the renovation of Northern High School was now underway.

Following a question and answer period was the business meeting for which Carolyn Ganoe, president, presided.

Mrs. Ganoe will represent the club at the State Convention in Ocean City later this month. She also stated that she will resign her position as president on January 1. There are presently no candidates to replace her.

The club will have an auction of baked goods, candy, and other items at the October 29 meeting. The Christmas luncheon was scheduled for December 7 at 1 p.m. at Hill Top Inn.

From Northern Middle School

NMS Welcomes NHS; Survey Conducted

Because of the renovation of Northern High School, the students, teachers and staff of Northern Middle School are facing an unusual year by sharing facilities with the high school. While NMS would like to take this opportunity to welcome the high school for the 1985-86 school year, certain NMS students were curious to find out how those involved are reacting to split-shifting.

For a week beginning September 6, Ms. Rettel's eighth grade gifted and talented class conducted a survey of 80 people, including students, teachers, staff, and parents, on what they think about the split-shifting situation that is in progress. Questions included the following: What are the advantages of split-shifting? What are the disadvantages? How does split-shifting affect your life? Is split-shifting working? Do you like or dislike split-shifting?.

Fifteen teachers from NMS took part in the survey. An advantage mentioned by eight teachers was that students work better in the morning. A disadvantage identified by nine teachers was that they have no time during or after school to plan or discuss activities with other teachers. An obvious effect of split-shifting for a majority of the teachers interviewed was that they have to go to bed earlier and get up earlier. But an overwhelming majority of those surveyed (13) said split-shifting was working, and that they liked it.

Eighteen NMS and NHS staff members, including the NMS principal and vice-principal, cafeteria workers, bus drivers and janitors, were interviewed. Five people thought that one advantage was that the students are better behaved while four people thought a disadvantage was not having enough time for extra-curricular activities. Four people thought getting up earlier and having a longer day was an effect of split-shifting, but seven said there was no problem. Eleven persons thought split-shifting was working and nine said they liked it.

Twenty-two parents were interviewed concerning split-shifting, including nine NMS parents, five NHS parents, and eight parents having children in both schools. Some advantages parents stated were more time for students to do homework, more sleep for NHS students, and getting home early for NMS students. A disadvantage five parents mentioned was that their children couldn't have jobs or take part in some activities due to school hours. Four parents complained that the meals were at odd hours while six were concerned about safety at bus stops. Seven parents felt that one effect of split-shifting was that they had no time for family life, and although seven parents said they liked split-shifting, eight said they didn't. Seven were not sure yet.

Twenty-five NMS students from grades six through eight were interviewed for the survey. A majority (19) thought having long afternoons was an advantage. Nine students added that they appreciate having extra time for things such as homework and chores. As for disadvantages, 22 said they didn't like having to wake up so early in the morning and three added they didn't like having to wait for the bus while it was still dark outside. The responses to the question about the effect of split-shifting were widely varied, but the most frequented replies, eight students, concerned having to go to bed earlier. Twenty-one students thought split-shifting was working, and 19 said they liked it.

Overall, the survey concludes that the majority of the people questioned, with the exception of parents, approves of split-shifting.

Indian Squaw Visits

"Bobby" Pandocony, an Osage Indian from Pensacola, Florida, visited the Special Education class of Doris Cooper, and a language arts class of Sandi Warne.

Mrs. Pandocony visited N.M.S. after she became aware of an Indian unit Mrs. Cooper's class is involved in. She was invited to visit Mrs. Warne's class to inform the students about the role the American Indians have played in fighting in America's wars as armed forces veterans in conjunction with a unit of study on Americanism. She told the students, "My grandfathers would be proud to have me teach of my culture to all children, not just Indian children."

"Bobby" showed students several pieces of Indian art work, including two handmade buckskin dresses heavily adorned with bead work, one which weighed forty pounds. She answered many questions that students had and told students several Indian stories.

She informed students that Osage Indians were always friendly. Instead of harming their enemy, the Osages felt it took more courage to be able to simply touch an enemy. In addition to this, she explained to Mrs. Warne's students that the purpose of the Pow Wow at the Garrett County Fairgrounds was to honor America's veterans and to unveil a monument dedicated to the Vietnam War Veterans.

Mrs. Pandocony, her Comanche husband, "Blue" (a Vietnam veteran and Purple Heart recipient), and several members of their families played a big role in the local Indian Pow Wow held on August 30 and September 1.

Jeff "White Horse" Ross, an Indian from Springfield, Va., who was also involved in the Pow Wow, plans to visit these and other classes and schools in Garrett County later this fall.

Flags Donated

Delegate George C. Edwards, honored a request from Mrs. Sandi Warne, of the Language Arts Dept., for a 3'x5' American flag and a 3'x5' Maryland flag. The American flag will be used during a unit of study on Americanism in Mrs. Warne's classes.

The unit will include such topics as the history of the flag, proper use and display of the flag and the patriotism the flag demonstrates. The unit will be culminated with a day of observance honoring America's armed forces veterans on November 11 which will include a program using veterans and students, at which time both the American and Maryland flags and a plaque will be placed permanently in Northern Middle to honor Maryland's and America's veterans.

Musselman Wins, 13-8

Fourth Quarter Touchdown Ends Rams' Unbeaten Streak

The Southern Rams' undefeated season came to an end Friday evening near Bunker Hill, W.Va., as they were edged by Musselman, 13-8, following a fourth quarter touchdown by running back Nicky Payton.

The Rams outplayed the Applemen throughout most of the first three quarters, but could not halt the 77-yard scoring drive midway through the final stanza. Southern came into the contest having allowed but one touchdown in their first three games.

After a scoreless first period, Southern's freshman quarterback, Zack Gibson, engineered a 68-yard drive on 19 plays, capped by Gibson's two-yard run for the touchdown at the 10:21 mark of the second quarter. He also ran for the conversion.

Southern's 8-0 advantage lasted less than one minute and a half, however, as Musselman took the ensuing kickoff and, on the second play from scrimmage, quarterback J.R. Frank connected with Brad Byers on a 72-yard pass/run play for a touchdown. The score came at the 9:06 mark and was followed by Jody Linton's kick for the extra point.

With about two minutes remaining in the third quarter, Southern jumped on a Musselman fumble on the Applemen's 36-yard line. On the following play, Gibson fired a long pass to tight end Tony Refosco. The ball fell incomplete, however the Applemen were called for interference, giving the Rams a first down and goal on the five–yard line.

It was third down and goal from the ten when Gibson hit Refosco with a seven-yard pass on the last play of the quarter, giving the Rams a fourth down and goal from the three. But the Musselman defense held at the four-yard line and assumed possession of the ball.

The Yardstick

Southern		Musselman
5	First Down Rush	9
1	First Down Pass	1
0	First Down Penalty	1
6	Total First Downs	11
5	Passes Attempted	2
3	Passes Completed	1
29	Yards Passing	72
160	Net Yards Rushing	169
3:38.6	Punts—Average	3:31.6
5-40	Penalties—Yards	4-40
2-0	Fumbles—Lost	2-1
189	Total Offense	241

The Southern defense rose to the occasion and forced Musselman to punt at the 10:16 mark of the final period. Donnie Horner returned the ball to the Applemen's 20, giving the Rams another opportunity to score. They moved the ball only one yard on four downs, however, turning the ball over on downs and setting the stage for Musselman's inning drive.

Payton, who finished with 143 yards on 25 carries, scored the winning TD at the 5:34 mark. The run for the extra points failed.

The Applemen led in total offense, 241 to 189 yards, however 72 yards of their total was the one big touchdown pass and run by Frank and Byers. Rushing yardage was nearly even, 169 by Musselman and 160 for Southern.

Bruce Bosley, who went into the game averaging over 130 yards per game, finished with 89 yards on 25 carries for the Rams.

"We lost a game we should have won," stated Tom Woods, Southern's head coach. "Early in the season, I thought that our team was not going to be able to compete with Musselman. But with the attitude our kids have had, the improvement they have shown, and success in our first three games, I changed my mind and went into the game believing we could beat them. It will be tough to get this loss out of our minds."

Woods said he believed that a turning point in the game was when Musselman came back so quickly to score after the Rams' scoring drive. "Our pass coverage broke down for an instant, and they were on the board," he said. "We have a freshman and a sophomore in our secondary, though, and this type of thing is bound to happen when there are so many young players on the field."

Woods said the Rams lost the game because of their inability to score on the two situations when they were deep in Musselman's territory. As for being unable to stop the Applemen's scoring drive in the fourth quarter, he stated that three things worked against the Ram defense at that point. "First of all," he said, "they had enough depth to use 20 players as starters, meaning that only two players were playing both ways (offense and defense), while we started 13. They stayed fresh while we were being worn down.

"Secondly, once they got their drive moving, the Musselman players reached down inside themselves to that Musselman tradition of winning down the stretch," he continued.

"And finally their crowd really got into the game on that drive, which motivated them and confused, and perhaps even frightened, our young team."

Woods did not blame his defense for the loss, however. "This was a team loss, because our offense had opportunities to win the game and didn't capitalize," he said.

Woods said he was impressed by Payton's performance, saying he was "able to run when there was no place to run."

He said the bright spots for Southern were the strong performances of Gibson and Refosco, as well as John Lewis who started for the first time at fullback and Steve Schrock, who led the defense with 11 tackles. He was also pleased with Gibson's punting (42-yard average) and the snaps for the punts by Scott Werdebaugh, who had not practiced all week because of an injured knee.

Even a bigger test lies ahead this week for the Rams as they play host to the area's number one team, Keyser, on Friday evening.

The Golden Tornado is undefeated in four starts and, as Woods says, "is head and shoulders above any other team in the area" in terms of the number of people in skill positions.

"They are big, fast, and experienced," Woods said, "which is every coach's dream."

The biggest gun for Keyser is three-year starter Sean Hill, who is averaging over 200 yards per game. The 5-8, 165-pound senior has been unstoppable by every defense so far this year. "Sean Hill has incredible strength and quickness, he has tremendous eyes that see almost the whole field on every play, he has three years of experience, and he is surrounded by a host of other good players," Woods said.

Some of those other good players are junior running back Phil Mele, 5-9, 160 pounds; junior tight end and linebacker Shannon Vissman, 6-2, 215 pounds; and senior tackle Todd Taylor, 6-5, 270 pounds. Hill and Taylor are both listed among the top 100 players in the eastern United States.

The regularly starting quarterback for Keyser, junior Mike Smith, 6-2, 175, will not play this week, as he is reportedly at home with mononucleosis. Sophomore Todd Parrill, 5-10, 165, is expected to get the nod from Coach Mike Calhoun to replace Smith.

Keyser uses multiple I-formations on offense, with most of the plays geared simply to get the ball to Hill. Their defense, which possesses excellent size and quickness, uses the five–front defensive formations.

The Rams held Hill to 124 yards on 33 carries last season and won the game, 14-10, in Keyser.

When asked how Keyser has built such a strong program, Woods stated that the main reason, in his opinion, is the fact that the Mineral County Board of Education spent $25,000 for a weight facility three years ago and students are given time during school to lift weights. The same is true at Musselman.

"It's tough for our kids to stay after school, especially during the winter months, to lift weights," Woods said. "This really makes a difference in the boys' condition in the fall. I believe that this, plus good coaching, has shot Keyser's program right to the top."

Injuries and illness continue to plague the Rams this week, as Steve Schrock is expected to be out with torn thumb ligaments; Rick Layton, starting center, who just returned to the lineup last week, is in the hospital following an automobile mishap Tuesday evening; Scott Werdebaugh is listed as probable, but is still fighting a nagging knee injury; Kevin Ford and Gary Wotring are questionable because of severe cases of the flu; Jamie Thomas, who was expected to dress last week, is again questionable for this week because he still has a cast on his hand; and Hunter DeBerry remains sidelined with a broken arm.

"This is the low ebb of my career in terms of injury and illness," Woods said Wednesday. "It's one thing to worry about the things that you have some control over. But these things are out of our control and it is terribly frustrating."

Nonetheless, Woods said that practice has been "good" this week and he is hoping Keyser is looking ahead a little bit toward their game with Allegany the following week.

"We know our kids are going to play hard this week," he said. "And if ever there were a time when a large, loud home crowd was really needed, this is the time."

Huskies Victim Of Big Play In 35-6 Defeat By Beall

The big play has broken many a football game wide open, and the Northern Huskies were victims of the big play last Friday evening when they were defeated by Beall, 35-6, in Frostburg. It was the fourth straight defeat of the Huskies in as many starts, while the Mountaineers improved their record to 2-2.

Three of Beall's touchdowns were a result of rather spectacular plays by the Mountaineers, while their defense showed it was well prepared for Kevin Sines' passing ability

Brian Miller, who rushed for 78 yards on 17 carries, opened the scoring for Beall with a four-yard run in the first quarter. Bill McFarland raced for the two-point conversion.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Huskies were held deep in their own territory and forced to quick kick the ball, setting the stage for the first of Beall's big plays. Maryland track champion Lamar Hall found some daylight and raced 40 yards for the Mountaineers' second six-pointer. Jeff Hunter booted the extra point, giving the home team a 15-0 advantage.

The Huskies responded with a drive capped by a 12-yard touchdown pass from Sines to Rodney Lipscomb, Northern's only points of the game. Sines' pass for the two-pointer was incomplete.

The 15-6 score held throughout the second quarter as both offenses failed to move the ball.

On the first play from scrimmage in the second half, Doug Haberlein broke loose on a 63-yard touchdown run, which essentially put the game away for Beall. Hunter again added the extra point.

On the next Northern series, Eric Harman intercepted one of Sines' aerials and raced 54 yards for Beall's fourth touchdown. The extra point attempt failed.

A four-yard pass from McFarland to Shevin Kuperman in the final quarter, followed by Hunter's third successful extra point kick, capped the night's scoring.

Haberlein added 71 yards to Beall's total offense of 304 yards on six carries.

Sines managed to complete only six of 18 pass attempts and had four aerials picked off by the speedy Beall secondary.

"The big plays beat us," Northern Coach Jack Settle stated. "We moved the ball fairly well early in the game, but after we got so far behind in the third quarter, we had to abandon our game plan."

Settle said his biggest fear going into the game was that the Huskies did not have the ability to contain Beall's speed. "Unfortunately, that proved to be the case," he said.

"Their secondary was the best we have seen in a long time," he said. "We were able to get our receivers open, but just as the ball reached them, their secondary people just came out of nowhere." One such instance was a ball that went nearly 50 yards in the air from Sines to Wayne Tabor, who was open, but Hall dashed in to grab the interception.

"Not only did they have such unusual speed, they also read our patterns very well," Settle said.

There were some bright spots for the Huskies, such as the fact that they were penalized only four times, including a single illegal procedure call. Northern had been plagued with procedure penalties in the first three games because of poor timing and mental errors.

Settle also noted the remarkable performance of senior linebacker Bill Friend (6-2, 222), who finished with 28 tackles, including five solo shots and 18 first-hit tackles. Friend, who was named defensive player of the game, was switched from the line to middle linebacker two weeks ago. "Billy has obviously made the transition with flying colors," Settle said. "He played an outstanding game."

Matt Eggleston, also a linebacker for the Huskies, was in on 16 tackles, but was named offensive player of the game for his steady performance at center. "The films show that Matt did not miss a single blocking assignment," Settle said. Eggleston, who normally plays guard offense, was moved to center for the Beall game.

Calling the efforts of his specialty teams "a big disappointment", Settle said the staff did not name anyone to receive the specialty teams player of the week.

The Huskies will continue to strive for their first win of the season this Friday night when they travel to West Virginia to do battle with Berkeley Springs.

Although Berkeley Springs is 1-4 on the season, their losses include a last-second 9-5 loss to Beall two weeks ago and a triple overtime defeat last week to Moorefield. They also fell to powerful Petersburg by just eight points, 14-6.

Bill Clatterbuck's squad includes 18 lettermen and 14 seniors from last season's 7-3 team. Among the standouts are senior tailback Carl Clark, 6-0, 185; fullback Junior Sherrard, 5-11, 196; and senior tackle Kelly Harris, 6-0, 205.

Gone from last year's squad is All-State and All-Potomac Valley Conference quarterback Joe Didawick, who passed for a school record of 1,667 yards last season.

Traditionally a passing team, especially with the likes of Didawick, the Indians have settled down to primarily a running game, however Settle said McClintock is beginning to connect on his passing as well.

The Indians run a wide variety of offensive formation. "You have to be ready for everything, if that's possible," Settle said. Defensively, they use a 4-4 stack formation, plus a 5-2 eagle.

"They have been in every game defensively this year," Settle said. "They have good pursuit and plenty of experience. This is another senior-dominated team."

The Hukies lost to the Indians last season in the final 29 seconds of the game when the Indians scored on a fourth down and 19 desperation play. The previous year, Northern topped them, 3-0.

"Our games with Berkeley Springs have almost always been close, which has created an excellent rivalry," Settle said. "We are anticipating another close one this year."

Settle said his team is in good health, including Kevin Sines who was hobbled by an ankle injury last week.

"We plan to do the best we can," Settle said, "which is all anyone can do."

Northern Girls Raise Volleyball Record To 5-0

The Northern varsity girls' volleyball team raised its record to 5-0 this past week with wins over cross-county rival Southern and Hancock.

The Lady Huskies topped Southern last Wednesday evening, 15-9, 15-7, and 15-3.

Coach Vonda Yunker called the Northern-Southern match "one of the most exciting and best played contests" so far this season.

"Both teams were hitting well and the crowd saw some outstanding long volleys and saves," she said.

Leading the scoring for the Huskies were Jenny Dailey, who was 18 for 18 on the service line with 13 points, including three aces, and Julie Robeson, who had ten points. Amy Swauger recorded seven spike points, while Robeson added six.

Defensive standouts were Robeson with six blocks and Tammy Swauger with two saves.

The Huskies recorded 66 good serves out of 68 attempts, for 97 percent accuracy.

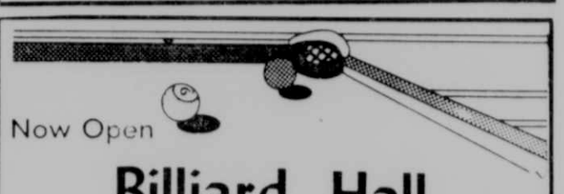
Northern had no trouble Monday evening in gaining its fifth win, as the Huskies blasted Hancock, 15-2, 15-1, and 15-1.

Swauger was 25 for 25 in serving, good for 21 points. Jenny Dailey and Karen Frank recorded nine and six points, respectively, in serving. Robeson led the attack with nine spike points.

Leading the defense were Laura Sines, Sherri Frantz, and Tammy Swauger.

The jayvee Huskies lost their match to Southern, 15-6 and 15-5. Lisa Swauger and Shayne Couch each had four points for Northern.

The jayvee squad rebounded against Hancock, however, winning 15-3 and 15-12. Sonya Yelovich and Kim Frantz scored ten and seven points, respectively, while a solid defensive performance was displayed by Julie Yommer.



The jayvees are now 2-1.

Five-Hitter By Huyett Highlight Of Laker Win

A five-hitter by Chris Huyett paced the Garrett Community College Lakers to a 12-2 romp over CCAC Boyce Campus Tuesday afternoon at McHenry, lifting the Lakers to 5-3-1 on the fall season.

The game was shortened to five innings because of the 10-run rule.

A single by Brad Basinger scored the first two runs of the ten-run fifth inning by the Lakers. Bruce Erminio added a bases-loaded triple and Benny Shreve rapped a two-run double.

Huyett recorded three strikeouts and two walks in his win over Gary Carrassnesi.

The Lakers will conclude their fall schedule this weekend with doubleheaders against Penn State Beaver Campus on Saturday and against Beaver County CC on Sunday. Both twinbills will be away.

Jets, Raiders Record Victories

The Oakland Raiders and Oakland Jets both recorded wins in Mt. Top Youth Football League action Sunday afternoon.

The Raiders upped their record to 5-0 by rolling over the Thomas-Davis Rams, 25-7, in Oakland, while the Jets improved to 4-1 by blanking the Terra Alta Dolphins, 13-0, on the Northern High field.

Bobby Orr led the Raiden offense with 113 yards and touchdown runs of ten and 80 yards. Quarterback Mike Fulmer connected with Kevin Lohr on a 35-yard pass/run touchdown and Jeremy Lewis added a 70-yard scoring run on a fake punt play.

Mike Dever paced the Raider defensive unit with seven tackles, including two sacks, plus a pair of blocked punts, which Raider coaches called the best individual defensive effort of the season. Mondo Polce, Fulmer, Scott Rohrbaugh, and Chad Ward also had strong defensive performances.

The win broke the League record of 19 consecutive wins.

The Jets rolled up a total of 219 yards offensively, while the defense limited the Dolphins to only two first downs all afternoon.

After a scoreless first half, Jet quarterback Tommy Ritchey hit Jamie Ashby with a 34-yard touchdown strike in the third quarter. The Jets added an insurance touchdown in the final period when Ritchey found Marshall Pike in the end zone with a five-yard aerial. Pike tacked on the extra point.

Pike led the Jets' rushing with 104 yards on 15 carries, while Billy Welch recorded 54 yards on 14 attempts. Ritchey was four for eight in passing for 54 yards and both touchdowns.

The Jet defense forced three turnovers and one quarterback sack by Robby Reckart. Mike Tasker and James Pysell each had a fumble recovery, while Welch pulled down an interception. Pysell, Eric Jamison, Ritchey, and Pike led the tackling.

SHS Volleyball Team Wins Two

The Southern varsity girls' volleyball team upped its season record to 4-1 this week by crushing Fort Hill on Monday in Cumberland and defeating Bruce last night in Oakland. The Lady Rams swept three straight games over the Sentinels, 15-7, 15-5, and 15-5, and likewise topped the Bulldogs, 15-10, 15-9, and 15-7.

The Southern jayvee squad was also victorious in both contests, topping Fort Hill, 15-10 and 15-8, and edging Bruce, 17-15 and 15-8.

Against Fort Hill, Chris Gregory paced the Rams with 12 points, followed by Leslie Ellis with 11 and Joy Thrasher with 11, seven of which were service aces.

Debbie Bateman and Kelly Evans led the jayvees against Fort Hill, with eight and six points, respectively.

Gregory again paced the varsity against Bruce with 12 points, while Thrasher finished with nine and Ellis, eight. Stacy Sines recorded five blocks for the Rams and Stephanie Lewis had eight spikes. Ellis was the setter for 17 spikes.

Lisa Dever led the jayvee team with ten points over Bruce, while Evans and Bateman each accounted for seven.

The next match for the Southern girls will be at Beall on Monday, followed by a home match against Valley on Wednesday.

The Lady Rams are coached by Helen Rostosky.

NATIONAL CHESS DAY was proclaimed by President Reagan for October 5 and a similar proclamation was issued this week by the Garrett County commissioners. The En Passant Chess Association, which is sponsored by the Maryland National Guard NCO Club in Oakland, is displaying chess material and equipment at the Ruth Enlow Library this week. Members of the organization believe that chess "contributes significantly to personal intellectual and character development, as well as fosters understanding and friendship among people." Leif Piper, president of the local group, and Philip Riccobono, secretary/treasurer, will be among the club members at the library on October 5 from noon to 4 p.m. to play chess with interested persons and answer questions they may have about the club. The club meets every second and fourth Mondays of the month at the Armory from 7 to 11 p.m. Persons may call 334-1490 weekdays after 6 p.m. for more information. In the photo with Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Elwood Groves, and John Braskey, are, left to right, Richard Seeders, vice president; Piper and Riccobono.

Northern Jayvees Topped By Beall

The Northern High jayvee football team fell to 1-3 on the season Monday evening as visiting Beall blanked the Huskies, 17-0.

Chris Emerick raced for a 30-yard touchdown and added a 30-yard field goal to pace the Mountaineers, while Gary Taylor scored from one yard out. Emerick finished with 65 yards on 13 carries.

Northern's defensive unit was spearheaded by Steve Brenneman, Dan Eggleston, and Jim Speicher. Shane Rottier, Matt Eichhorn and Don Carter paced Beall's defense.

It was the second win for Beall in four starts.

feat is," Caruso said. "I have been absolutely astonished at the accomplishments of our students. I am beginning to believe that nothing is impossible for them if they are properly motivated, encouraged, and reinforced."

Caruso has also had a handful of students who have scored 100 percent on all six events, the ultimate in physical fitness scores.

"Another important distinction that must be made is the difference between athletic ability and physical fitness," Caruso said. "You may have no particularly great athletic abilities, but you can still be physically fit. On the other hand, you may have special abilities, but be physically out of shape.

"We concentrate not so much on ability, but on physical fitness," he continued. "Most children will never get an opportunity on the high school or college level to win a trophy or ribbon in athletic competition. Many children simply do not have the physical ability to even be a member of a team sport in school. But this is one of the joys of our system — a child does not compete against anyone but himself. And he is awarded just for improving. He doesn't have to beat someone else, or reach some level of fitness that is impossible for him. He can also work at his own pace."

Caruso said a number of youngsters who, in his opinion, would never be able to win the award have proven him wrong. "Sometimes when a child gets an award in four or five of the events, he 'catches fire' and works until he earns the other one or two."

Candy Parker is a Broad Ford student who won the award last year as a fourth grader. "Mr. Caruso really helped me last year," she said, "and I am really going to try to win it again this year."

Josh Woods was among the elite group of second graders two years ago who won the award. He also won the award last year as a third grader and plans to capture it again this year and score 95 percent or above on all six events. Doing so will place him in the Broad Ford Hall of Fame, just one more honor in the Caruso system.

"Mr. Caruso lets me practice every day after school," Josh said, moments after doing 50 sit-ups in one minute. When asked how he felt after receiving the award, he said, "really proud of myself."

The spawning of this pride in his students, and the continual reinforcement and nurturing of it, seems to be the major ingredient in the success of Caruso's program.

"You can watch a student's self-esteem and self-confidence grow and grow in this program, which is what I feel is the greatest reward," Caruso said. "The fact that they become better physically fit is great, but even more important is how they feel about themselves. This confidence then spills over into their other classes and, hopefully, in all aspects of their lives."

Caruso said he believes that much of our educational system stifles creativity in children, destroys incentive, and provides little or no motivation. "I am convinced that motivation is the key, whether it is in a phys ed class, or a math or science class," he said. "Teachers must be taught better methods of motivation so their students want to learn and to improve. If a child is motivated, he will progress."

Caruso also credited the past administration (Wayne Johnson) and the present administration (Tom Fowler), along with the school's PTA, for being "extremely supportive" of the physical education program. "They played a big role in our having won the state championship," he said.

The letter received by Fowler at the school notifying him of the school's state award was from George Allen, former coach of the Washington Redskins and now chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness. In part the letter said:

"This accomplishment is a tribute to the high quality of your school's physical fitness program. Please extend my congratulations to your students and faculty for this outstanding achievement."

Many proud parents and other citizens of Garrett County no doubt join Mr. Allen in the tossing of accolades to Phil Caruso, the students and staff of Broad Ford Elementary School.

County Divided Into Two Zones For Doe Hunting

The Maryland Forest, Park, and Wildlife Service issued a reminder and clarification this week to hunters that, for the first time, Garrett County will be divided into two zones for antlerless deer hunting this fall (see map). Al Bourgeois, district wildlife manager, stated that the zoning has caused considerable confusion, resulting in numerous telephone calls to his office.

Bourgeois stated that the zoning was initiated to better direct the antlerless deer harvest to areas in the county where crop damage from deer is a problem, while maintaining the deer population at desirable levels in other parts of the county.

Boundaries of each zone are shown on the map. Zone 1 includes the eastern portion of Garrett County from the Allegany-Garrett county line west to where U.S. Rt. 40 enters Maryland from Pennsylvania, then follows Rt. 40 to the junction with U.S. Rt. 219 at Keysers Ridge, then proceeds south on Rt. 219 to Oakland, then follows State Rt. 135 to State Rt. 560 at Loch Lynn, then south on Rt. 560 to the Potomac River at Gorman. Zone 2 includes the remainder of the county west of Zone 1.

One thousand anterless (doe) permits will be issued for Zone 1, while 1,400 permits will be issued in Zone 2. As in previous years, hunters will be selected by random computer drawing. Antlerless deer permits will be mailed approximately two weeks prior to the firearms season, Bourgeois said. Those hunters not selected will be notified at that time.

According to an AARP spokesman, participants will learn about what steps they can take to lead healthier lives; how to conduct physician assignment surveys in their communities; how to survey and compare prices for health products; and how to conduct educational forums on a variety of topics.

The program is free and open to all interested persons. For more information, persons may contact Mary B. McRobie, president of Chapter 779, at 334-4837.

Hunters can find the antlerless deer hunting application in the guide to hunting and trapping which they receive when they buy their hunting license. Persons applying for an antlerless permit must specify which zone in which they wish to hunt. Information on zone designations can be found on the back of the application.

Persons entitled to hunt without having a license or deer stamp do not need a permit to hunt antlerless deer. Persons hunting in the wrong zone are subject to arrest for hunting without a valid doe permit.

Antlerless deer permit applications must be postmarked no later than October 18. Hunters may apply for only one county and only one zone within the county in which they plan to hunt. Anyone submitting more than one application will be eliminated from the drawing, Bourgeois said. The permit application must be mailed in an envelope.

Persons desiring more information may contact Bourgeois at Mt. Nebo Wildlife Management Area, telephone 334-4255.

AARP To Offer Slide Program

Garrett County Chapter 779, American Association of Retired Persons, will offer a slide/tape program on Wednesday, October 9, at the Oakland fire hall.

The title of the program, which will get underway at 1 p.m., is "You Can Make a Difference: Consumer Action and Health Promotion." Prepared by the AARP Health Advocacy Services section, the program reveals how community and individual action can help change the nation's health care system for the better. It is part of the AARP's Health Care Campaign, entitled "Healthy U.S. — Cut the Cost, Keep the Care."

State Police Report Thefts, DOP, Arrest

Maryland State Police reported several thefts, destruction of property incidents, and one arrest in the past week.

A breaking and entering theft occurred on the Deep Creek drive sometime between 4 p.m. September 15 and 8:30 p.m. September 20.

According to the police, someone entered the summer cabin of Melanie D. Myers, Pittsburgh, by breaking glass in a door and unlocking the latch.

Stolen items included a Ruger revolver and a 13-inch color television with remote control, totaling $480. All drawers in the bedroom were also searched, but apparently no other items were removed, according to Tfc. D.G. Riggleman.

A breaking and entering theft occurred September 17 at a private residence in Friendsville.

Wayne A. Anderson, Friendsville, reported that two 20" Huffy bicycles, one a boys' model and one a girls', were taken from his residence. Losses totaled $225.

Tfc. Gary Resh investigated the incident.

Jeanne L. Roberts, Monkton, reported a theft of a radar detector and six twenty-dollar bills from a summer cottage in Sky Valley.

Tfc. R.C. Resh reported that the radar detector has been recovered.

Melvin E. Smith reported a theft which occurred between 4 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. September 14.

According to the police, someone took cash, mixed change, and a check from Pizza Hut, Inc., from a jar in Smith's bedroom. Losses totaled approximately $174.

Tfc. C.R. Smith investigated the report.

Russell J. Settle, Accident, reported a destruction of property at his residence which occurred between 11 p.m. September 18 and 7 a.m. September 19.

According to the police, all four tires on his 1976 Chrysler Cordoba and one tire on his 1982 Datsun Sentra were punctured. Total damages reached $180.

Four road signs were also placed in Settle's yard and hedges.

Robert K. Graham, 23, New Martinsville, W.Va., was arrested September 21 on the Chestnut Ridge Road for possessing a set of nunchaka.

Cpl. C.A. Berkebile reported that he stopped Graham's vehicle for a traffic violation, then saw the nunchaka in the back seat.

The State Highway Administration reported a destruction of property which occurred at the Cove Overlook between 9:30 p.m. September 22 and 12:30 p.m. September 23.

According to the police, someone kicked and destroyed a white porcelain commode in the men's restroom. Damages totaled $600.

Tfc. Dale K. Williams investigated the report.

A destruction of property incident occurred at Northern Middle School between 12:30 and 6 a.m. September 24.

According to the police, someone soaped 17 windows in the building, and all the windows on the driver's education car. No damage to the building was reported, but the left pole of the Camp Hickory sign was pushed over. The right side remains intact.

Tfc. Dale K. Williams investigated the incident.

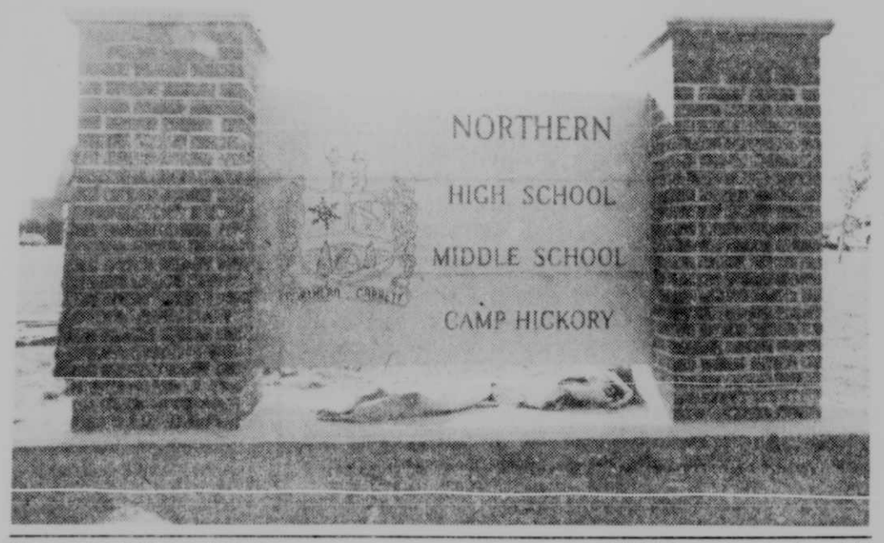
Southern Student Scores High In Merit Program

Southern High School has been notified by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) that Jonathan Reneslacis has been designated a Commended Student in the 1986 Merit Program. Arthur A. Refosco, principal, announced that Reneslacis will receive a Letter of Commendation in honor of outstanding academic promise, demonstrated by placing in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 31st annual National Merit Scholarship Program.



Reneslacis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Juris Reneslacis, Kitzmiller, is active in numerous school activities and athletics.

An officer of NMSC, which administers the program, stated that, "Being named a Commended Student in the extremely competitive Merit Program is a credit to these young men and women and to their schools, which play an important role in the development of academically talented youth. The high test performance of Commended Students is indicative of exceptional scholastic ability, which is essential in a nation that prides itself on cultivating individual excellence."

Participants entered the current Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in October 1984, when most of them were juniors. Although their qualifying test scores are very high, the 35,000 Commended Students nationwide scored slightly below the level required for semifinalist standing. Only the 15,000 Semifinalists, whose names were announced on September 11, will continue in the competition for some 5,800 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1986.

Applied Music Lessons Offered At Garrett CC

The Continuing Education Division of Garrett Community College is offering Applied Music Lessons at the McHenry Campus of the college. These lessons are presently available and are to be individually arranged for one-half hour per week for a total of 18 weeks with the instructor. Instruction will be in the areas of instrumental, keyboard and voice.

Instrumental instruction will provide an examination of tone, pitches, articulation, scales, arpeggios and phrasing with a goal toward standardized capabilities. This instruction will introduce all musical concepts, techniques, and interpretations relative to the instrument.

Keyboard instruction will include an introduction to keyboard nomenclature, fingering, hand position, chords, articulation, scales, arpeggios, and phrasing. The course is foundational to all concepts, techniques, and proficiencies which follow on any keyboard.

Voice instruction will provide an examination of breathing techniques, tone projection, diction, phrasing, enunciation, and vocal control imperative to standardized vocal quality. This instruction is an introduction to all musical concepts, techniques and interpretative skills which follow in introducing the student to nomenclature and methods relative to voice.

Method books and instruments may be purchased or rented from the instructor and a piano and keyboard are available at the college.

These lessons will be instructed by George McDowell, Jr., who is presently teaching Music Fundamentals and instrumental Music for the Humanities & General Studies credit division of the college. McDowell is also band director and instructor at Zion School in Grantsville.

Individuals interested in enrolling in Applied Music Lessons or for more information, including cost, should contact the Continuing Education Division of the college at 334-8266.

OCPD Arrests One Man, Probes Two Area Thefts

A Crellin man was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct in a public place last night by members of the Oakland City Police Department, according to a report filed by Chief John K. Sines.

David Edwin Liller, 24, was apprehended at P.C.'s Restaurant by Cpl. Ronald Beeghly and Officer Randy Sines and incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail. He was released on his own recognizance this morning.

Sgt. Rodger Lewis is currently investigating the breaking and entering and theft which was reported by Doug's Auto Repair Shop last Friday.

Lewis said the culprits gained entry through the front door by breaking a hasp and took over $3,000 worth of assorted tools.

Another theft is being investigated by Chief Sines which occurred at Mattingly's Coin Laundry on Crook Street sometime between September 29 and October 1. Sines said an undetermined amount of quarters were taken from two triple-load washing machines.

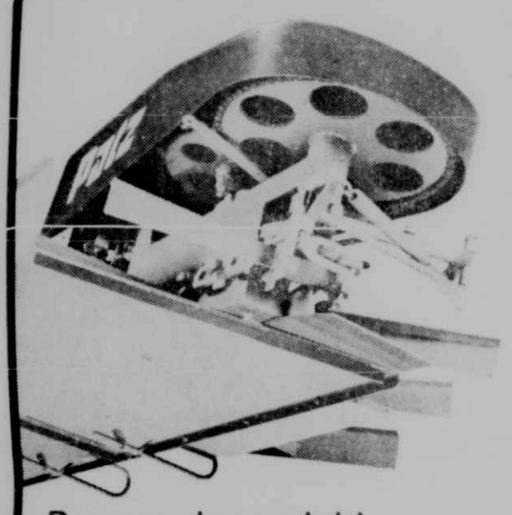
Hospital Plan Hearing Delayed

The Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission has accepted a hearing date delay for the reduced hospital capacity plan. The request was filed by the Maryland Hospital Association.

According to Kery Hummel, executive director of the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland, the hearing which was previously scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m. at Lane Center at Frostburg State College, will now be held at the end of October.



The reason for the action, he said, was to permit hospitals more time to consider ways to voluntarily reduce excess acute care hospital beds before the state continues the formal process to adopt a hospital capacity plan known by health planners as the HCP.

Maryland Farmers Cautioned Against Moving Loan Grain

Olin S. Davis, chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service cautions farmers not to jeopardize their eligibility for the farm-stored loan program by removing grain without obtaining permission. "Farmers who plan to commingle their 1985 and 1984 harvests and request a loan also need to check with us first," he said.

Davis said any removal of mortgaged grain before repayment of the loan or receipt of release authorization is considered unauthorized removal and subject to penalty. Farm program regulations require that farmers notify ASCS if they intend to sell loan grain, or if the grain is out of condition and needs to be moved. He said if the grain is to be used for feed and the loan must be repaid before it is removed from the storage bin.

The ASCS program authorizes loans to farmers who hold their grain off the market to benefit from future price increases. The grain under loan is then stored in an approved facility on the farm or in a commercial warehouse.

Unauthorized removal of reserve grain or grain under regular loan will result in the immediate repayment of the loan, plus interest, plus early redemption if applicable, denial of further loans and possible investigation by the Office of the Inspector General.

"Before moving any farm-stored grain, farmers should contact their County ASCS Office for specific details," the ASCS official said.

CORN LOANS AVAILABLE

Olin S. Davis Jr., Chairperson of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said that corn loans are available to Maryland farmers who participated in the 1985 farm programs. The corn loan rate is $2.82 per bushel. To obtain a price support loan on the 1985 crop, corn growers must have suitable storage on their farms or be able to secure storage space in an approved warehouse.

According to Davis, farmers in the state have 300,000 acres of corn enrolled in the 1985 acreage reduction program. "Many of these farmers have already expressed interest in the corn loan program and are storing their crops under loan to take advantage of future price increases that could occur after harvest and throughout the winter. The loan proceeds will provide these farmers with operating cash at this time." The stored grain serves as security for the loans.

Throughout the state, farmers expect to harvest 650,000 acres of corn this year compared to 590,000 acres harvested in 1984. As of September 10, the USDA's Statistical Reporting Service estimates Maryland's 1985 average corn yield at 100 bushels per acre, down from 118 bushels per acre last year. Based on this projection, the state's 1985 production will be 4.6 million less than the 1984 crop.

Davis said that the eligibility of 1985 corn for the farmer owned reserve will be determined by USDA after the regular 9-month price support loans mature.

In Memoriam . . .

In loving memory of our husband, father, and grandfather, Fred Otto, who went to be with the Lord October 3, 1980.

Five long years have come and gone
Since death's dark angel came to our home,
And carried away our Dad so dear.
We miss him so, there's a vacant chair.

Our Dad was sick for quite sometime,
I guess God needed another star to shine.
Mom stayed with Dad till he passed away
One cold evening at the end of day.

It seemed it was more than we could bear,
As we looked upon our loved one there.
In silent grief we gathered around,
While Dad was laid beneath the ground.

The songs they sing about Dad you see,
Bring back memories of our Dad to me.
Tho' five long years he has been gone,
We still miss dad when we go home.

Sadly missed and loved,
Frances, Peggy, Danny,
Susie, Darren and Stewart

Farm Bill Review

by Bernice Kepple

The latest news from Congress is a 45-day extension of the current farm program brought about by a voice vote in both houses very close to the September 30 deadline. The Senate bill has passed out of committee and a debate by the full Senate is scheduled to begin the week of October 14.

The biggest news, though, may be the result of the House of Representatives' debate on the dairy portion of the bill last Thursday. An amendment made by Olin Michel of Illinois, providing a straight price support system, was voted down, with a favorable vote going toward diversion and assessment programs, and whole herd reduction.

Under the diversion program, a farmer will bid to reduce his milk production anywhere from five percent up to 30 percent. Then he must rigidly adhere to that bid by eliminating cows. He would then be paid $10 per hundredweight for not producing that amount of milk. The bill will also have assessments but there are no limits written into the House bill as it stands now.

The dairy herd reduction plan provides that a farmer may submit a bid to USDA for all milk marketed during the previous 12 months, with the maximum bid being $10 per hundredweight; must dispose of all female cattle two years old and older if the bid is accepted; must send all cattle to slaughter, 20 percent of a registered herd would be exempt from slaughter but must be sold; and must agree to remain out of milk production for three years. All producers would be assessed to finance the program.

The beginning support price, derived from a complex formula attempting to determine what the average cost of production is, will be $11.74. There will be a maximum assessment of 50 cents per hundredweight, a 15 cents per hundredweight deduction for promotion, and three cents per hundredweight deducted for research.

Many things can happen within this 45-day extension. The Senate Ag Committee's bill is supposedly similar to the Olin Michel amendment just defeated in the House. When the House and Senate meet to merge their separate bills into one 1985 Farm Bill, compromises will have to be made.

To add to the speculation, President Reagan, who had stated that he would veto the bill if it went over budget, now seems to be wavering slightly, according to Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes office. As for the president's statement that he would not sign a bill with a dairy diversion program, Sarbanes office says he may wait and see what kind of program the bill ends up with.

The only other portion of the farm bill voted on by the House was the sugar provision. An amendment to reduce the loan rate by one cent per year for the next three years was voted down. The current loan rate of 18 cents per pound for sugarcane will remain, with the sugar beet rate to be fair and reasonable in relation to the sugarcane loan rate.

The next portion of the bill scheduled to be debated in the House is wheat and feed grains. Included in this portion is the Bedell marketing certificate program amendment providing for a referendum of wheat and feed grain producers to establish a voluntary program. If the referendum passes, marketing certificates would be issued to farmers who sign up for the program.

The farmer could borrow against his crop at $4.50 for wheat and $3.25 for corn. The marketing certificate would equal his normal yield times his allowable planted acreage. He would have to set aside 20 percent of his feed grain acreage and 35 percent of his wheat acres.

However, all grain sold domestically would have to be accompanied by a marketing certificate, and these commodities could not be bought or sold at less than the loan rates. Any farmer who chooses not to participate could feed his grain, but could not sell it except for export. The export price for producers not in the program would be set at prevailing world prices. Now if the dairy program alone doesn't frighten you, add to it the increase in feed costs this Bedell amendment could cause, not just to dairy farmers but livestock and poultry producers as well.

There is still time for concerned farmers to call their congressmen with their views and opinions on the wheat and feed grains portion and other general portions of the bill. So if you have strong feelings about the Bedell amendment, either pro or con, don't just sit back, call your Representatives with your opinions. They care, and isn't it the least you can do to protect your way of life?

Beef Management Tips

Fall is the time when a lot of calves will be weaned in Garrett County and stay in the County. It is also the time cows and calves should go through the chute.

Many farmers like to work calves through the chute 3-4 weeks before weaning to give the shots. Calves should receive vaccinations for IBR, PI3 with Haemophilus, 7-way Clostridal (Black Leg) and BVD. Calves should be dewormed and receive an insecticide for grubs and lice.

The only Pasturella preventing vaccine that is apparently getting the job done is PRECON PH which is a relatively new intradermal vaccine that does appear to be doing a good job in protecting calves against Pasturella Pneumonia which is the malady that kills most calves that die from respiratory problems. Pasturella is the most common bacteria that is isolated in cattle pneumonia and shipping fever. It has a lot of potential in the prevention of losses from pneumonia in feeder calves, stocker cattle and veal calves.

Cows should go through the chute and have a systemic for grubs and lice. They probably should be dewormed at the same time. The deadline for treating for grubs is by November 1. Cows should receive an annual Leptospirosis and Vibriosis vaccination. Check with your veterinarian for herd or area problems.

Fall is culling time. Open cows should be culled out. Also check the cows over and decide if she can do the job for another year.

Ivomec is a new injectable that is highly effective against internal and external parasites. It is a safe, easy to use, injectable that does not sting the cattle. It is more expensive and must be obtained through a vet.

A herd health program can prevent losses and a lot of headaches. Consult with your veterinarian. A test of insecticides and amount of use per 100 lbs. of body weight may be obtained from the Extension Office.

North Garrett Chapter Of FFA Elects Officers

The North Garrett Chapter of Future Farmers of America met recently and among the business items was election of officers for the 1985-86 school year.

The chapter is now planning events for the school year, including a major project at the Garrett County Fairgrounds and a number of judging trips.

The chapter was represented in the regional soil judging contest last week by John Miller, Tim Rodeheaver, and Kevin Wassell. The results of the contest are presently unavailable.

Hurricane Gloria Slows Fieldwork

Heavy rains as a result of hurricane Gloria slowed harvest of corn and hay along with small grain planting across Eastern Maryland. An average 5.7 days were suitable for fieldwork statewide, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. Topsoil moisture and subsoil are now adequate throughout the state.

Corn remains in fair to good condition. Corn has reached the dent stage in all fields across the state, equal to normal development. Eighty-five percent of the corn crop is now mature, one week ahead of last year but equal to the normal progress. Corn harvest for silage is 95 percent complete, one week ahead of last year and 5 percent ahead of the normal pace. Corn for grain harvest at 50 percent complete is also nearly a week ahead of last year and 10 percent ahead of normal.

Hay cutting made excellent progress during the week. Farmers in western Maryland were able to cut hay a full seven days since they received only light rains from the hurricane. At week's end, 80 percent of the alfalfa hay crop had been cut four times, one week ahead of the last year, but slightly behind the normal 75 percent cut by September 29. The fourth cutting of other hay is now 75 percent complete.

Small grain seeding made good progress early in the week but slowed at week's end. Barley was 40 percent planted by the time Gloria hit. This is equal to 1984 and slightly ahead of the average 35 percent planted by the end of September. Planting of wheat advanced to the 25 percent level, well ahead of the 10 percent planted in 1984 and the normal 15 percent seeded by now. Rye seeding at 35 percent fell behind last year's 40 percent but is equal to the normal progress for this time of year. Oat seeding had been completed on 25 percent of the acreage by week's end. Excellent weather for seeding in western Maryland, which received light rains, made this progress possible. Oat seeding is one week ahead of last year's 10 percent and 10 percentage points ahead of the normal 15 percent seeded by this date.

The apple crop remains in good condition. Apple harvest, at 70 percent complete, is about 4 days ahead of last year's 65 percent and nearly a week ahead of the normal 55 percent picked by September 29.

WEATHER

Weather for the week ended September 27 was warm and wet. Temperatures averaged mostly one to three degrees above normal. High temperatures were in the mid 80's, and lows were in the mid 40's north and west and mid 50's elsewhere. Precipitation averaged 4.11 inches, mostly as a result of hurricane Gloria. Precipitation ranged from a light 0.50 inches at Oakland to a heavy 7.42 inches at Royal Oak.

Old Grantsville School Experiences Re-Birth

by Craig Speicher

THE OLD AND THE NEW — Grantsville resident Almira Turner Stanton has identified the above circa 1909 photo as how the old Grantsville School appeared when she was graduated from it in 1925. According to a 1950 issue of the Glades Star, this structure was built around 1867. The hill behind the old school today resulted from the dumping of dirt, removed for additional foundations, when the early building was expanded to its present size (see photo below). The above photo was taken by the late, noted photographer Leo Beachy. (Courtesy of Maxine Broadwater.) The former Grantsville School now houses a unique variety of apartments, shops, and even government offices.

Under the new banner of Casselman Ventures, the old Grantsville school has been "born again."

And with a history that dates from earliest construction in 1867, the former school presents the interesting paradox of being both one of Garrett County's oldest structures and simultaneously one of the most modern.

Vacated when the Garrett County Board of Education opened the new town school in 1980, the building now flourishes again under the renovative design of its new owners, Ivan and Della Miller, a Mennonite couple who also own the neighboring historic Casselman Inn and the adjacent former Catholic Church.

Reconstruction begun in May 1982 under the supervision of Mrs. Miller's nephew, Clifford Maust, has transformed the original two-story red-brick building into a maze of apartments, shops and offices that occupy about one acre.

According to Miller, approximately 75% of the old structure has been demolished and reconstructed entirely, creating space now filled by 15 occupied apartments; the Casselman Crafts and Gift Shop; Sport About Unlimited Athletic Enterprise; and the Region I offices of the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems.

Plainly, renovation to date has been a success; compliments abound.

According to Ruth Horning, a tenant at Casselman Ventures for six months now, "People who went to school here can't believe what the Millers have been able to do" by way of development. And Mary McKenzie, who taught for years in the old school until retiring in 1975, says of the change, "I can't get over it."

One of the building's most popular qualities is its solid construction. Resident Debbie Graham, who along with her husband, Robert, had resided in Va., Illinois, and New Jersey before moving to Grantsville, says "These are the quietest apartments we've lived in."

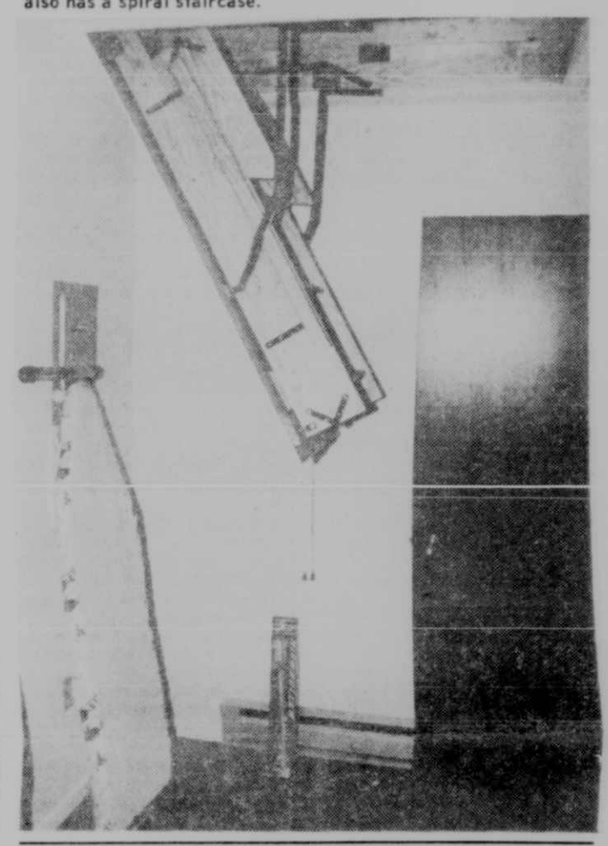
Mrs. Horning concurs: "it can rain or thunder and you can't hear a thing in here."

Robert Graham attributes the quiet ambience partly to the building's special, two-pane windows; and crafts shop proprietor Marian Beitzel reports numerous customers remark how cool the shop remains without air conditioning, even on Grantsville's hotter days.

Possibly the apartments' most impressive quality, however, is their striking lack of the monotonous duplicity from one unit to the next, common to larger, urban apartment complexes.

Indeed, the Millers planned it that way. "They wanted to make each of the apartments look different, so they wouldn't look like the old classrooms," explains Mrs. Horning. As a result, each apartment "was designed as went along," says Miller.

Generous investments of planning, labor, and quality materials have paid off. Unique features include additional, overhead storage space accessed by pulling down hideaway stairs; split-level units accentuated by spiral staircase; breakfast bar; and ceilings constructed over exposed rustic beams of timber, "it came from the Millers' farm," notes Mrs. Horning. Four apartments have open-air balconies, and all include wall-to-wall carpeting.



Facilities include three parking lots, a laundromat, and the yet-undeveloped gymnasium occasionally used for informal recreation.

OPEN-AIR BALCONIES for four separate apartments seem so out of place when one considers they are located on the side of a building that was originally the Grantsville School. However, the balconies are but one feature of the apartments which also boast rustic wooden beams on the ceilings made from timber from the farm of Ivan and Della Miller, owners of the complex, plus hideaway stairs which pull down from the ceiling and unfold to provide access to overhead storage space. One apartment unit also has a spiral staircase.

Rental costs are as low as $175 per month for an efficiency apartment. Other units range in size from one-bedroom up to the single apartment with four bedrooms.

From the beginning in November 1981, the Millers' business acumen has displayed

Society adopted the rule that men aren't supposed to cry outwardly. So they cry inwardly. You'd be surprised how often!

They say there's nothing wrong with a good cry — outward or inward. That's true as long as you wipe away your tears ready to carry on with courage, and a good idea of what God wants you to do.

The Bible makes many references to tears and weeping. But it keeps pointing to God as our source of comfort and guidance in every trial.

Search every day your Bible's answers to the challenges of life. This week study Revelations 21:4 for its assurances of strength and hope.

Each Sunday in Church join the millions for whom faith is replacing the crying towel.

THE WORLD IS FLAT!!

This statement would not have got you much of an argument back in the 1400's—most people believed it. Of course, Columbus and others have proved it wrong and we have come a long way in the explanation of our planet and universe.

In the field of health, we have also made fantastic progress. Whooping cough, typhoid, diphtheria, bubonic plague and the fears that were associated with them have all but vanished. The reason?—medical explorer's have developed vaccines, antibiotics and a host of other miraculous drugs that can prevent and cure such once dreaded afflictions.

CONDEMNATION OR CONSECRATION?

October 6, 1985

Background Scripture:
1 Timothy 1:4; Titus 2:1-5.
Devotional Reading:
1 Timothy 1:12-17.

Lots of people find 1 Timothy 4:1, 2 a handy prooftext. "...in latter times some will depart from the faith by giving heed to deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons through the pretensions of liars whose consciences are seared..." So, many Christians are "big" on "deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons." For them, the essence of Christianity is the condemnation of such "spirits and doctrines."

But one must read further in Timothy to get the true import of his message. For the writer of 1 Timothy goes on to speak, not of condemning "deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons," but of consecrating all of life: "For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving; for then it is consecrated by the word of God and prayer" (4:4,5).

TRAINING IN GODLINESS

The heart of Christianity, therefore, is consecration, not condemnation. It is to affirm the goodness of God's creation, not to condemn the evil in the world. Of course, there is evil. Of course, there are "deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons." But the way to respond is by "accentuating the positive," not dwelling on the negative. The best way to combat evil has always been, not to fight the evil, but to make the good work. If Christians spent half as much time in demonstrating the goodness of the gospel as in fighting against "false teachings," they would find the latter quite unnecessary.

The "false teachings" of which the writer to Timothy is speaking hold that the world is essentially an evil place. In the time when this letter was written, many preached against such "worldly" pursuits as marriage. Anything that was derived from the world was "evil."

THANKSGIVING FOR CREATION

But that is not the way the writer of 1 Timothy sees the world. "For everything created by God is good..." That is an earthshaking statement, and one that must be ignored if we are to believe that the world is "evil" and that Christians must hold themselves aloof from it. We cannot believe in the goodness of God's creation if we hold that the world is evil.

What this means is that God creates everything for good. But there is much in this world that can be used for evil. Our purpose as Christians, then, should be to use everything in this world as the gift God intended it to be. That means putting the world to good use. And one can do that, not by condemnation, but by consecration—receiving it with thanksgiving and hallowing it with prayer.

SHOW AND TELL

Miss Reed has high hopes for TV return

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — Shanna Reed doesn't know if she has a future — at least when it comes to "I Had Three Wives." The series, which starred Victor Garber as a detective who is abetted by his three ex-wives, aired its last episode Sept. 11. "Wives" was an early, six-week CBS summer entry, yet Miss Reed, along with Garber and co-stars Maggie Cooper and Teri Copley are optimistic for its return.

Shanna Reed

"All I know," says Miss Reed, "is that we were told not to sign any other contracts for any other show. We were told to stay free and wait until they let us know."

Miss Reed became an actress to add a little variety to her dancing career. She was born in Kansas, grew up in Arizona and started working when she turned 17 years old. When she first went to audition for a job in Las Vegas, her musician father accompanied her. What he and Miss Reed did not know, however, was that the job was for a topless dancer. She nixed that offer and got a spot as a "covered" dancer. She followed that job by joining a small dance troupe, spending most of her time touring Egypt, Portugal and Spain.

When she returned home, Miss Reed decided to try her luck in New York City — the fact that she was dating someone from there helped her make that decision.

It turned out to be a smart move. She wound up in "A Chorus Line" and Bob Fosse's "Dancin'." The latter role convinced her to try acting. Her role on the NBC soap "Texas" preceded a move west.

She portrayed Phyllis Wiecek on "For Love and Honor," the primetime NBC nighttime soap built around life on an Army base. The show was supposed to be a big winner, but it flopped badly. Thus, Miss Reed knows what it's like to be on a show that doesn't make it. She just hopes that "I Had Three Wives" is a different story.

Serial murderer helps Zigo return to life

By Frank Lovece

After his wife died, a distraught Brooklyn homicide detective named Eddie Zigo had a choice to make. After almost being killed in a hostage situation, he woke up, chose life and from that experience came "Out of the Darkness." The made-for-TV movie, tracing Zigo's career as he helped capture the serial killer Son of Sam, airs Saturday, Oct. 12 on CBS. Martin Sheen portrays Zigo.

Eddie Zigo

For 13 months during 1976-77, a disturbed young man named David Berkowitz shot and killed six people and critically wounded seven others. New York City police formed a task force to hunt down the unknown assailant. "They asked me to be on it," the now-retired 59-year-old Zigo recalls. "At the time, New York City had a freeze on promotions, and though taking this job could have meant a promotion, I had to turn it down. My wife was sick, so my choice was to spend as much time as I could with my family. After she was gone," he adds, "I didn't know which way to go. My head said crazy things."

With the help of a friend, a Jesuit priest (played in the movie by Hector Elizondo), Zigo eventually pulled himself together. And when Son of Sam struck in Zigo's Brooklyn neighborhood, the mourning detective decided to accept the task force assignment.

On August 10, 1977, Zigo and his partner followed a slim lead that took him into Yonkers, a city located about 20 miles north of New York City. After many tense hours, a police team arrested David Berkowitz.

"I spoke to him for 18 hours," Zigo remembers. "When he said to me, 'I'm not David, I'm Son of Sam,' I could feel the blood pumping in my veins. David," adds Zigo slowly, "was..." His voice trails off. A different voice returns. "Y'know, after the first 20 minutes, David asked me, 'Gee, can I call you Ed?' I think we connected with each other like two normal people."

Zigo also connected with Martin Sheen. "After the movie was through shooting, Martin wrote me a letter from Paris. He also wrote letters to both my kids. Y'know how busy he is? And he found time to do that! He is one special human being, lemme tell you."

An elderly eccentric actress (Dame Judith Anderson) relates her life and career to a Broadway producer and his assistant after being refused a part in their play, in "Bread," one of three dramas airing on "The Booth," Wednesday, Oct. 9 on PBS. (Check local listings.)

Emma, Tristan date; Hulswit keeps busy

By Kimberly Redmond

Is it true "General Hospital" stars Emma Samms and Tristan Rogers are dating in real life? — M.M., Perth Amboy, N.J.

Emma Samms

As of press time, Miss Samms, who will portray Fallon on "Dynasty II: The Colbys" when the series debuts in November, and Rogers are dating. Yet both insist that wedding bells won't ring anytime soon. Rogers has also indicated that he won't remain with the ABC soap when his contract comes up for renewal.

My friend insists that the actor who portrays Cass Winthrop on "Another World" is the same actor who portrays Tony Perelli on "Loving." I say they're two different actors. Who's right? — M.B., Augusta, Ga.

You win, M.B.! The role of Cass Winthrop is portrayed by Stephen Schnetzer. The role of Tony Perelli is portrayed by Richard McWilliams. Now go and collect!

I've really miss Mart Hulswit, the actor who portrayed William Edward Bauer on "The Guiding Light." He's been off the CBS soap for several years. Can you tell me what he's done since then? — M.N., W. Va.

Since departing "GL," Hulswit has appeared in the made-for-TV movie, "A Gift of Love: A Christmas Story," and on the nighttime series, "Nurse." He most recently appeared on Broadway in the play, "Present Laughter." The actor has also appeared in the theatrical production of "Same Time, Next Year." Few people know that after leaving "GL," Hulswit appeared briefly in the role of Ralph Purdy on "All My Children."

Don Johnson plays Ben Quick, a drifter who causes an uproar among the residents of a small Mississippi town, including schoolteacher Noel Varner (Judith Ivey, l.) and her flirtatious sister-in-law, Eula (Cybill Shepherd), in "The Long Hot Summer." It airs in two parts on NBC, Sunday and Monday, Oct. 6 and 7.

He's cocky and she doesn't always agree with his methods of solving cases. But it all works out in the end for Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis, partners of a detective agency on "Moonlighting," airing Tuesday, Oct. 8 on ABC.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

After watching this year's Emmy Awards, I realized how unfair they are. Val, just how are the winners chosen? — C.C., Baltimore, Md.

The Emmy Award

The Emmy procedure begins when shows are submitted for consideration. Anyone in the academy can nominate individuals or shows; an actor or actress, for instance, can even nominate him or herself. Blue Ribbon juries then choose the official nominations from what has been presented to them. The voting is confined to a member's category: In other words, actors vote for actors, costume designers vote for costume designers. The voting may not always seem fair, but it is.

Can you give me an address for Valerie Bertinelli? I think she's the cutest actress around. — K.M.B., Brewster, N.Y.

Letters written to the actress will reach her if you address them c/o Pickwick-Maslansky-Koenigsberg, 8642 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90069. If you like Miss Bertinelli so much, make sure you catch her in the upcoming NBC movie "Silent Witness."

When I was visiting Southern California recently, I bumped into "Silver Spoons" star Ricky Schroder. He was so nice — I even got an autograph! What did he do before he landed the NBC series? — N.B., Jamestown, N.Y.

When the actor was just three months old, he appeared in a diaper commercial. He followed that spot with nearly 50 other commercials before landing what he considers his first "real" acting job, a co-starring role in the film "The Champ." The 1979 film (a remake of the 1931 classic) starred Jon Voight and Faye Dunaway.

He then starred in "The Earthling" and "The Last Flight of Noah's Ark." Schroder's other TV credits include "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "There Are Two Kinds of Trouble" and "Something So Right."

ROCK VIEW

Seven reasons why Bruce is The Boss

By Marianne Meyer

There's no substitute for seeing Bruce Springsteen live, but until you score those golden concert tickets, here's the checklist for putting together your own Springsteen retrospective.

Bruce Springsteen

"Atlantic City." Bruce's first non-performance video reflects the brooding "Nebraska" album in a somber black and white clip in which Bruce never appears. Call this one your opening short.

"Rosalita." The first official concert footage of Bruce, this clip delightfully captures his on-stage antics, despite somewhat murky picture quality. It was shot in Tucson, Ariz., during the "Darkness" tour, and is a fan favorite, now that "Rosie" has (temporarily, we hope) been retired from the concert set list.

"Dancing in the Dark." Directed by Brian De Palma ("Carrie," "Scarface") this performance clip needs no introduction, so here's a bit of detail. It was shot during a private eight-hour session at the St. Paul (Minn.) Civic Center on the eve of the 1984-85 World Tour's first performance. The crowd shots were filmed opening night, June 29, 1984. Bruce's dancing partner was Courteney Cox, who can be seen on the new NBC series "Misfits of Science."

"Born in the U.S.A." The start of Springsteen's on-going collaboration with director John Sayles ("Baby It's You," "Brother from Another Planet") is awkward lip-synch at best, but it led to "I'm on Fire." This sizzler could well serve as Springsteen's screen test as a Hollywood leading man. Watch out, Sting!

"Glory Days." This marks the first video appearances of Mrs. Julianne Phillips Springsteen, E Street Vocalist Patti Scialfa and the brief return of "Miami Steve" Van Zandt.

Time for a brief intermission and a quick peek at the Springsteen cameo collection.

"We are the World" has both a single and a longer album version.

"A Woman's Got the Power" is a Clarence Clemons solo clip in which Bruce pops up as a car wash attendant.

And now, the main feature.

"No Nukes." This concert film from the 1979 MUSE benefit provides the most extensive Springsteen concert footage to date — "Thunder Road," "The River" and the riotous "Devil with the Blue Dress" medley.

So, if you can't get Springsteen tickets, drown your sorrows in repeated plays of this one.

And if you've got tickets ... lucky dog. Enjoy!

Will 'Summer' make Ivey a star?

By Marc Minnelli

She won a 1983 Tony and Drama Desk Award for her Broadway debut in the play "Steaming." One year later, she won another Tony and Drania Desk Award for her role in the acerbic "Hurlyburly." So it's time for Judith Ivey to brag.

Judith Ivey

"Y'know," the actress says in her unmistakable Texan twang, "I was just thinking it's about time I became a household name. It's time I became recognizable."

Her appearances in recent films "The Lonely Guy," "Harry and Son" and "The Woman in Red" may not have made her a star, but Miss Ivey's latest projects — the comedy-mystery movie "Compromising Positions" and the NBC miniseries "The Long, Hot Summer" — just might. And she knows it.

"'Long, Hot Summer' is my first major television venture," says the 34-year-old Miss Ivey.

"It's a powerful show and I know it's going to be a big hit. The script is great, the casting is super and the story's not a simple melodrama."

Indeed. In "Long, Hot Summer," the actress portrays Noel Varner, a schoolteacher whose quiet demeanor belies her internal lust. "In 'Steaming' and 'Hurlyburly,' I played women we could fondly call tarts," laughs Miss Ivey. "But Noel is different; she's a tart with depth."

"Miami Vice" star Don Johnson stars as Ben Quick, a mysterious, troublesome drifter who arrives in a small Mississippi town ruled by a wealthy land baron. Cybill Shepherd, Ava Gardner and Jason Robards co-star.

Miss Ivey won the role in the miniseries after director Stuart Cooper caught her in "Hurlyburly." "I think he was surprised that I had so much wit," the actress says. "I think he never thought I could be so, well, funny." The actress, who won her "Hurlyburly" Tony during the filming of "Long, Hot Summer," remembers just how hot the summer was.

"I'd watch the mercury climb to 102 degrees," Miss Ivey recalls, "and Cybill and I would put ice packs on our feet. And since Ava and I didn't have a scene together, we'd sit around and talk about how many mosquitoes we killed in our rooms that night."

Yet squashed mosquitoes pale against the memories of working with Johnson. "I'm a big 'Miami Vice' fan," the actress says, "and you can't get better looking than that! Don was so supportive."

Dino's son is back without his racket

By Gillian George

"Misfits of Science" star Dean Paul Martin's life hasn't been what you'd expect from the son of a famous singer. For one thing, the younger Martin swears that his dad never gave him the slightest push toward a career in show business.

Dean Paul Martin

"Actually," the 33-year-old actor says, "my dad did more for me as an athlete than as a performer. He's a terrific golfer and baseball player, so he worked with his seven kids on sports activities. The funny thing is, that now, no matter what I'm into, it's the discipline and dedication that Dad taught me that helps me the most."

Martin's first show-biz career move occurred when, at age 13, he became a rock star. He and two friends (one of whom was Desi Arnaz Jr.) played in a band called Dino (that was Martin), Desi and Billy. What began as a whim became a success after Frank Sinatra visited the Martin home one day.

"Uncle" Frank — that's what I used to call him — was starting a new record label called 'Reprise,'" Martin remembers, "and he asked us if we'd like to cut a record. Naturally we jumped at the chance."

Over the next few years the band turned out three albums and 40 singles, including their biggest hit, "I'm a Fool." When the group disbanded, Martin turned back to his first love, tennis, becoming a pro while studying pre-med at the University of Southern California. Though he wanted to become a football player, Martin's tennis coach convinced him to continue swinging his racket. Eventually, Martin went on to become an acclaimed professional tennis player.

In 1979, he decided take a stab at acting after producer Bob Evans made him a handsome offer to play (what else?) a tennis player opposite Ali McGraw in the movie "Players." Unfortunately, the film flopped, and Martin put his cinematic aspirations on hold, enlisting in the California Air National Guard.

He's also back in show business. Although several critics have lacerated "Misfits of Science," Martin says he enjoys doing the offbeat series. He plays Billy Hayes, a struggling research scientist who conducts unusual experiments as he tries to turn his "misfit" colleagues into super-human, crime-fighting heroes. "It's a fun show," he says, "and I think it's a mistake to take it too seriously."

Pat Colbert peppers her diet with herbs

By Renee Ross

To show appreciation, some performers give gifts or other mementos to castmates. But Pat Colbert gave the gift of health to her "Dallas" cohorts.

Pat Colbert

"It was a long shooting day," recalls Miss Colbert, who stars as Dora Mae, the proprietress of the Oil Baron's Club on the hit CBS series, "and the caterers set out a big bowl of chocolate candies and other munchies. I'm very health conscious, and I knew that food would have given us lots of false energy.

"So I asked if they could provide other foods, things like celery, broccoli and a vinegar & oil dip. They did, and soon lots of cast members were munching on the vegetables. I guess everybody was just waiting for someone else to make the move," Miss Colbert adds, "so I took it upon myself. We're like a big family on the show, and it was my gift to the cast. I think health is the best thing in the world to have."

Even when she's off-set, the 5-foot-9, 120-pound actress follows her fitness advice. "I've been a vegetarian for some time," she says. "Oddly enough, my nutritionist has been telling me to go back to eating meat for a while so certain nutrients can build up in my blood. It's quite a switch!"

Miss Colbert, because she has a food allergy, steers clear of daily products. "I'm an herb person," she says. "I really believe in the value of herbs and vitamins. I drink herbal tea, bathe in herbs and use them for medicinal purposes. I rarely get sick."

Exercise helps the actress maintain her radiant looks. "I discipline myself by getting up at 5:30 in the morning," she explains. "I allow myself 30 minutes to get my body going. It helps my whole mental attitude."

Miss Colbert, who gained national exposure in a Harvey's Bristol Cream commercial when she seductively announced that it was "downright upright" to invite a gentleman home for a drink, claims that she's too busy to exercise away from home.

"Sometimes when I get home from work," she adds, "my boyfriend and I go jogging on the beach. That's the best way to exercise. If you work out with someone else it's easier — and more fun!

"Exercise is a back-to-basics philosophy for me," Miss Colbert adds. "I believe the mind and body should be in tune. Our thoughts — just like our bodies — must be nourished. If our bodies are weak, our thoughts are weak. It's up to us to be physically and mentally healthy."

itself.

"I saw the (newspaper) ad for the school on the Saturday evening before the Monday evening deadline" for bids, says Mrs. Miller.

They placed their bid with the town council, to whom the Garrett County Commissioners had consigned the property, and paid for the deed in April 1982.

Looking to the future, much work remains, primarily with the west side of the building and the gymnasium/auditorium area. Besides "two or three" more apartments, the Millers say additional office space is also still in the planning phase. Depending upon the requirements of interested agencies, the Millers are willing to build to suit, and welcome inquiries.

THE COLLECTIVE ENTERPRISES within the old Grantsville School were first publicly identified as Casselman Ventures with the installation of these signs this past summer. Agencies and businesses included are Sport About Unlimited, Casselman Crafts and Gift Shop, and the Region I office of the Maryland Emergency Medical Services Systems. Empty sign spaces will be filled by future services or operations moving to the building.

If the old school has had an interesting history, its owners have led even more colorful lives.

During 54 years of marriage, the Millers have raised ten children, acquired and developed three commercial properties, and worked extensively in the Mennonite Church. They continue to operate the farm where they raised their family and still reside, a half-mile behind the Casselman Inn off Dorsey Hotel Road.

Now with most of the work on Casselman Ventures behind them, one might presume that the Millers have slowed down and, perhaps, devoted more time to their 21 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

"Oh, no! We still work—overtime!" exclaims the normally-softspoken Miller, laughing at the erroneous presumption.

(Copyright © 1985 R. Craig Speicher)

FROM CLASSROOM TO SHOP — Students who attended Grantsville School a number of years ago probably never dreamed that their classroom might one day house a gift shop. Marian Beitzel operates the Crafts Gift Shop, which is but one business now located within the walls for the former school.

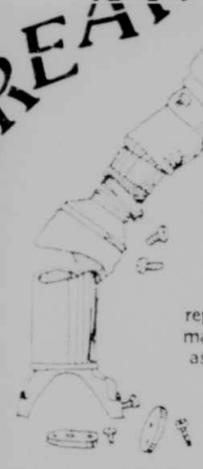
BURIAL BENEFITS

Many people are members of a lodge, fraternal group, or union that provides a lump-sum death benefit to pay funeral costs. These organizations have such "burial benefits" as one of their membership fringe benefits. The money can range from as low as $100 to amounts covering the total costs, as in the case of many unions.

If you are a member of such a group, or groups, you still may not know whether or not there are such benefits or what they amount to. Check now to find out. Then, let whomever may be taking the responsibility know how much you have, and with what organization(s).



If there is a discrepancy between benefits and costs, you must decide whether your survivors need any additional special funds. The advantage of taking care of the funeral and burial costs now is that you spare your survivors one more immediate burden during a difficult time.

Corporate Change Noted By Local Insurance Firm

The divisions of Beall, Garner, Screen and Geare, Inc., will begin trading as The BGS&G Companies, according to an announcement made at a Wednesday, September 25, press luncheon by J. Glenn Beall Jr., chairman.

"The network of services offered by Beall, Garner, Screen and Geare has grown to a point where we feel they should be more accurately known as The BGS&G Companies," Beall told a gathering of media representatives and corporate officers in Cumberland.

"This change reflects our growth and the complete range of services available to our customers. After two decades of locally based expansion, we provide a unique combination of financial and insurance services that far exceeds our original capabilities and 'The BGS&G Companies' symbolize how both our corporation and our region have built on the past to insure a secure future," the former U.S. Senator continued.

BGS&G traces its beginnings back to two agencies founded in Allegany County before the turn of the century. Expansion and diversification since the formation of Beall, Garner, and Geare in 1965 have increased it from an operation that employed 12 people in two locations to a corporation that has 90 employees working out of nine locations in three states and the District of Columbia. The company's divisions operate offices in Cumberland, Frostburg, Oakland, Keyser, Bedford, Johnstown and Washington, D.C. and serve some 17,000 clients throughout their trading area.

Company officials announced Wednesday that part of the corporate change to the BGS&G Companies will be the addition of full-service discount investment brokerage services to existing financial and insurance services.

President Ronald J. Screen said that financial services for more than 300 corporations and financial planning for individuals on a fee basis have both become important and widely utilized services that complement the company's property and casualty insurance lines.

"Serving our client base in these changing times has made us one of the most specialized and qualified firms in the region. The demand for professionalism and expertise we place on our people guarantees our clients for financial services or insurance a continuity of management and dependability that is hard to find these days," Screen continued.

In introducing the BGS&G Companies, officials noted that they have planned an orderly switch-over of the company's numerous correspondence and billing communications to avoid confusion among customers and that a regional awareness campaign will begin to inform the public about the change in corporate trading name.

Oakland Native Helps Community Despite Major Physical Handicaps

Editor's note: The following article is about Dwight Kitzmiller, a native of Garrett County and now a resident of Orrville, Ohio. Mr. Kitzmiller, 44, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Kitzmiller, Mtn. Lake Park, suffers from multiple sclerosis and the effects of strokes. The story tells how he has not allowed his handicaps to interfere with his community service.

The article was written and the photographs taken by Darlene Croskey, a writer for the Courier-Crescent newspaper, Orrville, Ohio. She has given The Republican permission to publish her story.

by Darlene Croskey

He's unable to communicate audibly—and he has difficulty walking.

He's a victim of multiple sclerosis and strokes—but he refuses to let the afflictions rule his life.

To keep his muscles exercised, Dwight Kitzmiller walks the streets in Orrville twice a day.

And to feel like he is doing something useful for his community, he carries a white plastic bag and picks up trash.

Kitzmiller was stricken with MS in 1966. However, he was able to continue working at Westinghouse Corp. until 1975, when he was forced to retire.

"He had several strokes while working," said Loretta Kitzmiller, his wife.

"This left him unable to talk. And because of all the strong medication he was on for multiple sclerosis he was unable to be given therapy," she said.

"He was taking three Valium tablets per day," she said.

After his stroke he was a wheelchair and a bed patient for six months.

He was unable to care for himself and he required considerable care from his wife and brother, who saw to his everyday needs—such as bathing and eating.

"MS is losing coordination in brain controls of the voluntary muscles," she said.

However, Loretta Kitzmiller said her husband has adapted well to the restrictions of his handicap.

"He handles the frustration of not being able to communicate with others well," she said.

And Dwight Kitzmiller has learned how to walk again, but the MS has left him very uncoordinated.

"It's probably been two years that he decided to walk for exercise," Loretta said.

He leaves his home at 236 Mohican Ave., and maintains his balance by using a cane as he takes his daily hikes.

To add some spice to his stroll, Kitzmiller travels a variety of routes.

Sometimes he'll walk West Market Street, possibly stop in at Seifreid Drugs for a cup of Sanka and then go north on Main Street to High Street. He often walks on Maple Street to West Market Street to Mohican Avenue to his home.

But not knowing his exact route sometimes worried Loretta Kitzmiller, she said.

She works nights at Rubbermaid and gets home after 7 a.m.

"He usually waits until I get to sleep before he starts his walk," she said.

PICKING UP LITTER in one's community purely on a voluntary basis is a commendable activity for any citizen, but it is even more noteworthy when one engages in such a community service despite physical handicaps. Dwight Kitzmiller, Orrville, Ohio, a native of Oakland, is such a person in his community. Although he suffers from multiple sclerosis and has had a number of strokes, he continues to overcome his handicaps and remain a valuable citizen. Kitzmiller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Kitzmiller and the grandson of Elva Zimmerman, Mountain Lake Park.

"Sometimes I think he's gone longer than he should be. That's when I begin to wonder where he's at," she said.

Her worries were compounded one time soon after Dwight Kitzmiller began his daily treks, she said.

"Two years ago he came home with a bad cut in his head. He was bleeding bad," she recalled.

"That was back in the days when he walked down by Miller's pond (off Lake Street). He likes to pet dogs. I'm not sure what happened though. I'm just surmising a dog bit him," she said.

"Now I tell him to only walk where there are sidewalks."

Despite the earlier incident and his handicaps, Dwight Kitzmiller continues to maintain a positive attitude toward life.

He's made many friends and hears a lot of horns blow as he takes his strolls.

Walking and waving to all his friends provides him with a way to cope with his setbacks.

His trash picking up days began this year, according to his wife.

"He kept coming home with smashed cans in his pocket. I told him if he was going to pick up trash that he should carry a bag," she said.

During his evening walks he often goes to Orr Park and watches the softball games.

When Dwight Kitzmiller is not walking, his wife said he tries to be of some help with household chores.

And inclement weather conditions don't always keep Kitzmiller at home either.

However, during the winter months he rides an exercycle his wife purchased for him.

"Unless I stand in front of the door and tell him it's raining and he can't leave, he takes his walks," she said with a smile.

"He likes to empty all the trash and he even tries sweeping the floors with the sweeper," she said.

At least a couple times a year she said he spends some time with his mother and father, who live in Maryland.

"Leaving Orrville visiting his parents is good for him. He enjoys the change," she said.

But, she said he's soon ready to come back and walk Orrville's streets.

Storing your RV or other type of car for the season? Take these steps to avoid problems later.

If you will use the vehicle at all (or even start it) during this time, fill the tank and add gasoline antifreeze. Turn over the engine each week, running it up to normal operating temperature.

But if the car will "hibernate" until spring, drain the fuel from the carburetor and spray with silicone lubricant. Make sure the battery is fully charged and fluid levels are full.

To protect the tires, put the car on jack stands. Lubricate all rubber parts, plus vinyl and leather interior surfaces. If the vehicle will be outside, protect it with a coat of wax.

It's sometimes possible to modify your insurance coverage for the time that the vehicle is not going to be used. It's advisable to keep comprehensive coverage in force, though, to protect against fire, theft, and vandalism.

The Ruth Enlow Library On Wheels; A Need Filled Through Contributions

by Pam Ashby

Remember a few years ago when many of us were dropping our spare change into little cardboard vans designed to look like the future Ruth Enlow Library Bookmobile? Ever wonder what became of that great idea?

Well, that new bookmobile has been winding its way along county highways and byways for nearly two years bringing the wonderful world of reading to more and more people every day.

The History

It's interesting to note that the bookmobile concept originated in Western Maryland nearly half a century ago. Washington County was the first to have a bookmobile in the entire United States, as a matter of fact. Garrett County quickly followed suit in the late 1940's and has provided a bookmobile to its citizens, for the most part, ever since.

Unfortunately, before the new bookmobile was purchased, the old one was disabled more often than not for a period of time and fewer and fewer people had the opportunity to check out books because of logistics. It was frustrating for them and even more frustrating for Edith Brock, head librarian at the Oakland branch.

Miss Brock navigated the first two bookmobiles herself for many years - so many that she couldn't remember exactly how many. She did remember the first bookmobile. "It was a small, converted panel truck. Not very fancy, but it carried books to the people and that was the important part," she recollected.

The second bookmobile, also manned by Miss Brock for a while, was purchased through a bequest of Mrs. Willard Clayton in 1960. It was renovated in 1973 and although not perfect, delivered books until its permanent demise in December of 1982.

Efforts to purchase a new bookmobile began nearly three years ago. Hence, the little cardboard money containers placed throughout the county. The untimely death of Alayne McCain in April of 1983 provided many donations in her memory and the new bookmobile became a reality in June that same year. Alayne, who was an honor student at Southern High School at the time of her death, was an avid reader and wrote prose "far beyond her tender age of 16," said a close friend.

On The Road Again

With the many stops the bookmobile now makes, the job of navigating it has gone from parttime to fulltime. It is now piloted by John Smith. He began his career at the Ruth Enlow Library in October, 1982, and began driving the bookmobile in July, 1983.

John has an impressive background in library education as he graduated from Clarion University with a BSED in library science and a BA in speech communications and theatre.

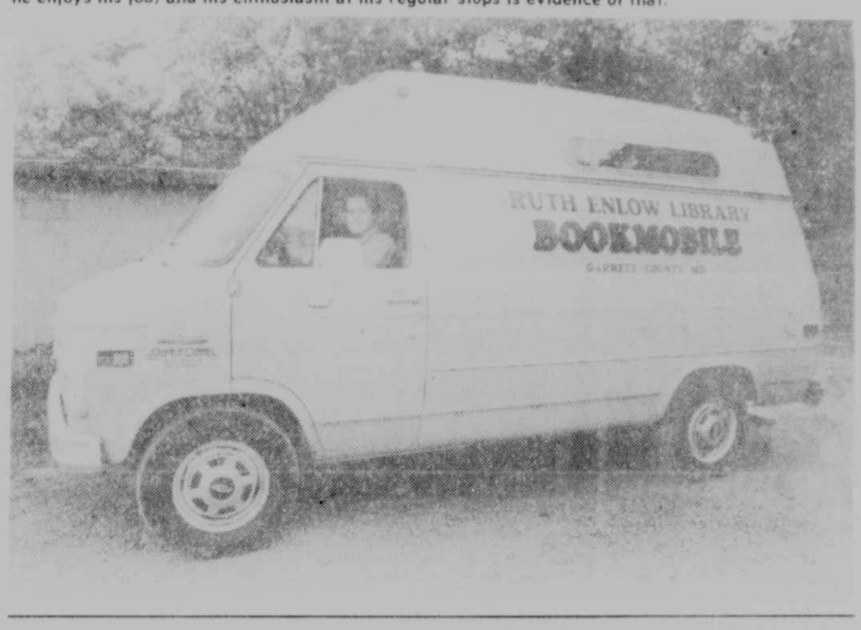
Being community-minded, he serves as the scoutmaster for Troop 31, Boy Scouts of America and is the ceremonies advisor for the Order of the Arrow. He is also a member of the National Speleological Society, has acted in the Act IV dinner theatre group and is a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

While watching John at various bookmobile stops, it became evident that he greatly enjoys his job. Seeing him interact with bookmobile patrons convinces one that he also takes his job very seriously.

John keeps the moving library well-stocked with all types of books. He changes the inventory frequently in order to give the patrons a balanced variety of reading materials. If a patron asks for a certain book, all they need do is fill out a slip of paper and John makes every effort to obtain that book for him as quickly as possible.

Next Stop

Besides regular stops at schools with minimal library facilities, out-of-the-way stores, trailer parks, nursing homes and apartment complexes for the elderly, John also has deposit-collection stations at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Garrett County Jail.



These deposit-collection stations consist mainly of paperback books and patrons borrow the books on the honor system. John says it's surprising how many of those books are returned. He noted that some have even been returned after being sold at several yard sales first.

John is hoping to expand the capabilities of the deposit–collection stations and is planning to incorporate the Boy Scouts in this project.

It's comforting to know that Garrett County citizens come through when they see a need for a service. Many people complain that they don't know where their charitible contributions go. The bookmobile is on the move and we can certainly thank ourselves for that and feel secure that our money was spent wisely.

THEN AND NOW — The bookmobile was an important part of the Ruth Enlow Library back in the 1950's. School libraries that did exist were not as well-stocked as they are today and the bookmobile filled a great need. Most people are always eager to read, and Edith Brock, head librarian, shown above, center, is always eager to provide those people with the means to read. Picutred below, two bookmobiles later, is John Smith who now pilots the new bookmobile. John says he enjoys his job, and his enthusiasm at his regular stops is evidence of that.

"LOOK, MOM, I got a brand new library book," the excited blond-haired child seems to be saying as he and other children take advantage of one of the bookmobile's regular stops at the White Oak Trailer Park in Swanton. The roving library provides a service to those who are far-removed from the main library and its four branches. Children especially enjoy the service in the summer months when they have no access to school libraries. The elderly, handicapped and infirmed are also provided with the services of the bookmobile.

SINGLE HOME INVESTMENT PLOY

For most small real estate investors, the logical introduction into the field would be the purchase and sale of a single family home. Not only are there a lot more on the market, but they fall in many price ranges and are the most fluid tyes of properties if you want to get your cash out fast. Also, it takes a smaller amount of up-front money to invest in such a property.

The new tax change in the 1984 Tax Reform Act has also added a great incentive to this kind of investing if the purpose is to turn over your profit at a rapid rate. The latest tax change allows the investor to take advantage of capital gains treatment for profit in only six months. Prior to the change, the time limit was one year.

Now you can buy a single home, allow the sellers to remain in that home for only six months at a fair rent and resell it at the end of that period. Another ploy would be to lease the house to a tenant with the option to buy which could be exercised in only six months rather than one year.

Energy Assistance, Weatherization Programs Begin

The Maryland Department of Human Resources officially kicked-off the Maryland Energy Assistance and Weatherization Assistance Programs at a press briefing on Friday in Baltimore. During the briefing, James Traglia, deputy secretary of Human Resources, discussed plans for the program and unveiled the Department's new Maryland Energy Network Consumer Education Video, which will be shown at local MEAP intake centers statewide.

Local agencies throughout the state which administer MEAP began accepting applications on Monday, September 30. Agencies will begin actual payment of benefits on or before November 22. Approximately 96,000 households in Maryland are expected to receive an average benefit of $295 to help offset their home heating costs. Last year, MEAP served 89,652 households and provided an average benefit of $253.

"In an effort to maximize the limited resources of those families with the greatest need, the Department is targeting higher level benefits to families who are below 35 percent of the poverty level," said Shirley Marcus, director of MEAP.

YOUTHQUEST SINGERS will give a concert at the Pleasant View Baptist Church, 2 miles south of Oakland, on October 5, at 8 p.m. The concert is open to the public. Area teenagers are invited to attend a bonfire and hot dog roast one hour prior to the concert to meet the Youthquest Singers. On Sunday, October 6, the singers will share in the morning worship service at 9:45 a.m. and at 7 p.m. they will be presenting a musical play, a program for the entire family. The Youthquest Singers repertoire includes spiritual and gospel songs.

For the second year, the application process for MEAP and WAP will be combined, making it more convenient for potential applicants. In addition, noted Marcus, MEAP eligible families will also be able to sign up for the Public Service Commission's Winter Heating Protection Plan (WHPP) when they apply for MEAP. Signing up for WHPP will enable households to pay a minimum amount each month to keep their gas and electric service turned on.

"The Winter Heating Protection Plan is an excellent option for anyone who is income eligible. Even those families who generally pay their entire utility bill each month may find that one month this winter they are in a bind.. By joining the program, they can pay a small amount and keep their service on," said DHR Secretary Ruth Massinga.

Eligibility for MEAP, WAP and WHPP is established at 150 percent of the federal poverty level. Persons who rent their homes as well as homeowners may apply for assistance regardless of whether or not their home heating costs are included in their rent.

The kick-off of MEAP this year also included the introduction of the Department's new Maryland Energy Network Consumer Education Video. The 35-minute video was produced by BG&E Video Services and emulates the format of network television programs in an effort to provide an increased level of consumer education and public information for those families most vulnerable to escalating energy costs.

"The Maryland Energy Network represents a major public/private partnership between DHR and several major Maryland utilities and is reflective of the Department's overall goal to promote self-sufficiency and independence for low income Maryland families," said Massinga.

The main focus of the video is on energy conservation measures, the Maryland Energy Assistance and Weatherization Assistance Programs, as well as other state assistance programs designed to help reduce high energy costs. The video will be shown to the public on a continuous basis beginning in October, at local MEAP and Weatherization intake offices.

MEAP and weatherization assistance will be provided in Garrett County through the Garrett County Community Action, Inc. Persons desiring information may call the office at 334-2151. A statewide toll-free number (1-800-352-1446) is also available for further information.

Repair Work Set At Youghiogheny Lake

Repair work will be performed in the outlet tunnel of Youghiogheny Lake from October 10-31, according to the Pittsburgh District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Prior to the start of work, Youghiogheny Lake will be drawn down to elevation 1390.

During the repair period, there will be no outflow from the dam on weekdays from 6 p.m. A minimal outflow will be released from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. for maintenance of downstream flow schedules and water-related activities at Ohiopyle State Park.

During November and December, the working hours will be reversed. There will be no flow from the dam on weekdays from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. A minimal flow will be released from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.

The water quality of the river will be continually monitored and maintained during the repair work, the Corps noted.

West To Present Autumn Glory Organ Recital

Jason Kent West, an associate in music and the arts at National City Christian Church, Washington, D.C., will be performing at the annual Autumn Glory organ recital scheduled for Saturday, October 12, at 7 p.m. at St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

Originally from North Dakota, West began his organ studies at age 12 in Bismarck and continued in Dayton, Ohio and St. Louis, Missouri until he entered Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N.J. He studied organ literature with Donald McDonald and oratorio accompaniment with Robert Carwitten. In 1980 he was named to the "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and in 1982 he graduated with a bachelor's degree in church music.

West was also a member of the famed Westminster Choir, which has performed around the world under conductor John Finley Williamson and since 1971, under Joseph Flummerfelt. In addition to its national tours, the choir has served as Chorus-in-residence for the Spoleto Festival USA in Charleston, S.C. and at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy. It was during his third year in Italy that he performed on the organ at the cathedral at Spoleto before the American Ambassador to Italy. The choir also serves as the core of the 200-voice Westminster Symphonic Choir, which appears with the New York Philharmonic and other orchestras. West has performed under the batons of Erich Leinsdorf, Rafael Kubelik, Daniel Barenboim and Zubin Mehta.

As a concert organist, West has performed in the New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania areas as well as several recitals in the Washington, D.C. area. In July, 1984, he made his Washington concert debut at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts before an audience of 800. Paul Hume, Washington's foremost music critic, said of his concert, "At 26, Mr. West is a fine technician, completely at home in the great works for organ. He played . . . (listing of the works) . . . giving ample evidence of his acquaintance with the repertoire . . . has great talents and his recital had admirable qualities."

West's position at National City Christian Church includes assisting as organist, conductor and singer. His other responsibilities include public relations for the music department as well as coordinating other art programs in and outside the church. National City Christian Church, the national cathedral for the Disciples of Christ denomination, is located at Thomas Circle, six blocks from the White House. The Moller pipe organs at National City are the second largest in the Washington area. One of the notable features of this organ is that it is Washington's only five-manual (keyboard) console which controls both chancel and gallery organs.

In addition to his concert schedule, West is an active member of the American Guild of Organists and a co-editor of the Guild newspaper. He also serves on the committee for the promotion of organ recitals at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

West will be performing his program on the 1984 Schantz 21 Rank-pipe organ at the Autumn Glory recital. The new organ was purchased by St. Paul's in the summer of 1984. There is no admittance charge, but a free-will offering will be taken at the concert.

Ratcliff Couple To Speak At Nazarene Church

Rev. and Mrs. Ratcliff will speak at The Church of the Nazarene, located at the corner of Eighth and Alder Streets, Oakland, October 6 at 10:45.

The Ratcliffs are missionaries to the Dominican Republic who are furloughing in 1985 and holding deputation services across the United States and Canada.

Rev. Ratcliff received a A.B. Degree from Pasadena College and his B.D. Degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary. He was ordained on the Northern California District. Mrs. Alice Ratcliff attended Pasadena College. The Ratcliffs have three daughters: Pamela Joyce, Patricia Jane and Susan Marie.

In 1954 the Ratcliffs were appointed as missionaries for The Church of the Nazarene. They first served in Guyana, and in 1957 they were transferred to Trinidad. In 1967 they went to Puerto Rico and served there five years before returning to Trinidad. There Rev. Ratcliff was responsible for Theological Extension Training, as well as teaching in the Bible College. He served as president of Caribbean Nazarene Theological College from 1977 to 1983.

The Ratcliffs left Trinidad in 1983 and have served most recently in the area of Theological Education in the Dominican Republic. The deputation services will include a message and slides about their work in the Caribbean.

GCC Receives NBCC Approval

Garrett Community College, Continuing Education Division has been approved as a National Board for Certified Counselors, Inc. provider. This approval allows the college to offer National Certified Counselors coursework which will satisfy their recertification requirements.

The National Board for Certified Counselors (NBCC) is an independent non-profit, voluntary organization whose primary purposes are to establish and monitor a national certification system, to identify to professionals and the public those counselors who have voluntarily sought and obtained certification and to maintain a register of those counselors. NBCC was initiated as a result of the efforts of the American Association for Counseling and Development (formerly APGA) in promoting credentialing for counseling professionals. It is the intent of NBCC to provide a national standard that can be used as a measure of professionalism by interested groups, agencies, and individuals. NBCC encourages the continuing professional growth and development of each National Certified Counselor (NCC).

The NBCC requires that each NCC be recertified every five years. Garrett CC can now provide the training necessary for recertification. Courses which meet NBCC standards will carry that designation.

Any persons interested in obtaining NBCC CEUs or those who wish further information should contact Jeri Swartzentruber at 334-8266.

Special Tax Breaks Breathe New Life Into Tree Farm System In Maryland

So you've got some extra land, just sitting there, and there's a good chance you'll receive this year a property tax increase because the value of the land increased. What are you going to do?

If you're like a growing number of people in Maryland, you could convert that idle land to a tree farm, or more accurately, get the land accepted as part of the American Tree Farm System.

According to Dr. John Kundt, a forestry specialist with the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, the number of certified tree farms in the state has climbed this year to 518, covering just over 124,000 acres. The number of certified farms represents an increase of 20% over 1984, Kundt adds.

Both he and state forester James Roberts of the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service say this sudden growth spurt in tree farms can be attributed to a unique tax incentive that is nearly 30 years old.

Back in the mid-1950s, the state enacted the Forest Conservation and Management Program, which included provisions for an agreement between landowners and the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service to freeze property assessments on tree farms for a minimum of 15 years.

The Forest Conservation and Management Agreement (FCMA) stipulates that a landowner must have a forest management plan, and he or she must be following that plan. State foresters inspect the property annually for compliance.

The more direct route to acceptance into the FCMA program is gaining "Certified Tree Farm" status for a woodlot, according to Kundt.

Minimum requirements are the landowner must have 10 acres of forest land, and he or she must also have a written management plan that they've followed for at least one year.

A preliminary step for the cautious is gaining "Pioneer Tree Farm" status, in which the landowner simply demonstrates his or her intention of developing a management plan and following it. Approximately 65,000 acres of forested land on 276 farms have qualified for pioneer status in Maryland.

Pioneer status, however, offers no benefits other than functioning as a preliminary step toward gaining certified status.

Why are landowners just now beginning to catch on to a 30-year-old tax break?

Says Kundt: "The incentive has always been there, but property assessments are now starting to really go up in certain parts of the state, especially in those areas adjacent to the major metropolitan areas of Baltimore and Washington, D.C."

He adds that, in those same areas, there is a counter pressure to develop land that might otherwise go into the certified tree farm system—the pressure to sell out to build houses rather than raise trees.

For those who are conservation minded, according to Kundt, becoming a certified tree farmer is "a good incentive to promote forest management in the private sector.

"And people can make money if they manage their farms properly," he adds.

Nationwide, there are 55,000 certified tree farms, up from 52,000 in 1984. While the South holds nearly 56% of all certified tree farms, the Mid-Atlantic region, of which Maryland is a part, shows the strongest recent growth, up 11% over 1984's figure.

One way to envision the size of the tree farm system, says John Kundt, is to look at a map of East and West Germany superimposed over the U.S.

"We've got nearly 87 million acres in the system this year, an increase of 1 million over last year," Kundt says.

Frederick Man Granted PBJ

In Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings September 26, Judge Jack Turney granted probation before judgment for Daniel A. Trey, 30, Frederick. Trey was found guilty of a charge of possessing a non-game wildlife species in need of conservation without a special permit.

Trey was fined $100 and placed on six months unsupervised probation, with the condition that he cooperate with the Department of National Resources Police to obtain all permits applicable to his trade.

Cpl. Robert L. Taylor, of the DNR Police, filed the charge following a July 9 incident at the Round Glade Zoo, Sang Run Road, Oakland.

According to court records, Trey transported a black bear cub and sold it to Edward L. Moore, co-owner of the Round Glade Zoo. However, Trey did not possess a special permit for a black bear cub.

Park Campground Closings Announced

Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service Chief of Operations Dave Hathway has announced the 1985 schedule of state park campground closings.

The following improved campgrounds will close on Monday, October 28: Assateague, Cunningham Falls (Manor and Houck Areas), Gambrill, Gathland, Martinak, Patapsco Valley (Hollofield and Hilton Areas), Point Lookout, Tuckahoe, Deep Creek Lake, Fort Frederick, New Germany and Washington Monument.

On December 9, campgrounds will close at: Cedarville State Forest, Elk Neck, Greenbrier, Janes Island, Pocomoke River (Milburn and Shad Landing Areas), Rocky Gap and Swallow Falls.

Susquehanna State Park closed its campground September 16.

Primitive camping is permitted all year at Big Run, Elk Neck State Forest, Green Ridge State Forest, Potomac-Garrett State Forest and Savage River State Forest. Primitive camping is available at Elk Neck State Park after December 9.

"INSIDE YOUR SCHOOLS" TV SHOW

The American Federation of Teachers, which produces "Inside Your Schools," the monthly television magazine show covering public education in America has announced that the series will launch its third national season in October and that entertainer Steve Allen has agreed to continue as host for the coming school year.

The 1985-86 season of "Inside Your Schools" features eight half-hour magazine style shows, each exploring in-depth one major theme or challenge in the field of public education.

The premier October show focuses on "The Critical Years: Early Childhood Education" exploring the important role the formative years—ages 2 to 6—play in shaping habits and attitudes that can determine future educational success, or failure.

Future monthly shows focus on the following themes:

November - Discovering The Living World; Education and The Environment.

December - Getting Into College.

January - Growing Up Lost; Coping With Problems of Adolescence Through Education.

February - Teaching Children to Think.

March - What Children Should Know; Education and Censorship.

April - In Pursuit of Excellence, Public Education and The Gifted.

May - Education Beyond The Classroom, Extracurricular Activities.

"Inside Your Schools" airs on the 650 cable systems affiliated with The Learning Channel (TLC) the first Tuesday of each month at 3 p.m., repeated the following Thursday at 2:30 p.m. and the following Sunday at noon.

The series is also carried on some 90 PBS stations and by numerous other cable stations in the locally determined time slots. Airing the series for the first time this year is WQED in Pittsburgh, seen locally on cable channel 13.

"Inside Your Schools" continues to be the only regularly scheduled national TV series devoted exclusively to covering public education in America. Each half-hour program is made up of five stories which showcase outstanding teachers, student and academic programs, delve into the issues with prominent educators, present interviews with famous public school graduates, explore links between public schools and the broader community, and report on current research on the topic being explored.

"AFT video crews travel to school districts across the United States to report on quality programs so that others can learn from them and replicate them in school systems across the United States. While pointing out the problems faced by public education, the series focuses primarily on solutions and success stories," said series Executive Producer John Stevens.

"In the two years that the series has been on the air, 'Inside Your Schools' has become known as a highly respected, thought provoking forum for ideas and opinions among parents, teachers, school administrators, national education leaders and all others who realize that the quality of public education in America is critical to the survival of our democratic society," said Stevens.

"This year we are hoping to involve our host Steve Allen more deeply in the content of some shows. He is extremely interested in education for the gifted (April) and fascinated by how people learn to think (February), and has indicated he wants to make a significant contribution," he said.

Among his many educational contributions, Allen serves as an advisor to the Gifted Children Advocacy Association and created and narrated a children's record called "How to Think" for Golden Records. He has written 26 books and both created and hosted the popular PBS "Meeting of the Minds" series.

"Inside Your Schools" is produced by the 650,000 member American Federation of Teachers which represents school teachers in more than 2,200 school districts throughout the United States.

Frantz-Roper Vows Exchanged In Aug. Double-Ring Ceremony

Mary Kaye Frantz and Andrew Charles Roper were united in marriage Saturday, August 17, in a double-ring ceremony at the Pine Grove Church of the Brethren with the Rev. Donald Matthews officiating.

Paula DeWitt, cousin of the bride, served as organist. Kathy Swartzentruber, friend of the bride and groom, gave a reading.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Frantz, McHenry. Mr. Roper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Roper, Exmouth, England.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a gown of matte taffeta. The fitted bodice was enhanced with Alencon lace and a sheer, re-embroidered yoke with a high, lace collar. The puffed sleeves were accented with Chantilly lace and taffeta ruffles at the shoulders. The full skirt swept to a chapel train beneath a taffeta and lace ruffle. She wore a picture hat with a fingertip French illusion veil, gathered in a pouf, and accented by Chantilly lace, silk ribbon streamers and a white silk carnation. The hat was created by the bride's sister, Pam Ashby.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of miniature carnations, nerine lilies, German statis and English ivy, accented with white silk streamers and a silver horseshoe, a tradition of the English. The bride's jewelry consisted of a gold locket, presented by the groom, and gold leaf and pearl earrings, a gift of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ashby Jr.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Rose Pentz, friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Becky Battista, friend of the bride, and Miss Kristin Crone, niece of the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Jennifer Frantz, niece of the bride and serving as her aunt's flower girl was Miss Anne-Marie Ashby. The bride's attendants were attired in matching floor-length, dotted Swiss gowns in various pastels of lavender, pink and blue and were fashioned by Mrs. Juanita Stanton, friend of the bride, Mrs. Debbie Frantz, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Sherry Crone, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Pam Ashby, sister of the bride. The attendants carried country flower baskets filled with miniature silk carnations matching each gown, accented by baby's breath and English ivy. The baskets were created by Mrs. Barbara Rush.

Serving as his friend's best man was Robin Sawyer, Greenbelt. Groomsmen were Michael Badnarcik, friend of the groom, and Jamie Ashby, nephew of the bride. Brandon Frantz, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The groom and groomsmen were all attired in grey pinstripe suits.

Miss Amy Stanton attended the guest book and bird seed packets were distributed by the bride's nieces and nephews. Stuart Roper, Wychbold, England, brother of the groom, was the photographer.

Wildflowers which adorned the altar were arranged by the aunt's bride, Mrs. Loretta DeWitt.

A garden reception was held at the bride's parents home following the ceremony. The two-tiered cake, accented by pastel roses and topped with a sterling silver bowl, a gift of the groom's sister, Jan, was baked and decorated by Terri Georg. The cake was served by Liz Elliott, friend of the bride.

A rehearsal party was given in honor of the bride and groom by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stanton, McHenry, at their home.

For a short honeymoon trip, the bride chose a pink and white linen dress with white accessories.

The couple now resides in Hyattsville.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School and Frostburg State College with a master's in education. Following her graduation, she taught physical education at Federalsburg Elementary School in Caroline County for two years and presently teaches at Fairland Elementary School in Montgomery County.

Mr. Roper is a graduate of Borough Road College, London, and Frostburg State College where he obtained a master's in education. He is presently in the doctoral program at the University of Maryland.

While visiting in England this summer, the bride was the guest of honor at a bridal shower given by the groom's family and friends. A shower was also given by her co-workers before departing for England.

Out of town guests were from England, Canada, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland.

CHEESE FACTS

Cheese, like the milk from which it is made, is a very nutritious food. Easily digested, even by small children, it provides many of the essential nutrients needed for good health, including protein, minerals, vitamins and fat.

Cheese will taste fresh and flavorful up to eight weeks if it is tightly wrapped and kept refrigerated. Air will dry and harden cheese. To prevent this, carefully rewrap opened cheese in its original wrapper, in foil, or in plastic wrap or bags. Be sure the wrap is snug and tightly sealed to keep air out.

If cheese hardens due to exposure to air, cut off hardened sections and grate or chop into small pieces. Store grated cheese in the refrigerator in a clean glass jar or plastic containcer with a tight fitting lid. Use grated cheese in sauces, soups, or salads. Tightly wrap and refrigerate the remaining cheese.

Sometimes mold will form on cheese. It is generally harmless and a small amount will not affect the quality of most cheeses. Cut the moldy part away, being sure to remove some of the cheese beneath the mold. Tightly rewrap the remaining cheese and try to use it within a few days.

Follow these tips when cooking cheese:

*Always use low to medium heat.
*Heat just until cheese melts. Overcooked cheese can become tough.
*For quick smooth melting: shred, cube, or slice cheese, then add hot foods.
*To broil cheese: place the pan several inches below the heat source and broil just until cheese melts.

Try these quick ideas with cheese:

*Stir cubes of cheese into scrambled eggs.
*Melt slices of cheese on toast or English muffins.
*Toss cubes of cheese with salad greens for a hearty side dish.
*Add cheese cubes to potato or macaroni salad for extra flavor, color and nutrition.
*Make a zesty cheese souce to pour over hot vegetables, tortilla chips, toast or macaroni.
*Add cubed or shredded cheese to soups, casserole, or chili for a heartier dish.

This is the time of year when we start adding soups to the menu—it helps warm us on cold days! Here's a chowder recipe that I think your family will enjoy.

AMERICAN CHOWDER

1 large onion, sliced
2 tablespoons margarine
4 cups cubed potato
2 cups water
1 cup celery slices
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
1 12-oz. package smoked sausage links or frankfurters, sliced
2 cups (8oz.) cubed American cheese

Saute onion in margarine. Add potato, water, celery and seasonings. Cover, simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Gradually add small amount of milk to flour, stirring until well blended. Gradually add flour to hot vegetables. Add remaining milk and sausage, cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Add process cheese, stir until melted. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

BITTINGER-GLADES

Harry Fox held worship services in all of the churches of the Bittinger Parish on Sunday.

A "Day of Renewal" special service was held on Sunday afternoon at the Bittinger Fire Hall by members of Emmanuel's LCW. There were 16 members present and the theme of the program was a study of hunger in the world. The group looked at some of the root causes of hunger, and what can be done to help.

Several members took part in presenting the program, which looked at hunger from a personal standpoint, the family, the community, the nation, and global. Ways were considered in which each one can respond to hungry people. Scripture texts were read in keeping with the subject, and several songs were sung.

Each member present signed a pledge to examine more closely how they can help to conserve food, work with groups helping and teaching people to grow their own food, and contribute funds to World Hunger drives.

A humorous skit was presented by Sharon Lowery, Betty Buckel and Maxine Legeer.

Each member brought a gift of food for the Food Pantry, and an inexpensive dish of food to be served to the group.

The program was planned and presented by Miss Betty Buckel and her committee members.

Although there is no degree work slated for this first communication after the summer recess, Ritchey stated that the lodge will be busy throughout the fall because there are a number of candidates and petitions for membership awaiting action.

President Reagan Proclaims Oct. 6-12 As Nat. 4-H Week

President Ronald Reagan recently proclaimed the week of October 6-12 as National 4-H Week. He extended his "heartiest congratulations" to the 4.5 million youth members and the more then 630,000 4-H volunteer leaders across the country.

He saluted the 4-H members who are developing their life-skills, and the volunteer leaders "for your commitment to strengthening American families and communities, by teaching such skills to others."

He also commended the total 4-H program's science, technology, and human relations achievements in food and fiber, natural resources, nutrition, and volunteerism.

Noting that 1985 is the International Youth Year, the president said, "I especially applaud your cross-cultural education projects in this country and the similar 4-H type programs in over 80 other countries throughout the world."

The National 4-H Week theme this year is "4-H For Youth, For America," and according to Alice Hevner, extension agent for 4-H and youth, in Garrett County some 157 adult volunteer leaders work with 568 youth from 9 to 19 years of age in 15 clubs or in special interest activities such as camp, handicapped riding, broiler project, and dog obedience, through the Cooperative Extension Service at The University of Maryland.

Many of the county's 4-H clubs will celebrate National 4-H Week by going to church together, distributing 4-H placemats to area restaurants, putting displays in the windows of local business establishments, or promoting 4-H in the Autumn Glory festivities.

For information about 4-H and National 4-H Week, call the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-2145.

Commission Sets Public Hearing

The Maryland Governor's Landlord-Tenant Laws Study Commission will hold a public hearing in Oakland on October 5, to give the Commission an opportunity to hear from members of the public what legislative or other action the Commission might undertake in order to resolve problems which exist in Maryland landlord-tenant law.

The Commission, which meets monthly, was created in 1970 by a joint Resolution of the Maryland General Assembly. This resolution directs the Commission to identify and study problems which exist in the state's landlord-tenant law, and to draft and submit to the Maryland General Assembly proposed legislation which would eliminate or alleviate such problems.

Since its creation the Commission has drafted further bills which have been enacted by the Maryland legislature. These include the security deposit, rent escrow and retaliatory eviction laws, as well as the prohibited lease provisions and mitigated statutes.

The hearing in Oakland will be at the Community Action Committee Building, 360 West Liberty Street, at 2 p.m.

Provided the Owner, for any reason whatsoever, determines that it is not in its best interest to award a Contract, the Contract award will not be made by the Owner and the Owner will not then be liable for any payments whatsoever to the Bidder. Extension of time beyond the ninety (90) day period of the award may be made only by mutual agreement between the Owner, the Bidder and Bidder's Surety.

The party to whom the Contract is awarded will be required to execute the Agreement and obtain the required Bonds within ten (10) calendar days from the date when Notice of Award is delivered to the Bidder. The Owner within ten (10) days of receipt of acceptable Bonds and Agreement signed by the party to whom the Contract was awarded, will sign the Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the Owner not execute the Agreement within such period, the Bidder may, by Written Notice, withdraw his signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of notice by the Owner.

The Notice to Proceed shall be issued within ten (10) days of the execution of the Agreement by the Owner. Should there be reasons why the Notice to Proceed cannot be issued within such period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the Owner and the Contractor. If the Notice to Proceed has not been issued within the ten (10) day period or within the period mutually agreed upon, the Contractor may terminate the Agreement without further liability on the part of either party.

The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated facilities will render his bid or offer nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards or contracts exceeding $10,000 which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity clause.

The attention of prospective bidders is directed to the Agreement Section of the Contract, wherein the requirements for compliance with certain Federal Laws and Regulations on this project are specifically set forth. The policy as well as the cited regulations are contained in the specifications.

The contract shall be subject to the applicable compliance standards and procedures of 40 CFR Part 8, Equal Employment Opportunity Under EPA Contracts and EPA Assisted Construction Contracts.

As part of the procedure for determining the ability of contractors to comply with the Equal Opportunity clause, prospective bidders may be required to attend the meeting scheduled by the Environmental Protection Agency prior to opening of bids where they will be instructed in the equal employment opportunities of the agency.

Time For Completion

The successful bidder will be required to fully complete all Sewerage Facilities construction work within 365 consecutive calendar days from and including the date of receipt from the Owner of a formal notice to proceed.

Award of Contract

The award of any contract will be made by the Owner.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any proposal for failure to comply with all requirements of this notice or of any of the Contract Documents; however, it may waive any minor defects or informalities at its discretion.

The Owner further reserves the right to reject all proposals, or to award a contract or Contracts which in its judgment is in the best interest of the Owner.

OVER A DOZEN BANDS from high schools in Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania will participate in the annual Western Maryland Tournament of Bands at the Southern High School football field on Saturday, October 12. The event is sponsored by the Southern Garrett Band Boosters and the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council and as one of the events of the Autumn Glory Festival. Keyser High School's Golden Tornado Band, pictured above, the defending grand champion of the tournament, will return to compete this year, as will the current Western Maryland title holder, Allegany High School Band, pictured below. Because Southern Garrett Band is the host of the tourney, it will not be in competition, but will present an exhibition performance of its award-winning show. The tournament will get underway at 6 p.m.

Friend Found Guilty, Not Responsible

In Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last week, Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer found Delbert E. Friend, 48, Mtn. Lake Park, to be guilty of and not criminally responsible for assault.

Friend was committed to the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene for institutionalization for care and treatment.

The charges were filed following a June 20 incident in Loch Lynn when Friend caused a disturbance and pointed a rifle at another man.

In other court cases, the judge granted a pre-sentence investigation for Jeffrey S. Miller, 21, Friendsville.

Miller faced a charge of breaking and stealing and two counts of theft which were filed after a January 4 incident at the Friendsville Amoco.

According to court documents, stolen items included a 23-channel base CB radio, a Bear Cat scanner, an AM-FM cassette radio, 12 cartons of cigarettes, motor oil, candy bars, gum, and other miscellaneous items with a total value of $421.61.

Miller was represented by Richard K. Wehner, a Kingwood attorney.

The judge granted probation before judgment for Hugh A. Schrier, 34, Oakland, who faced charges of child abuse and assault and battery.

Schrier was placed on supervised probation for an indefinite period, with the condition of no further abusive conduct.

The charges were filed after a January 16 incident.

Schrier's attorney was Robert E. Watson, Oakland.

Applications For Scholarships Must Be Filed Soon

Two national scholarships available to college students must be applied for in the near future, according to Cissy VanSickle, financial aid officer at Garrett Community College.

Both scholarships will be awarded in 1986.

The Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation established by Congress in 1975 provides an educational scholarship program that gives opportunities for outstanding United States students with potential leadership ability to prepare for careers in government service. This Foundation will award 105 scholarships nation-wide in April, 1986. Deadline for applications is December 1, 1985.

This scholarship covers eligible expenses up to $5,000 per year for the junior and senior years of college work plus two years of graduate study. To be eligible, a student must be a full-time sophomore currently enrolled in college working toward a baccalaureate degree, maintaining a "B" average, a citizen of the United States, and planning a career in government. Application forms are available from Dr. George Dailey at the college.

The Elks National Foundation Trustees will award scholarships in the amount of $1,000 to each student for each of two years, for a total of $2,000 in March 1986. Applications for these scholarships must be filed no later than November 25, 1985.

This program is open to any prospective student who plans to pursue an eligible technical/-vocational course, above and supplemental to high school or preparatory school level. A high school diploma or equivalent GED is not required. Both high school students and older prospective students who require training or retraining are encouraged to apply. Applications are available at the college Financial Aid Office.

Further information about these and other scholarships is available by calling the Financial Aid Office at 387-6666.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

National Fire Prevention Week is October 7-11. As fall fire season gets underway across the State, Garrett County Project Forester Ernie Metz is calling special attention to the importance of preventing forest fires. Wildfires can kill trees, wildlife and reduce the benefits of trees to the environment.

Last year the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service sponsored a forest fire prevention poster contest for the third graders in Maryland's public schools. Fifteen counties (including Howard, Queen Anne's, Harford, Somerset, Washington, Worcester, Frederick, St. Mary's, Anne Arundel, Montgomery, Carroll, Prince George's, Charles, Baltimore and Garrett) had county poster winners. (The Garrett County winner was Sean Wachter from Accident Elementary School). A statewide winner was selected from the county winners.

The contest will be held again this year to help spread the forest fire prevention message to children. Entries are to be submitted by Arbor Day to Forester Metz and the Garrett County Forestry Board who will sponsor the local contest. Metz can be reached at the Mt. Nebo Office, telephone, 334-3296.

"Forest fire prevention is everybody's job," Metz said.

114 Laid Off At Mettiki Coal

The layoff of 114 employees by the Mettiki Coal Corporation was confirmed by the company's personnel director, Thomas Gearhart, on Friday, October 4.

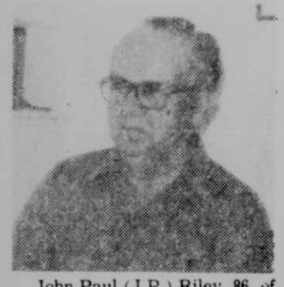
In a telephone conversation with Gearhart, he stated that, "For economic reasons, Mettiki Coal has reduced its workforce by approximately 114 employees, effective October 4."

Gearhart went on to say, "Dué to the expected long-term decline of coal sales, the reduction in force will be for an indefinite period of time, and there is no reasonable likelihood of a recall to work."

Nine of the workers laid off were salary employees, while 105 were hourly employees. Gearhart said that 313 persons remain on the payroll at Mettiki.

Each layoff in the county causes a "ripple effect", and this extensive layoff by the county's largest employer is expected to cause a ripple effect which will be felt throughout the county as well as the rest of Western Maryland.

While employment officials do not know exactly what the layoff will mean to the economics of Garrett County, they are speculating that the Mettiki layoff alone will cause the county's jobless figure to increase over one percent.



IT'S AUTUMN GLORY TIME, and these youngsters from the Oak Street Head Start class in Oakland decided to open the local festival in their own way Tuesday morning by organizing a parade. Teachers Pam Gallagher, right, and Ellie Teets, chaperoned the event, which was small in size, but large in enthusiasm. Students participating were Mika Myers, Carrie Vanorsdale, Tommy King, Marie Cooper, Scott Shillingburg, Jonathan Harris, Dennis Stottlemeyer, Krystle Towne, Brandi Lewis, and Nathan Rexrode. The official kickoff for the 18th annual Autumn Glory Festival occurred last night with the crowning of Michele Glotfelty as Queen at a reception at Deep Creek Lake. Events will continue through Sunday (see schedule on this page).

J.P. Riley, Area Businessman, Dies

John Paul (J.P.) Riley, 86, of Oakland, who was a Gulf Oil distributor in this area for more than 50 years before retiring in 1979, died Wednesday, October 9, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

He was born October 7, 1899, in Terra Alta, W.Va., son of the late Elliott J. Riley and Anna P. (Bowman) Riley.

Mr. Riley was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church; Oakland Lodge 192, AF and AM; a 50-year member of Garrett Lodge 113, Knights of Pythias, and a member and past president of the Oakland Rotary Club.

Friends will be received at the Stewart Funeral Home today from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Two memorial services will be held at the funeral home this evening, the first at 7:30 by Garrett Lodge 113, Knights of Pythias, and the second at 8 p.m. by Oakland Lodge 192, AF and AM.

The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p.m., at St. Mark's Lutheran Church with Pastor Ray Ursin officiating. Interment will be in Garrett County Memorial Gardens.

Pallbearers will be Ralph Arnold, Frank Arnold, Clayton Arnold, Ellis Yates, Woody Beckman and Tilton Wilt.

The family suggests that memorials take the form of donations to St. Mark's Lutheran Church or to the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, both of Oakland.

Four Arrested For Breaking And Entering

Members of the Oakland City Police Department and the Garrett County Sheriff's Department combined efforts last week to arrest three men and a 17-year-old juvenile involved in a series of breaking and entering thefts.

Edward W. Meyers, Oakland, and Steven D. Dillsworth were arrested for the breaking and entering thefts. Meyers is being held in the Garrett County Jail with a $10,000 bond. During the investigation, Sonny R. Bowman, Oakland, was charged with a weapons violation for possession of a sawed-off shotgun.

According to reports filed by both Departments, the men were involved in breaking and entering thefts at Fitzwater's Garage, Tressler's Garage, Bell Brothers, and Fred E. Beachy Lumber Company from August 28 to October 7.

Assorted tools, along with various other merchandise, were taken in the four thefts. Detective Richard Kutchman of the Sheriff's Department reported that the total value of all the stolen items exceeds $5,500. Kutchman also reported that some of the stolen tools were recovered in West Virginia and Maryland.

Potomac Edison Crews Return From New York

Potomac Edison line crews from Oakland, Hagerstown, Frederick, Romney and Cumberland returned home late Monday night, as the Long Island Lighting Company (LILCO) released more than 1,000 workers from 17 outside utilities who had been helping with emergency operations since September 27.

When 114 Potomac Edison employees arrived on Long Island, more than 700,000 of LILCO's 980,000 customers were without power. As of noon Monday, fewer than 5,000 customers were still without electricity, according to Bill Sherrard, a LILCO spokesman.

Potomac Edison sent line personnel from all nine area offices located throughout its service territory in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia to help LILCO recover from the worst outage in its history. Sherrard said company officials estimated that costs related to the storm damage would exceed $40 million.

The Oakland PE crew consisted of Wayne Miller, line foreman; Gene Helbig; Hobart Georg, Gene Maxson, Edward Rhodes, Greg Harris and Rick Edwards.

Fisher Family Exposed To Rabid Raccoon

Another rabid raccoon has been reported by Garrett County Health Officials, this one exposing three members of one family to rabies.

The incident occurred the afternoon of Monday, September 30, on the Maryland acreage of the Alvin Fisher farm, located between Route 669 and the Dorsey Hotel Road along the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line near Springs, Pa.

Fisher's sons, Milo, age 18 and David, age 17, observed their dog fighting with the raccoon and were determined to capture the raccoon. In the attempt to capture it, the raccoon bit Milo, after which his

James Nordeck Retires From Sincell Publishing

After a printing career spanning 56 years, James H. Nordeck, retired Monday from the Sincell Publishing Company, Oakland.

With the exception of three years with the U.S. Army in the Pacific during World War II, Nordeck devoted most of his efforts in the production department at Sincell Publishing, serving as compositor, pressman, stereotyper, and cameraman, as the need arose. He served also in advertising as a layout and sales person and, for many years, delivered finished copies of The Republican Newspaper to newsstands throughout the area.

Nordeck began his career while still a student at Oakland High School at a time when great physical energy was required in the production of the newspaper. For each page of the newspaper, a form con-

State Officials Invited To Next Week's Yough River Meeting

An important meeting to discuss issues and problems concerning the Youghiogheny River has been arranged through the combined efforts of the Garrett County Commissioners, Senator John N. Bambacus, and Delegate George Edwards. The meeting will be held in the commissioners' hearing room of the courthouse in Oakland, on October 17 at 1 p.m.

Those invited to attend this meeting, other than the commissioners, the delegate and the senator, are DNR Secretary Torrey C. Brown, Jan Nishida of the governor's office, and members of the Youghiogheny River Association.

This local meeting is the spin-off of a public hearing held in Annapolis on September 10, on the state regulation of rivers and the review of current state policy regarding the regulation of rivers by the DNR and State Planning.

This hearing was before the state Senate's Economic & Environmental Affairs Committee, and was attended by committee members Sen. Norman R. Stone Jr., chairman; Sen. Arthur Dorman, vice chairman; Sen. John N. Bambacus; Sen. Victor Cushwa; Sen. Troy Brailey; Sen. John W. Derr; Sen. B.W. Mike Donovan; Sen. Sidney Kramer; Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr.; and Sen. Frank S. Shore.

Among others present at this hearing were: Sec. Torrey C. Brown, DNR; Frank M. Oslislo, DNR; John E. Hinebaugh, Yough River Association president; and Richard Browning, chairman of the Yough River Association Board.

Senator Bambacus made opening remarks at the hearing, explaining that he had asked the chairman if, during the interim, the committee could review the policy of the state regarding the regulation of rivers.

John E. Hinebaugh, representing the Youghiogheny River Association, testified that he had ten years of experience living under the Scenic and Wild Rivers Act. The association was active in seeking a change to the Scenic and Wild Rivers Act and testified on the amendments which were signed into law. The association is envious of the way the Department of State Planning has carried out a program for the Patuxent River, since a plan has been prepared for the policy and management of that river.

In Hinebaugh's comments before the hearing he stated that the Scenic and Wild Rivers Act requires a plan for the management of the Youghiogheny River but none has been prepared. Legislation that passed in 1984 provided for a new local

Yough Board Appointed By Unanimous Vote

A new Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board was appointed by an unanimous vote of the Scenic & Wild Rivers Review Board. This appointment fills a void that was left vacant almost three years ago when the board was disbanded, and had not been reappointed because of disagreements between the commissioners and the DNR regarding the nominees.

The first meeting of the Scenic & Wild Rivers Review Board to be held since the law was amended to seat a Garrett County Commissioner to vote only on matters concerning the Youghiogheny River, took place in Annapolis on October 2, and was attended by review board member Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II, and Commissioner Ernest Gregg.

"It is extremely gratifying that the approval of all 11 people was by unanimous vote," said Groves, "and we are glad that we held out for a board we feel is in the best interest of all concerned."

The new appointees are: Hazel Duvall, Donald P. Sebold, and Mary Jane Yoder, who are land owners contiguous to that portion of the river designated as a wild river; Melvin Dunithan, Deborah Pepper, James Spear, Brison Thomas, and Robert Thomas, who all own land that is not contiguous to the scenic or wild river; Elwood L. Groves II, who represents the local governing body; John E. Hinebaugh and Shaun Sanders, who are members from the county Soil Conservation District.

Those members of the Scenic & Wild Rivers Review Board who made the appointments are: Sec. Torrey C. Brown, state DNR; Constance Lieder, secretary of the Department of

Garrett CC Students Among Best Prepared At Four-Year Colleges

Garrett Community College had the third highest proportion of transfer students in good standing at four-year colleges when compared with the other 16 community colleges in Maryland.

Eighty-three percent of Garrett's transfer students were in good standing, with good standing defined as maintaining a grade point average of 2.0 of a possible 4.0. The four-year colleges surveyed by the Board of Trustees of the State Universities and Colleges were Bowie State, Coppin, Frostburg State, Salisbury State, Towson State, and the University of Baltimore. The study covered fall, 1984 and spring, 1985, semesters.

The statewide proportion of transfer students from Maryland community colleges maintaining good standing was 77%, six percentage points below Garrett Community College. The two community colleges in the state with a higher proportion than Garrett were Allegany Community College and Cecil Community College.

When asked about the results of the survey, Dr. David A. Puzzuoli, interim president of Garrett Community College,

$200,000 ARC Grant Awarded For New Piney Dam Project

The Appalachian Regional Commission has awarded a $200,000 grant to help fund construction of a new Piney Dam. Piney Dam is located in Garrett County and provides water for the town of Frostburg.

The new Piney Dam would be built about 150 feet downstream from the existing earthen dam. The present breastwork, which retains about six million gallons of water, is expected to have only about a 15-year lifespan, even though it was recently renovated.

The announcement came from the office of U.S. Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, who noted, "This grant is important to Frostburg in two respects. First, it will help alleviate the tremendous demands on the current water supply. Second, it will help assure economic growth."

He went on to say that without a new water supply, phase II development of the recently opened Comfort Inn, constructed by a Garrett County firm and expected to create 60 jobs and represent $1.5 million in private investment, cannot begin. Phase II development at the Comfort Inn will involve construction of a free-standing restaurant.

The senator brought to memory the water shortage which occurred during the summer drought of 1983, which nearly closed down the city and Frostburg State College.

Mayor William R. Davis of Frostburg said that the federal action is "a good indication that the whole project will fall together. This grant gives us a real good indication that people on the federal level are looking favorably on the project," he said. "It's the first real good sign that the federal people are giving the ($6.5 million) project the go-ahead. The commitment is a good sign for us."

Davis feels that the federal commitment will reflect favorably everywhere, especially in the state Senate and House of Delegates when Frostburg approaches the General Assembly again this year in a request for a $1 million bond issue.

"Last year, we didn't have these firm commitments. This year, we can say we have firm commitments from Farmers Home Administration and ARC. It will make our state case more solid this year," the mayor said.

A $6.5 million loan has been issued to the city by the federal Farmers Home Administration, and in turn, the city will issue bonds to repay it. The newly awarded ARC grant will help in repaying the FmHA loan, bring the bonds to maturity and lower interest charges. Davis noted that this means a lower cost overall to the citizens of Frostburg, who have been recently paying a one dollar per month water tap fee, which will be stopped when all the bonds are paid off.

Mayor Davis met with State Senator John Bambacus, who will be pre-filing bills in the Senate and the House requesting the $1 million bond issue. The legislation will be ready for consideration at the time the General Assembly convenes in November. Senator Bambacus had sponsored the same bill last year in the General Assembly, but that bid was rejected. "The second time around looks promising," Davis remarked.

Police Report Area Mishaps

Maryland State Police reported several area mishaps which occurred in the past week.

A single-vehicle accident was reported Saturday around 4 a.m. on Third Street, Oakland.

According to reports filed by the police, Daniel R. Braniff, 20, Terra Alta, W.Va., was traveling north in a 1978 Scout II. As the vehicle neared the B & O Railroad bridge, it left the road, striking the bridge wall and coming to rest across both lanes.

Tpr. David W. Broadwater investigated the mishap, charging Braniff with leaving the roadway, negligent driving, driving with an expired license, and driving while intoxicated.

Braniff was apparently not seriously injured, according to the police.

A single-vehicle accident occurred October 3 on U.S. Route 48.

According to the police, Dorothy A. Fearer, 50, Friendsville, was driving a 1966 Cadillac Coupe DeVille when she failed to negotiate a right turn. The vehicle struck the center median and ran off the right side of the road, striking an embankment.

Tfc. R.J. Resh investigated the incident, and reported that the driver had been ill, and apparently passed out, causing the mishap.

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad transported Fearer to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where she was admitted and taken to surgery.

According to a hospital spokesman, Fearer has apparently been released from the hospital.

A two-vehicle accident was reported October 1 on U.S. Route 135 around 8 p.m.

According to the police, Raymond Bittinger, 63, Swanton, was westbound in a 1971 Mack 600, while Richard D. Layton, 16, Mtn. Lake Park, was traveling south in a 1981 Plymouth Reliant K.

Layton's vehicle crossed the center line, striking Bittinger's vehicle head-on.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the incident, charging Layton with failing to keep right of the center line.

Layton was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital and later discharged, according to a hospital spokesman.

Jody Wilt, 16, Mtn. Lake Park, a passenger in Layton's vehicle, was treated and released at that hospital.

DWI

Donald E. Oates, 26, McHenry, was charged with driving while intoxicated on Foster Road at 10:15 p.m. October 3, by Tfc. L. Rosage.

Impasse To Be Discussed By Bd. Of Ed.

One topic of discussion at the public meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education this afternoon will be the impasse between the Board and the supportive services group of the Garrett County Federation of Teachers, which represents custodial supervisors and cafeteria managers.

On September 25, the Federation voted to accept the report and recommendation of Jerome H. Ross, a neutral member who was brought in to help resolve the impasse, which was declared in June after regular and additional negotiation sessions.

After a hearing on September 11, many issues still remained unresolved, such as salary increases, increase in longevity step, amount of disability income protection and life insurance, discipline and discharge only for just cause, and arbitration of grievances by an outside neutral party.

Board proposals contained a six percent salary increase, no change in longevity steps, no changes in life insurance benefits, no settling of grievances beyond the local Board, and no just cause provision.

According to Ross, the unresolved noneconomic issues are of great importance. After consideration, Ross made the following recommendations: salary increase of six percent, no increase in longevity steps, one additional holiday, no change in current level of benefits, arbitration of grievances by a neutral third party, discipline and discharge only for just cause, bargaining unit vacancies to be offered to bargaining unit employees prior to seeking outside applicants, and involuntary transfers not to be used as discipline and not to be made without just cause.

Tom Butscher—Garrett County's First Honorary Golden Ambassador

THE DREAMER — Tom Butscher, left, assumes a familiar position—feet propped, hands clasped behind his head—the position he took many times when dreaming of a famous Autumn Glory Festival to promote Garrett County. Butscher was honored as the county's first "Honorary Golden Ambassador" last night at the Golden Ambassador Reception held at Silver Tree Inn, sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council. In the photo above, Butscher is shown receiving a plaque of appreciation from Edwin Wathall, president of the Promotion Council, as Randy Rodeheaver, member of the council and chairman of the reception, looks on.

by Pam Ashby

The Deep Creek Lake - Garrett County Promotion Council inducted its first "Honorary Golden Ambassador" last night at the Autumn Glory Kickoff Reception at Silver Tree Inn. The honoree was Tom Butscher, one of the first promoters of the festival.

Tom, chairman of the board of directors of the promotion Council in 1968, along with various other members, instigated the first annual Autumn Glory - Turkey Festival, the name first given the annual event.

In those days, the Promotion Council operated on about $5,000 a year and Tom said many people kept saying, "We can't afford such an undertaking. Where's the money coming from?"

Fortunately, the Oakland–Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club agreed to co-sponsor the festival and continued to do so until a few years ago.

Tom just kept "ding-donging the group", as he put it, and things began to happen. It seemed as though his belief in a famous festival was infectious. R.T. Thayer, or Big Daddy, as Tom calls him, said, "Tom was the eternal optimist and just wouldn't give up on the idea." R.T. was a fellow board member those first years.

Cornish Manor luncheon meetings produced many ideas for that first festival. Several members recall R.T. suggesting a "$50 a plate dinner to kick off the festival." To say the least, the group was skeptical. But Tom's eyes lit up as he saw a prominent businesman entering the restaurant. He and Lynn Beckman, executive director of the council at that time, approached the man and asked if he would pay that price for a kickoff dinner for a festival that would promote Garrett County. "Sure!" the man replied. The rest is history.

All the members of the board agreed that the late Gilman "Gig" Sylvester was instrumental in making the Golden Ambassador Kickoff Dinner so successful. Gig helped book Jack Anderson, the nationally-known television and newspaper commentator, as the first speaker for the dinner. Tom termed the first dinner a "huge success" and after that, big names were no strangers to the festival. "That first year, we had to have the kickoff dinner in August to have seed money," Tom recounted.

"The most controversial and outlandish speaker we ever had was the late Junior Samples," chuckled Tom in his famous resonant voice. "Big Daddy said he had seen Junior on Johnny Carson and thought he was hilarious. So we booked him at no small cost. When it was time for him to speak, though, he was nowhere to be found. Big Daddy, who was the emcee at that particular dinner, found him in the restroom and remembers Junior asking, 'Where are the girls?' After some slick maneuvering, Big Daddy got him to the microphone. Junior said, 'Hi, folks. Have a good time,' and promptly sat down. Poor R.T. tried and tried to get Junior to talk, but to no avail. The crowd roared. They must have thought that was entertainment enough because they were certainly understanding."

Tom recalled booking Billy Joe Royal as a teen attraction at the first festival. "It was pretty easy booking him because he was in a slump period, but wouldn't you know it . . . right before the festival he came out with another top ten tune. The kids loved him."

Tom's connections in the radio world made it much easier for the council to obtain big names for the festival for many years. Tom is an owner of WMSG/WXIE radio in Oakland, WCST in Berkeley Springs, W. Va. and WKLP in Keyser, W. Va. According to Beckman, Tom promoted and supported the festival with his "own talents and resources."

Aside from the big names already mentioned, Tom was, in one way or another, responsible for obtaining names like Grandpa Jones, Skeeter Davis, Roy Acuff, Kitty Wells, Jean Shephard, Bill Curry, Percy Sledge, Mark Hatfield, The 1910 Fruitgum Company. . . the list goes on.

Through Tom's help, the first festival was complete with a Maryland State Fiddlers' Championship. It was so popular, Tom immediately began planting a seed for another big idea.

Beckman recalled, "One day after the first festival, I went to the radio station to see Tom about something when he said, 'Hey, Lynn-o, come on in here and pull up a chair.' Whenever Tom went to dreaming about something he would throw his legs up on the desk and clasp his hands behind his head. Before I knew it, he had created a five-string banjo contest."

Beckman said he would never forget "the dedicated hours Tom Butscher put into making the festival so successful."

But as Tom put it, "It was important from the very beginning to promote the festival with 'big guns' ".

"That first year was rough. We had to make it big. We were spending money we didn't have. Thank heavens the Lions Club helped sponsor it. And thank heavens for I.R. Rudy for putting together the first big parade. It lasted over two hours and just floated the heads off the spectators," Tom reminisced. "My, it was an awful lot of work. . . but my heavens, it was so much fun."

Tom has collected much memorabilia from those early festivals. . . posters, pamphlets, newspaper clippings. He is considering giving them to the Garrett County Historical Society.

Many people say Tom has been instrumental in putting Garrett County on the map, even though the road was long and very unsure.

The first promoters of the festival had an unequaled task set before them. They even lost money the first year, but as R.T. aptly stated, "Tom truly was the eternal optimist. When things looked the blackest, we tried to see it through and it usually worked. Somehow it all came together."

Tom Butscher has always been a community-minded man. Among his many accomplishments, he was the creator of the first slow-pitch softball league in the county, the senior division of the little league and the Oakland Merchants' Association. It was Tom's idea to have a Santa Claus parade to open the Christmas shopping season and to have businesses stay open on Friday nights instead of the traditional Saturday nights.

Collectively, Tom and his wife, Brenda, have been selected to serve as delegate or alternate to the Republican National Convention no less than five times. They also started the first Lincoln Day Dinner

Tom is an active member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland and serves as a Sunday School teacher and as a lay conference delegate.

Until his illness a few years ago, which eventually ended in brain surgery, Tom served as the scoutmaster for Boy Scouts of America, Troop 31.

Tom Butscher found a way for the county to capitalize on his favorite season, fall. Little wonder he was so motivated in helping make the Autumn Glory Festival the success it is today.

When asked if he ever regretted all the hard work and long, uncompensated hours involved in helping to create a festival, he replied, "It was wonderful. . . just wonderful. Look what all that hard work produced. I'm very proud to say I was a catalyst of the Autumn Glory Festival."

Beckman summed up the sentiments of many of the people who worked with Tom during those first years of the festival. "Tom Butscher is a very true and loyal friend of Garrett County and the Autumn Glory Festival. He has worked as hard as anyone over the years to bring prosperity and quality to the tourism and economic system of the county. Many are not aware of just how much he has done and worked behind the scenes. Tom has impacted on others and his mark is indelibly stamped on the hearts and lives of many persons and things. Certainly, the Autumn Glory Festival is one of those things."

Commissioners Award Contracts For Abrasives

Contracts for anti-skid materials to be used by the Garrett County Roads Department were awarded Tuesday by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners, according to information released at a press conference later that afternoon.

Greenbrier, Rowlesburg, W. Va. was awarded the contract for the Oakland garage. Their bid was $5.12 per ton for anti-skid sand. Keystone Lime Company, Grantsville, and Maryland Mineral, Accident were awarded contracts for anti-skid limestone and anti-skid sand, respectively, for the Accident garage. Keystone's bid was $5.40 per ton, while Maryland Mineral's was $5.24 per ton.

Keystone was also awarded the contract for anti-skid limestone for the Grantsville garage at $5.30 per ton.

The commissioners awarded the contracts with the recommendations of Paul R. Shockey, roads administrator.

County clerk, Robert J. Fousek, said the products to be provided meet all the county's specifications and proximity of the stone plants to the garages was also considered in the final awarding of the contracts.

Also Tuesday, the commissioners met with Shockey and the area supervisors of the roads department to outline plans for the upcoming winter season.

Bid Openings

The commissioners also conducted bid openings for the partial renovation of the old courthouse and for a small pick-up truck to be used as an animal control vehicle by the Garrett County Animal Shelter.

Two bids were received for the courthouse renovation. R. L. Bowman Corporation submitted a bid of $39,445, while Garrett Construction Services put in a bid of $34,633. The bids have been given to Gary Mullich, building supervisor, to review for compliance and specifications.

Four bids were opened by the commissioners for the pickup truck. Dealerships submitting bids were Markwood and Graham Chevrolet, $6,895; Shaffer Ford Sales, $7,300; Deal Ford, $6,884; and Team One, $7,000 with a three and one-half percent maximum increase pending a new price list to be received next week.

Good Luck, And Thanks

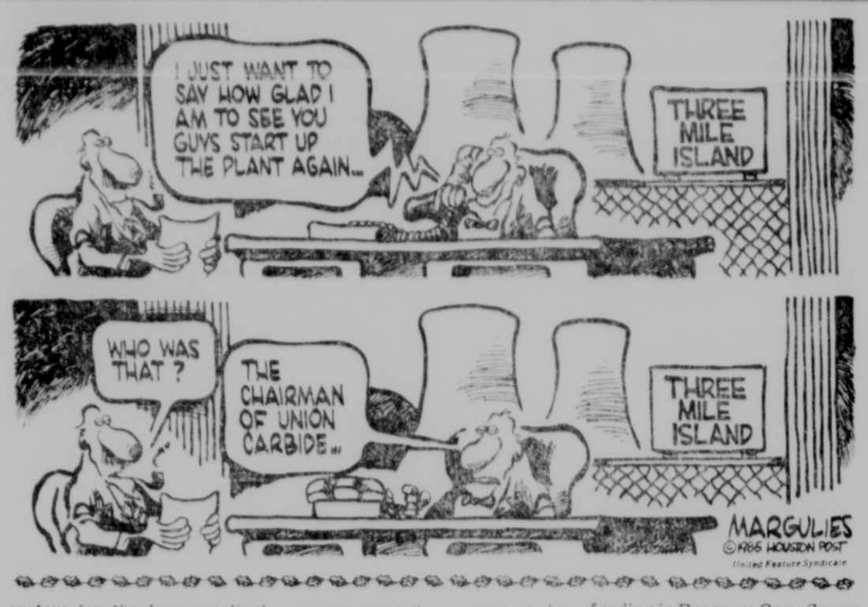
Jim Nordeck came in to work at The Republican office this Monday morning, just as he has for the past 2,900 Mondays. He had been here for only about 20 minutes, however, when he went to the general manager and told him he was retiring, effective immediately. He told the manager he wanted no dinner, no gold watch, no special ceremony. With that, he put on his jacket and went down the back steps, the same steps he has gone up and down over 150,000 times (that's 3,750,000 steps!). He was a bit too emotional to go around the office and say goodbye to his fellow employees.

All of us knew that his retirement was near, and steps were taken by Jim and the manager to replace him. He would not have left if he were not sure someone would be there to fill his position.

Not many people work for 56 years in the same profession, in the same building, and with the same company. Jim was still in high school when he went to work for Benjamin Sincell. The staff was composed of about five people then. The hours were long, the work was tough, and pay was low.

There is not a single facet of printing and newspaper production that Jim hasn't been involved with over the years. He has experienced revolutionary changes in the process of printing and newspaper production, from heavy, hot metal type to computer-made "cold" type. Such changes in technology have devoured many good men over the years, forcing them into unemployment, early retirement, or some other form of work because of their inability to change and adapt. But not Jim Nordeck. He was a master at adaptation and a true professional in every sense. He rolled with the continual barrage of punches that this profession throws at a person.

His work at Sincell Publishing has never been easy. The strain, both physical and mental, is often overwhelming. Not only did Jim handle it, but to look at him today, one would guess his age to be 10 to 15 years fewer than it really is.



Perhaps Jim's finest quality was the pride he took in his work. He went the extra mile every single week to do his part in attempting to make every issue of The Republican a good one. It bothered him when an ad or a photograph did not look quite as good as it should have.

It actually is not quite accurate to say Jim worked at The Republican for 56 consecutive years. In the early 1940s he answered a call to serve his country during World War II.

He has also contributed so much in his many years of service with the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club and his church.

This writer is really going to miss you around here, Jim. I will never be able to tell you how much I respect and admire you, and how much I thank you for your dedication to your job and to your community. If all people approached their jobs, and life in general, the way you have, the world would be a much better place.

Good luck.

To the Editor:

It seems that our county commissioners are preparing to ask members of the legislature to enact a law that would give them power to levy a special tax on real estate for our rescue squads. Our rescue squads need help, but I believe that if a new tax is necessary there are other sources than real estate to go to for the money to help them. Our home owners are being taxed beyond their ability to pay. Many of our property owners are struggling to keep their homes, many are retired and living on a fixed income. It is not fair to load any additional tax burden upon them.

Our commissioners have seemed ready to spend the public monies for less worthy causes. They could help our rescue squads with money from the general county funds. They have the power to do this without any new legislation, or new taxes.

However, if they will not do this and they need additional taxing power, they should ask our representatives to enact a law empowering them to place an additional county tax on alcoholic beverages.

People who can afford to drink can afford to pay the tax. This would be the fair and proper way to help our rescue squads. We need to curtail consumption of alcohol in Garrett County. Too many places are dispensing alcoholic drinks along our highways, inviting our traveling public to stop and have a drink. It makes no sense to license drink sales places inviting and reminding young people that liquor is so available.

Higher taxes might help to reduce consumption. Our whole nation is aware that drinking is a threat to human life. Now is the time to do something to reduce drunk driving. Here in Garrett County it would reduce fatal accidents, save lives, help our rescue squads, maybe reduce the costs of law enforcement. It certainly would make more sense than taxing our good people out of their homes.

Let us write our representatives and request help and assistance in trying to make it safer for us to drive on the highways.

Clifford Friend,

To the Editor:

Garrett County is indeed fortunate in having a group of volunteers who unselfishly give of their time and skills in helping patients and families get through a time of suffering and sadness such as the loss of a loved one.

Garrett County Hospice is struggling to stay live and continue to function even though they are short of volunteers and funds.

During the illness and death of my husband, these volunteers were there when needed. Jackie Snelson, hospice coordinator, Sharon King, volunteer coordinator, Paul Yoder and Ethel Ridder, volunteers; Dr. Naumann and Dr. Stoltzfus, physicians, who participate in the Hospice Program, and all the Hospital Staff who offered care and concern, have our families' gratitude and thanks.

The faithful weekly visits of Marsha McKenzie, home health nurse, also enabled my husband to remain at home in the place he loved for almost the entire time of his illness.

Appreciation and our thanks from us all should go out to all these volunteers who are there when needed and requested.

May God bless each of the Hospice volunteers and all of our friends who were so appreciated in our time of need.

The typical newly diagnosed Lupus patient feels very much alone. She is usually a young woman in the prime of life. She has been told she has a chronic (that means forever) disease from which she will never recover. She has never heard of the disease nor known anyone afflicted with it. She has been very sick for a period of months or years with a crazy patchwork-quilt variety of symptoms which come and go in a seemingly endless variety of combinations that defies belief in her own sanity. The reactions of her family/friends range from horror to disbelief, resulting from a lack of or mis-information. She frequently goes into a tailspin of denial and despair.

Lupus Awareness Week, proclaimed by President Reagan and Governor Hughes for October 20-26, 1985, is designed to promote a multi-level support system for the Lupus patient. By promoting public awareness of this not uncommon disease (over 3,000 cases in Maryland) it helps correct the idea that Lupus is a rare and fatal illness. Increased awareness promotes contributions for research into the cause and cure of the disease, and for improved treatments for the Lupus patient. Better education about the true facts of Lupus promotes confican indeed exercise control over her diesease. Up-to-date education also assists the health professional in the diagnosis and management of the disease. In short, we tell the Lupus patient "You are not alone." To the Editor:

Just a note to tell you we really appreciate the Farm News Articles you've been publishing for quite some time. Also, we think Mrs. Kepple has been doing a great job with her different feature stories and farm-related articles she's been writing. She's keeping up on the Farm Bill which has been a current issue and of much interest to farmers.

Some other farming people we've talked with think, too, that Mrs. Kepple is doing a very good job.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I would like to thank Bernice Kepple and The Republican staff for printing the article in The Republican last week, on our horses' winnings at the Maryland P.Q.H.N.A. and Tri-State Quarter Horse Futures. We hope this article will help the county residents to better understand the quarter horse in general, and the tough competition at the A.Q.H.A. approved events. We hope the public is aware of the good horses that are bred and raised in Garrett County.

To those of you who do show the A.Q.H.A. circuits, good luck and keep up the good work.

Thanks again.

Sincerely,
Dick and Susie Smith

State Officials

advisory board, the only means for Garrett County residents to participate in the administration of the law, and at the time of the hearing that board had not yet been appointed.

Hinebaugh went on to say that legislation passed in 1984 mandated that one member of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners sit on the Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board and at the time of the hearing that board had never convened. He said that the Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board is required to submit a plan to the General Assembly every year, and there is no evidence that the yearly report on the administration of the act has ever been submitted.

He also testified that the association is dedicated to the preservation of the Youghiogheny River and it would like to work with the state so that it has knowledge of what is being done and is provided with the opportunity to present its views on the management of the river, and this opportunity has not been provided to the association.

DNR Secretary Brown testified that the reason the different rivers are treated differently is because they are different, and the department believes it is doing what is prescribed by law.

Frank M. Oslislo, director, Land Planning Services, Capital Programs Administration, DNR, discussed the similarities and differences among river management programs in Maryland as they relate to the Patuxent and Youghiogheny Rivers. He confirmed that both rivers are addressed by the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act. Both have special state legislation and programs to manage and protect their special values.

He said that of greatest importance when considering the differences in the circumstances of the two rivers is the multi-jurisdictional nature of the Patuxent, with the upstream counties under heavy development pressure and the downstream counties on the estuary as the recipients of the adverse impacts of development. The river flows through seven counties as compared to the Youghiogheny which flows through one county. This clearly calls for a multi-jurisdictional approach to planning and management.

Chairman Stone questioned why the Local Advisory Board had not been appointed in the almost two years since the legislation was passed. Oslislo responded that there was a Local Advisory Board between 1975 and 1979 which became inactive by the mutual consent of the DNR and the board.

Responding to a question by the chairman, Oslislo testified that the issue involved is the property owners' rights along the corridor. Since Garrett County does not have zoning regulations, the department has adopted use and development regulations permitting traditional uses of the land. The property owners have concerns about the department and state regulating activities along their land and with the use and development regulations that address activities which may occur along the river.

Chairman Stone questioned whether the state would get out if Garrett County developed a land use plan, and Oslislo responded that the department would develop the scenic and wild river plan regardless.

Senator Bambacus testified that the situation in Garrett County is one of state land-use planning where 95 percent of the land is private property. The main issue is private property rights. The state is telling the people what to do with their land. This has to do with the difference in values and beliefs and the way the people choose to live; there is a tremendous clash of values. Garrett County wants to control its own destiny. This is not a constructive policy. Garrett County wants to decrease the state's presence.

Bambacus asked the question, "Has the state ever exercised eminent domain in the acquisition of land on the Youhiogheny River?" Sec. Brown responded, "No."

Bambacus asked, "What are your current and future plans involved in the Youghiogheny River? People fear that the state will come in and take their land." Brown responded that the state cannot sell their land. "The state is prohibited by law from purchasing land in Garrett County."

Bambacus commented that the state may buy land from willing sellers if it gives an equal amount of land back. The largest percentage of state-owned land is in Garrett County. "It takes land off the tax rolls."

Sec. Brown testified that the state's policy for the future is to divest itself of an equivalent amount of land if it wishes to purchase land in Garrett County. "This is not easily done," he said, "because local residents also oppose the state giving up land." Brown added that there are a number of parcels of land that the state would like to divest itself of but all of them have been opposed.

Oslislo testified that there is funding in Program Open Space to acquire land. "The state is developing a boiler plate contract for easements along the corridor. There are a fairly large number of people who are interested in the state's easement acquisition program and the agreement in perpetuity limiting development along their site; that would also address the issue of compensation. The state is regulating land without any compensation. A lot of property owners along the Youghiogheny River don't live in Garrett County."

"What about future plans?" Bambacus asked. Sec. Brown testified that the state is only interested in buying from willing sellers. "The state will not take a piece of property from a resident who is not interested in the state taking it," he said. The state is interested in purchasing property around the corridor, and he explained that in the future if a resident is interested in selling his property to the state, the state could purchase it by finding an alternative piece of property for that person or the state could divest itself of another piece of property.

Bambacus asked, "What about the relationship of the Natural Lands Trust in the acquisition of land?" He said that there is some fear among the people, because two former employees working in the Youghiogheny River Corridor who have left the DNR went to the Trust with the intent of purchasing land through the Trust. This creates the appearance of conflict. "If the Natural Lands Trust would acquire land, would that land also go off the tax rolls?" he asked.

Brown responded that the department is not responsible for what former employees of the department do. "A number of former employees work for agencies like that," he said.

It is hopeful that all the invited officials will attend the October 17 meeting to clarify some of the above comments and further discuss the issue with local residents and officials.

Mtn. Lake Park Home Severely Damaged By Fire

A Mountain Lake Park house sustained major damage Saturday morning as a result of a fire which broke out while the owners of the structure were out shopping for groceries.

The Oakland and Deer Park volunteer fire departments were called to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Kitzmiller, 208 D Street, at 9:04 a.m. when a neighbor noticed smoke coming from the two-story house.

Upon their arrival, firefighters discovered the kitchen and a portion of the basement involved in fire. The blaze was brought under control within about six minutes, however the kitchen and basement sustained major damage, while the remainder of the house and its contents were damaged considerably by smoke and heat.

Kitzmiller told firemen that he and his wife left for the grocery store soon after getting out of bed and had not used any of the appliances in the kitchen. Guy Carola and Robert Shimer, fire investigators, have determined that the cause of the fire was electrical in nature, probably occurring as a result of two wires coming in contact and shorting out.

All of the contents of the kitchen were destroyed. Kitzmiller reported that he and his wife have insurance on the house and contents.

Oakland responded to the scene with one pumper and Deer Park with one pumper. The units returned to their stations by 11 a.m. Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad and Deep Creek VFD sent a unit to stand-by at Oakland's station.

There were no injuries reported.

Our Turn

Paper Day
by Pam Ashby

Paper day. It's marked permanently in indelible ink on my daily planner every Thursday. It's the day I awaken groaning, "Oh no! It's paper day," and don my crummiest jeans and sweatshirt.

Forces Unite

Paper day begins promptly at 8 a.m., and until about 8:30 a.m. a naive observer would think, "It's business as usual. What's the big deal?"

The big deal is that the observer doesn't realize the pressure which began the day before at about noon. The reporters were scampering about, checking last minute stories or glued to their word processors. Members of the ad department were attempting to find another ounce of creativity to use on a deadline full-page ad. The typesetters were furiously pounding out the last minute stories and the deadline ads. The photographer was searching high and low for a front-page shot. The shop workers were cleaning and fine-tuning the press, the stuffer and the Addressograph. The editor was deciding on a mid-section layout and dealing with too much copy. And the publisher was looking more worried by the moment wondering how it was all going to come together by press time.

It's also not uncommon to see half the staff working late on paper day eve. With some of us, it's become so common that nothing, including illness or death, must interfere with Wednesday night.

Battle Begins

So, by Thursday morning we begin feeling as though we've taken up residence in this place.

The layout of the front section begins sometime between 10 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Somehow, the three greenhorn reporters and the now exasperated editor manage to accomplish the layout by lunchtime, even though Joe Blow called in at 11:45 a.m. to give us a news flash.

No one goes home for lunch or runs errands on paper day. Everyone scrambles to the local grill to grab a quick bite and long-term indigestion. Oh, it's not the quality of the food. Rather, it's the tension and the fast manner in which we stuff face.

Divide and Conquer

Almost every employee, regardless of position, goes to the press room on paper day. Once there, everyone jockies for different stations.

"Why don't you carry papers to Jim and I'll carry to Jack?"

"No, you run the stuffer and I'll carry all the papers."

"Wait a minute! It's your turn to offbear and jog. I'll carry."

"Who died and made you boss?"

Sound like Greek? Trust me, it is. But up until this point, the main emotion felt is fear. Fear of the press, the stuffer or the Addressograph breaking down. When that happens, fear takes on new forms of emotion; like anger, depression, hatred.

Someone kicks a machine; another person throws a screwdriver. Once-timid people become animals snapping at one another and everyone blames everyone else for the big breakdown. This is full-scale war.

Peace Treaty

But you know, after all is said and done and The Republican is addressed and safely tucked into mailbags or delivered to the local newsstand, there is an unspoken agreement of peace. We're all still friends and gradually, comments like, "That wasn't so bad", or "Good looking edition today, huh?" are echoed throughout the building.

Then suddenly, everyone is laughing about the joys of "putting out" a newspaper. An irate call from "Joe Bloe" who says we misspelled his name is dismissed after the promise of a correction is made and everyone agrees that "we're only human." C'est la guerre!

Consent Order Completion Date Drawing Near

The county is drawing nearer to a consent order to phase out the existing Round Glade Landfill and to establish a new landfill site as a result of a Tuesday meeting between the Board of Garrett County Commissioners and the Department of Waste Management.

The commissioners had been dealing with state-mandated regulations concerning the landfill for over a year, contending that the county wanted to comply with the state regulations, but felt many times the regulations were too stringent and/or untimely, not to mention expensive.

The commissioners' meeting with John Koontz, assistant director of DWMA, Paul O'Connell, attorney for the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, along with William Chicca and Robert Creeder, associates of that department, was set up for the purpose of additional questions surrounding the consent order and for clarification of various points of the order.

County officials now have two weeks to further review and revise the amended consent order at which time they are hopeful the state will give its final approval.

"The original document as promulgated was somewhat unworkable," stated Commissioner Elwood Groves II. "I think the state finally realized the inflexibility of the time restraints and took our particular situation into consideration. The consent order is now more realistic and workable, which is what we have been trying to achieve all along."

"I'm extremely pleased with the spirit of cooperation with the state today in arriving at a workable agreement concerning the document. Mr. Koontz was extremely helpful," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.

Commissioner John Braskey concluded, "This is the first time we have been able to make the state realize our predicament and to take into consideration the inclement winter weather we face here in Garrett County."

Gregg, Groves Say Annapolis Talks Beneficial

Garrett County Commissioners Elwood Groves II and Ernest Gregg Jr. were in Annapolis last week to attend a legislative session of the Maryland Association of Counties and a meeting with the Department of Economic Community Development. The commissioners agreed the meetings were "very productive."

During the MACo meeting the commissioners attended a meeting of the Landfill Workgroup and discussed solid waste management concerns with John Seyffert from the Maryland Environmental Service and with Allen Gesswein from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The MES is a quasi-government agency affiliated with the Department of Natural Resources, although 80% of their work is generated through private contractural agreements. Seyffert said state health regulations "are running ahead of federal EPA regulations." He said the state took the initiative to set their own regulations and those regulations are more stringent than those of the federal regulations. He said it was particularly noticeable in the mining industry.

"It's a case of primacy," said Gregg. "Normally the federal government helps oversee state regulations, but now, in many cases the federal government is taking a back seat to state mandates. We're afraid landfill regulations will be exposed to that same type of situation."

EPA Deputy Director Allen Gesswein said there is a possibility that the state could produce some aid to rural counties who must meet those expensive regulations in the form of a grant or a low-cost loan. Seyffert urged county officials who would have trouble funding new landfills that meet state regulations to get their legislators to enact a funding mechanism to assist counties. He also explained the revised EPA permit program in which counties must comply by September of 1989.

Studies are being done now in many counties to determine the feasibility of county governments financing new landfill technology dictated by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

"Garrett County is going to be hard-pressed to come up with the needed $2 million to fund such an expenditure. We have to have state relief," said Gregg.

"It seems to me that everything Mr. Gesswein had to say substantiates our fear that the state of Maryland is premature in promulgating these new regulations for solid waste landfills," stated Groves. "With a projected state compliance date for the revised EPA permit program being September, 1989, it looks like Maryland has the cart before the horse."

The commissioners are hopeful that financial aid for the planning and development of the "new state-of-the-art technology" now required for landfills will be forthcoming in one form or another.

Whitewater Aid

While in Annapolis, the commissioners, along with Garrett County Development Director Tom Jones, met with Hans Mayer, deputy secretary of the Department of Economic Community Development to discuss the 1989 Whitewater Championship to be held in Garrett County.

Jones and the commissioners gave Mayer an update on the current proceedings involving the planning of the worldwide event.

"This affects not only Garrett, Allegany and Mineral Counties, it also involves the state as well as the nation as the world will be focused on us during those races," stated Gregg.

According to the commissioners, Mayer indicated his support and said he would attempt to get a commitment for additional funding for the project. Mayer concurred with the county officials on the importance of getting professional experience "to pull the championship races together."

Gregg said Mayer realized the need for professional advice on housing for the athletes, interpreters, accommodations for the media.

State Planning; Adele Wilzack, secretary of the Department of Health & Mental Hygiene; Wayne Cawley, secretary of the Department of Agriculture; and Commissioner Groves.

The newly appointed board will probably not meet until a new planner has been selected to replace Keith Roberts, who left state employment to work for the Natural Lands Trust, and has had time to become familiar with the background of the project, according to Sec. Brown.

The Republican

NEW AIR PACKS — Bausch and Lomb, Inc. recently donated Scott Air Packs to three volunteer fire companies in the county. The air packs, valued at $500 each, were donated to aid local firemen who must fight fires in heavy smoke areas. Pictured above, left to right, are Allen Barr, manufacturing manager at B & L; Mark Durst, vice-president of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and Bob Thrasher of the Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department. Not available when the photo was taken was Chuck Thomas, representing the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department.

SPECIAL SPUD — Potatoes come in all shapes and sizes, but not too many come out of the ground shaped like a duck. Jeff Droppleman, nine-year-old student at Broad Ford Elementary School, harvested this unique potato on the farm of his grandfather, Glen O'Brien, Swanton. Not only is it shaped like a duck, but even appears to have wings and feathers. Daffy, Donald, and Uncle Scrooge are reportedly among the names Jeff is considering for his new friend.

Garrett Chapter Of Red Cross Honored For Reaching Blood Goal

The Garrett Chapter of the American Red Cross was recognized on September 19 by the Johnstown Region of American Red Cross Blood Services for meeting the region's type-specific recruitment goal of collecting at least 36 percent O positive and eight percent O negative blood during the 1984-85 fiscal year.

The chapter collected 37 percent O positive and eight percent O negative.

The type-specific campaign was initiated to help the blood region maintain an inventory which is more representative of the distribution of blood types and blood usage throughout the 28-county region's population.

Norma Hesen, chapter executive, accepted the award at the region's fall advisory council meeting at the Johnny Appleseed Restaurant in Bedford.

She noted that the chapter's overall collections fell short of the total used by area residents. The chapter collected 828 units towards a goal of 1,000, 82.8 percent of the goal.

Mrs. Hesen said the chapter is at work to meet its 1985-86 collection goal of 1,127 units. "It's going to take all types—all types of donors, all types of blood—for us to meet our goal of maintaining our community's blood supply."

She added that the chapter will sponsor its next blood-mobile visit on Friday, October 18, at the National Guard Armory in Oakland from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Senate Bill 508 Discussed By Area Firemen

At a press conference Tuesday the Board of Garrett County Commissioners reported on a meeting they had attended last week with the Allegany-Garrett Firemen's Association for the purpose of discussing Senate Bill No. 508, which was set up to provide funds for fire departments across the state.

According to the commissioners, the principal speaker at the meeting was Joseph Urbin from the Maryland Department of Public Works.

Urbin outlined for the firemen the guidelines for fire and rescue monies that are to be provided under the bill which passed in the last General Assembly. He also spoke of confusion on the state level surrounding the dispensing of those funds.

The money is to be used for capital improvements, however it cannot be applied before June 30, 1985.

"In other words, if a new truck was ordered by a fire company on June 29, those funds can not defray the cost of that truck even though it's a necessity of the company," stated Commissoner Ernest Gregg Jr.

Gregg said the original intent of the bill, introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus, was to provide funding for volunteer fire companies and rescue squads but because other entities lobbied, fully paid fire companies will also benefit.

The commissioners said the county received $84,000 for its 11 volunteer companies and two rescue squads but due to the state's confusion in the guidelines in dispensing the money they have been unable to distribute the funds.

"There needs to be a more workable solution on how we can best distribute this money," said Commissioner Elwood Groves II.

Trash Collection, Vandalism Topics Of Town Council

The Oakland Town Council meeting on Monday evening led off with a discussion of some complaints that had been received concerning trash collection in the town.

The collection schedule decided upon for town residents and businesses is as follows: Wednesday, beginning at 7 a.m., trash will be picked up from Water St., Third St. Ext., Mason St., Fairview Drive, Liberty St., and Center St. Thursday, beginning at 6 a.m., trash will be picked up from the remaining streets, and trash will be picked up from stores in downtown Oakland beginning at 9 a.m.

Residents are asked to put their trash out the night before pick up is scheduled, and residents with questions or complaints are asked to call city hall.

As a result of a public hearing held on September 26, concerning the proposed establishment of an historic zoning district within the town limits, the council voted to approve the amendments to the ordinance and create that historic district.

The area to be established as an historic district is North Second Street from Center Street to Omar Street as well as the property occupied by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station. These two areas have already been recognized by the National Register of Historic Places as historic districts.

An amendment will be made to Article 2 of the ordinance to add the definition of an Historic District. An amendment will be made to Section 300 of Article 3 to include HD, standing for Historic District, in the establishment of districts. The Table of Use Regulations in Article 4 will be amended by adding a new column for the HD classification and providing regulations for use.

A discussion was held by the mayor and council over their concern about increased vandalism in Oakland. Some suggestions were made which will be discussed with Oakland Police Chief John Sines. Included in those suggestions were the "Neighborhood Watch" program and the possibility of Crime Solvers for the town of Oakland. Input from Oakland citizens is welcome at city hall.

The annual Halloween treat was discussed, and council decided to handle the celebration the same as last year, with treats given at the Oakland Fire Hall in lieu of "trick or treating". The town is requesting donations to help purchase Halloween treats.

Fire Shower Set For Kitzmillers

A fire shower will be held for Orval and Mildred Kitzmiller on October 18 at the Fellowship Hall of the Mt. Top Church on Rt. 135. The Kitzmiller's home was recently destroyed by a fire. More information may be obtained by calling 334-3374.

How Much We Eat

Everyone must not be on a diet. Per capita food consumption has risen from 1,396 lbs. in 1980-82 up to 1,431 currently. This is a calculated gain of 35 lbs. measured by total pounds of food eaten by each person. Gains are in consumption of chicken, fish, vegetables and vegetable oils with declines in red meats and fruits.

Corn is Drying Down

Keep a close eye on your corn. With the frosty nights and warm dry days, corn will dry down rather fast. I am checking a lot of corn and the moisture level is averaging around 28-30%. I have a good moisture meter at my office if you need to use it.

Alfalfa - Ready

With the several freezing nights I would say that almost all of the Alfalfa fields in the county could be harvested. Remember to cut the plants 2-3" higher than normal. If you graze your animals on it, keep a close eye on the Alfalfa for overgrazing.

Divide Daylilies

The pernenial garden can be kept alive with color all summer with many types of daylilies. They come in various colors with blooming dates from late spring until late summer. As their name implies, daylily blooms are open for only one day but single clumps have been known to produce over 400 flowers.

Early fall is an ideal time to divide daylilies. By dividing plants they can be given renewed vigor when no longer crowded. Separated plants can be moved to other partrs of the garden while other parts of clumps can be shared with gardening friends. Don't divide clumps too often as it takes smaller units about three years to reach their prime after dividing.

Separating or dividing is best done with a garden fork. Gently lift the entire clump. Then break and pull the crowded plants apart using the fork and hands. Shaking most of the soil from the roots will not seriously harm plants. Clumps can be divided down to individual fans of leaves with attached roots but larger clumps can be replanted if desired. When replanting prepare the soil to receive the new plants by adding some organic matter and a small amount of fertilizer. Turn this into the soil at least ten inches deep. When planting the fans or clumps place them only as deep as they grow originally. After planting water plants well to settle the soil around the roots. Daylilies grow best in full sun and with a mulch over their roots. Most types don't compete well with weeds and grass.

Farm Bill Review

by Bernice Kepple

The U.S. House of Representatives passed its version of the farm bill Tuesday night, with a number of new admendments and changes. Important news is that they voted down an amendment which would have established a marketing certificate program (the Bedell amendment). Detailed summaries of the bill's provisions have not been prepared yet, however, some of the highlights of the bill as reported to Jack Matthews, information director at the Maryland Farm Bureau office, are as follows:

Price support loans for wheat and feed grains are set at between 75 and 85 percent of the average market price for the crop during the past five years, with a five percent limit on the annual adjustment. Wheat and corn target prices for the 1986 and 1987 crops will be frozen at the 1985 level of $4.38 a bushel for wheat and $3.03 a bushel for corn. After two years, the Secretary of Agriculture can set the target price at 110-125 percent of the five-year market average. In addition to that, the bill calls for a 30 percent reduction of wheat acreage in 1986 with a paid diversion on 10 percent of the cutback. A 20 percent acreage reduction for feed grains (which includes corn) is required with a paid diversion on 10 percent of the cutback.

The cargo preference portion of the bill went through including the "food for peace" and "blended credit" sections. The cargo preference exempts certain Agriculture Department export financing programs from the requirement that half of specified cargoes be shipped on U.S. flag ships. Exemptions include those programs that use Commodity Credit Corporation stocks to enhance U.S. agriculture exports, those under which CCC guarantees of commercial credit are blended with CCC direct credits, short-term credit programs, and those undertaken for the purpose of promoting U.S. agriculture exports if the secretary determines that such activities are necessary to keep U.S. commodities competitive in international trade, thus blended credit.

The food for peace section is a complicated provision that extends export sales and grant programs to foreign countries, and authorizes the agriculture secretary to lend the foreign currency generated from sales in a developing country to an investor in that country, for the purpose of making loans to finance private enterprise at reasonable rates of interest. It sets minimums for donations of surplus grains for non-emergency purposes, and calls for the president to designate a special assistant for food aid, to assist and advise him on U.S. domestic and foreign food assistance programs, and to coordinate those food assistance programs.

Also passed was an amendment to exempt fuel used on farms from any further cuts in lead content until a USDA and EPA study is completed. That study will determine what effect further cuts in lead content would mean to engines used on farms and in farm machinery. Any further cuts in lead content will mean a great increase in farm costs, not just the cost of the fuel, but the cost of replacement engines which will operate on low-leaded fuel.

More changes were made in the dairy portion of the bill. As reported last week, the dairy bill has both diversions and assessments. The change is that it's now a program with no cap on the amount of assessments. Also, a 25-cent assessment will be put on all producers to fund the "whole herd buy-out" program. Regulations for these assessments have not been set up, and will probably have to be developed if the bill goes through as it is.

Also included with the dairy portion of the bill are the beef and pork checkoffs, requiring a $1 per head for beef (including dairy cows and calves) point of sale checkoff which will be paid by sellers for a national beef promotion program. A three-tenths-of-one-percent checkoff will be collected for every hog sold, and no referendum will be held until two years after the program starts.

The Senate is scheduled to begin discussion of its bill on October 16. In contrast to the House bill, the Senate's dairy bill includes simple reductions in the support price instead of complex diversion and assessment programs. They are two very different bills which will need compromised before a 1985 Farm Bill is signed by the president.

I've received word that our U.S. Congressmen want to hear from you, they want your opinion of what has been happening in Washington, and it's not even necessary to write a letter or place a call to Washington. These congressmen have area representatives who are happy to take calls and relay your messages. These representatives can even be reached on weekends. So make plans to call Nina Conway at 722-5369 to get the attention of Senator Paul S. Sarbanes; Susan DeHart at 722-4535 for Senator Charles McC. Mathias; and Marjorie Barkman at 729-0300 for Representative Beverly B. Byron.

Remember, your opinion counts.

Ag Preservation Application Made By County Farmer

Nine interested citizens from the Avilton area met in the Garrett County Commissioners' office on Tuesday for a public hearing on an application made by Peter and Judith Brown to enter their 205.8 acre farm in the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Program.

Acting planning administrator for the county, John Nelson, was present and answered questions raised by the citizens about the program, explained its benefits, and assured the group that making the Browns' farm an agricultural district would place no restrictions on their adjoining property.

The Browns are involved in dairy farming and Mrs. Brown stated that their interest is in seeing the land stay agricultural, and to be preserved for that purpose.

The record of the hearing will be left open for a period of one week to enable citizens to submit letters or comments to the Garrett County Commissioners before they make any decision on the application.

This program began in the county in 1980 to keep prime agricultural land from being developed. Since that time 26 agricultural districts have been declared in the county, which will include approximately 3,500 acres if the Browns' farm is accepted into the program.

Nelson explained that this is a two-phase program, the first step being to voluntarily place the land in an Agricultural Preservation District for five years. The second step gives the farmer a chance to sell his development rights easements to the state Agricultural Land Preservaton Foundation.

A farm must meet certain requirements to be eligible for the program. Soil type requirements must be met and the farm must contain at least 100 acres.

Farmers can get more information about the program at the county planning office on the third floor of the Garrett County Courthouse.

Northern Girls Remain Unbeaten

The Northern Husky girls varsity volleyball team added two more victories to its unbeaten streak this past week by defeating Fort Hill and Beall. The Lady Huskies blasted the Sentinels, 15-1, 15-1, and 15-2, and whipped the Bulldogs, 15-7, 15-6, and 15-0.

The leading scorer for the match against Fort Hill was Jenny Dailey, who served all 15 game points in the second game and ended the evening with 26 service points. Julie Robeson and Amy Swauger each added eight points to Northern's total.

Offensively, Robeson recorded eight spikes and Swauger hit three. Robeson and Laura Sines each had blocks and Tammy Swauger finished with two digs.

From the service line the Huskies had a perfect 53-for-53 performance.

"This was one of our best defensive efforts of the year," stated Husky Coach Vonda Yunker. "There was not an open spot on the court all night. We had everything covered."

Top point-getters for Northern against Bruce were Amy Swauger with 11 service points, followed by Missy Durst and Robeson with ten.

Robeson led the offense with 17 killer spikes and Dailey added four. Robeson, Swauger and Dailey recorded 14 blocks between them.

Sherri Frantz, Janie Friend, and Tammy Swauger were defensive standouts for the Huskies in their back-row play.

"Bruce has a smooth-working team," Yunker said. "They keep the ball in play and have some of the hardest hitters we've faced all season. They pushed us to a higher level of performance on the court."

The Northern jayvee team upped its record to 3-1 by rolling over Fort Hill, 15-5 and 15-1. Kim Frantz and Dee Dee Seaman led with 14 and 12 service points, respectively. Frantz recorded six ace serves, while Seaman had four. Shayne Couch, Donna Stanton, and Lisa Swauger led the defense.

Northern's next opponents will be Beall and Meyersdale.

Southern Girls Lose Two; JVs Still Undefeated

The Southern girls varsity volleyball team dropped a pair of close matches this week, while the Southern jayvee squad continued its unbeaten streak with two wins.

The varsity fell to Beall on Monday evening, 12-15, 15-3, 0-15, and 10-15, in Frostburg and were edged last night by visiting Valley, 15-7, 13-15, 15-0, 9-15, and 8-15.

"We played well in both matches, but not quite well enough," stated head coach, Helen Rostosky.

The jayvee team, however, topped Beall 14-15, 15-8, and 15-13, and defeated Valley, 15-3 and 15-8, to up their record to 6-0. The varsity is now 4-3.

In the varsity game against Beall, Leslie Ellis led the Lady Rams with 14 points, including 10 ace serves. Stacy Sines and Stephanie Lewis finished with nine and seven points, respectively.

Ellis also paced Southern against Valley with 24 points, including 11 ace serves and 15 straight points as server in the the Rams' 15-0 win. Robin Tasker added nine points, Joy Thrasher, eight, Chris Gregory had seven spikes and Sines, six spikes.

Leading the Southern jayvee attack against Beall, Debbie Bateman and Lisa Dever each recorded 11 points, with eight and six aces, respectively. Kelly Evans added nine points. Against Valley, Evans finished with nine points, Kendra Stemple with eight, and Bateman with seven, including six aces.

The Rams' next encounter will be Wednesday at Oldtown.

AWARD-WINNING CHEERLEADERS — The Oakland Raider Youth League Cheerleaders, along with their advisors Bunny Shank and Judy Miller, traveled to Pine Forest Cheerleading Camp in the Pocono Mountains, August 21-24. The girls received blue ribbons every day and on the final day won a nomination for the Award of Excellence Spirit Stick. They also received the "Best Jr. High Squad" award. They competed with 567 girls from across the eastern United States. Jessica Gracie, an 11-year-old cheerleader, was chosen as one of the ten girls to compete for the All-American Cheerleader Award. The girls have been invited to compete at Disney World, Fla. in December. Pictured above are the cheerleaders, on ground, left to right, Heather Savage, Tami Carter; middle, Bryanne Miller, mascot; standing, Jeanine Shank, co-captain, Kathy Gibson, Leslie Liller, Missy White, Amy Buser, captain; top, Leah Miller, Jessica Gracie and Sheila Butt.

Raiders Continue Unbeaten Streak

The Oakland Raiders, of the Mt. Top Youth Football League, pushed their season record to 5-0 Sunday afternoon by defeating a stubborn Friendsville Steeler squad, 15-6.

Mike Hornyak, the leading rusher for the Raiders, gave the Raiders their first points of the game from his linebacker position, as he tackled a Steeler ball carrier in the end zone in the first half for a safety.

Kevin Lohr later ran around left end for a 33-yard gain that set up an 11-yard scoring bootleg run by Mike Fulmer. A diving catch by Lohr for the extra point gave the Raiders a 9-0 advantage.

The Raider defense continued to contain the Steelers, as Bobby Orr, Lohr, Mike Dever, and Jack Fitzwater led in tackling. Orr, who finished with 73 yards rushing on offense, also recorded four solo tackles, four assists, one fumble recovery, a pass interception, and added the final Raider touchdown, a one-yard plunge in the third quarter.

The lone Steeler touchdown came with just six seconds remaining in the game.

Mondo Polce kept the Steelers in poor field position by averaging 43 yards on his punts.

The Raiders will not play this weekend and will return to action in the league playoffs October 19-20.

Disastrous Fourth Quarter Results In 22-7 Husky Loss

A disastrous fourth quarter for the Northern Huskies last Friday evening dashed all hopes for their first win of the season, as host Berkeley Springs came back from a 7-0 deficit and defeated the Huskies, 22-7. It was the fifth straight loss in as many starts for Coach Jack Settle's young squad.

The first half of the contest was all defense, although most of the time the ball was located in Berkeley Springs' half of the field. The Huskies maintained control of the game, but failed to score on a number of occasions, one of them when they were inside the West Virginians' five-yard line.

The Huskies did finally get on the board, however, on the opening series of the third quarter, when Rod Lipscomb raced into the end zone from six yards out and Gary Beitzel booted the extra point. Lipscomb paced the Huskies' rushing with 67 yards on 15 carries.

Berkeley Springs responded with a touchdown of their own midway through the period when Carl Clark scored from one yard out, however their attempt for a two-point conversion failed, giving the Huskies a 7-6 advantage as the fourth period opened.

The next Husky drive was stopped deep in Northern's territory and, because of a bad snap and a poor punt, the Indians again had the ball in good field position. A few plays later, Clark tossed a 20-yard touchdown pass to Dean Munson to give Berkeley Springs a lead they would never relinquish. They also passed for a two-point conversion, giving them a 14-7 lead.

After the ensuing kickoff, the Huskies were again held deep in their own territory, and the punt was blocked. The loose ball was recovered by Berkeley Springs in the end zone and Northern was suddenly down 20-7.

The Indian defense again held the Huskies deep in their own territory on the next series. The Huskies' punt was blocked a second time, however Lipscomb quickly kicked the ball out of the back of the end zone to give the Indians a safety rather than another touchdown. Not only were the Indians awarded a safety, but the referees penalized the Huskies for kicking the ball out of play.

After the call was questioned by Coach Settle, another flag was tossed against the Husky bench and Northern was forced to free-kick from its own five-yard line. The Indians led slightly in total offense, 196 to 183 yards, as quarterback Doug Higgs connected on five of 11 passes and Clark one of three, good for 150 yards. Northern quarterback Kevin Sines threw 26 times and connected on eight for 6 yards, while the Huskies netted 87 on the ground.

Wayne Tabor pulled down five of Sines' passes for 50 yards and Dennis Hetrick grabbed one for 33 yards.

Tabor and Lipscomb each recorded an interception and Matt Eggleston jumped on a Berkeley Springs fumble.

The Huskies were penalized five times for 55 yards and the Indians lost 65 yards on seven violations.

"We really had their backs to the wall throughout most of the game," Coach Settle said, "especially in the first half. But once again, we couldn't manage to capitalize. This was a real tough loss for us."

Settle called Lipscomb's effort "one of his best running performances this season" and subsequently named him the offensive player of the game. Gary Beitzel received the defensive player of the game award, while Wayne Tabor was named the specialty team player of the week.

The Huskies came out of the Berkeley Springs game "pretty healthy" Settle said, and are now preparing for an encounter with Turkeyfoot at Confluence on Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Turkeyfoot, coached by Jim Bower, is currently 1-5 on the year, but is coming off a big 35-8 victory over Hancock last week.

The Pennsylvanians are led by quarterback Brian Toye, a 6-0, 150-pound senior; senior tackle Jim Bower, 6-4, 220, who also fills the quarterback position in passing situations; John Merschat, a 5-10, 160-pound tailback who is averaging over 100 yards per game; senior center Jerry Steyer, 5-11, 170; senior flanker Jorge Vigin, 5-11, 140; and sophomore tight end Mark Bower, 6-3, 210.

The Bower brothers, sons of Coach Bower, also anchor the defensive line, while Merschat and Steyer play linebacker positions.

"They have some very good athletes in the skill positions," Settle said. "Traditionally, we play poorly against Turkeyfoot, which really has us worried. I do believe we have the capability to win this game, though, if we can eliminate our mistakes."

Turkeyfoot uses a big-play oriented offense, wih multiple formations and a fairly even balance between rushing and passing. They have a strong kicking game and utilize a battery of 6-2 defensive formations.

"Despite our 0-5 record, our statistics really don't look too bad," Settle said, noting that the Huskies have recorded just under 1,000 yards of offense in the first half of the season. Sines has connected on 46 of 112 passes for 499 yards and three touchdowns, while Lipscomb added another completion for 32 yards. The Huskies have 440 yards on the ground on 113 attempts, for nearly four yards per carry.

Defensively, Bill Friend has racked up 64 solo and first-hit tackles, followed by Matt Eggleston with 47, Dennis Hetrick with 38, Paul McClintock with 29, and Gary Beitzel with 23.

Southern Out-Muscled By Veteran Keyser Squad, 28-0

The Southern High Rams became the victims of a more experienced, physically stronger team last Friday evening in Oakland as Keyser's Golden Tornado whitewashed the Coach Tom Woods' squad, 28-0, before the largest crowd in the school's history.

Keyser, whose offense is led by the area's leading rusher and scorer, Sean Hill, came into the contest with a perfect 4-0 mark, while the Rams were attempting to rebound from their first defeat of the season the previous week against Musselman.

Although the larger Keyser players manhandled the Rams late in the contest, it was primarily big plays that gave them the win. Southern's defense held the Tornado to a total of only six first downs, and more than half of Hill's 142 yards were on one run, an 81-yard touchdown. Hill came into the game averaging 200 yards per carry.

The first quarter was a standoff, as both defensive units held their opponents in check. It was at the 7:19 mark of the second quarter that Hill found some daylight around right end and bolted past the Ram secondary for the first Keyser touchdown. Dave Dawson booted the extra point and the score of 7-0 held until midway through the third period.

The Yardstick

6	Total First Downs	4
4	Passes Attempted	5
3	Passes Completed	2

4-35	Punts—Average	7-38

On a second and three from the Rams' 46-yard line, Keyser Coach Mike Calhoun, who had his team keep the ball on the ground most of the evening, decided to go to the air. The Ram defense was prepared for the run, however, which allowed Shannon Vissman to be totally alone downfield. Second string quarterback Harmon Parrill, filling in for an ill Mike Smith, hit Vissman with a perfect aerial, resulting in a 54-yard scoring strike. The kick by Dawson for the conversion was no good, as he failed to get the ball into the air.

Late in the third period and early in the fourth, it appeared that the Ram defenders were beginning to wear down, but it was a punt return to Southern's 17-yard line that set up the third touchdown of the evening, a one-yard scoring plunge by Phil Mele. Parrill connected with Vissman for the two-point conversion, giving the visitors a 21-0 advantage.

On the Rams' next offensive series, freshman quarterback Zack Gibson, who was under pressure, fired the ball downfield, but the pass was short and right into the hands of Keyser's J.R. Crites, who returned the ball 37 yards for the final touchdown. Dawson kicked the conversion to complete the scoring at the 4:00 mark.

Hill's 142-yard total came on 24 carries, while the Rams were held to a total offense of 59 yards.

"I don't believe the final score was indicative of the closeness of the game," Coach Tom Woods stated. "I really felt that we were still in striking distance going into the fourth quarter and down 13-0."

Woods said the films of the game indicated that Keyser was "as fundamentally sound as any team I've ever seen since being at Southern."

"When you combine such fundamental soundness with excellent talent, you have a pretty good football team," he said.

Woods said that Keyser's strength and maturity were probably the main reasons for the loss. "Another problem we had was poor field position," he said, "plus, on a number of occasions, we would gain a first down or perhaps a second down and five situation, and then get a penalty. You just can't do that and expect to beat a good team."

He said he believed Calhoun and his team came into the game with a similar game plan to Southern's, that being to play conservatively and try to force the other team to make a mistake. "That's precisely how both teams played in the first half," he said.

The Rams came out of the contest fairly healthy, Woods said, with the exception of nose guard Steve Schrock, who went into the game with one injured thumb and finished with two. He did not practice early in the week, but is listed as probable for this week.

Tackle Jay Stewart also missed the first part of the week with strep throat, but is expected to play Friday. Jamie Thomas, was started at quarterback at the beginning of the season, will return to the line-up this week after missing four games with a broken thumb. Although Woods plans to start Gibson at quarterback, he stated that Thomas is also expected to play. Center Rick Layton is still out of the line-up, continuing to recover from injuries sustained in an automobile mishap.

The Rams will attempt to get back on the winning tract this Friday when they host Hampshire, a team which is, at least on paper, similar to the Rams.

The Trojans are a young team, having returned only three starters from last season's 7-3 squad. They are currently 2-3 on the year, having defeated Beall and Valley and losing to Berkeley Springs, Frankfort, and Petersburg.

Leading the Trojans are senior quarterback Scott Shoemaker, 5-9, 165 pounds; fullback Rick Whitacre, 6-1, 200 pounds, who is averaging over 100 yards per game; and senior offensive and defensive tackle Rick Lear, 5-11, 175 pounds. All three are three-year starters. Shoemaker also starts at defensive back, while Whitacre is a starting linebacker.

Hampshire uses an I set and veer back set on offense, and a 5-2 defense. Although Shoemaker can throw the ball, he is more of a threat as a runner on the option play.

"This is one of the smallest teams we will face this year," Woods said, noting that their offensive line averages about 175 pounds. "But they have a sound defense and their overall speed is comparable to ours."

The Trojans will come into the game feeling they have a score to settle with the Rams, who defeated them last year in Romney in the final seconds of the game on a fourth down touchdown pass from J.R. Gibson to Steve Bennett. Another of their three losses was to Keyser, also in the final seconds.

"We talked with our seniors for over an hour after the game Friday night," Woods said. "We told them that our season is in front of us, and not behind us. We have five games left and if we can win them all, we will finish with an 8-2 season. We told them not to get down on themselves now because we lost to two good teams."

Woods said consistency and picking up the progress of the offense are the primary goals of this week's practice sessions.

The game this week will be Southern's homecoming and will take place in the middle of the Autumn Glory Festival, two features which Woods hopes will draw another huge crowd. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

GCC Volleyball Team Improves Record To 5-6

With recent wins over Wilson College, Potomac State, Frederick Community College, and Penn State, Fayette and two losses to Alderson-Broaddus and Hagerstown, the Garrett Volleyball team has upped its record to 5-6.

Despite a close defeat by Alderson-Broaddus on September 24, the Lakers played "exceptional ball," according to Coach Sue Mason, with every member having an outstanding performance. The offensive line, consisting of Stephanie Burks, Lisa Llewellyn, Kim Martin and Amy Tate, combined for a total of five blocks and 16 kills. Dianna Walkling and Llewellyn led the team in defensive digs. "If our team continues to perform as we did against A.B., we could easily be a contender in our league," Mason said. "The main thrust is towards consistency."

Mason was pleased with the team's performance against Wilson College on September 28, when the Lakers won, 15-0 and 15-9. In this match, the hitters combined for a total of nine kills, with Cheri Duncan contributing two digs.

On this same date, Garrett defeated Potomac State, 15-12 and 15-11, with Walkling serving five aces and 13 serves to bring the Lakers back from 2-10. Rita Jackson and Martin combined for ten assists, while Burks, Llewellyn, Martin, Tate and Clarissa Jordan combined for 12 kills.

In the loss to Hagerstown on September 30, 15-5, 15-10 and 15-6, the Lakers were plagued with errors—nine at the net. Jordan, who had entered after a prolonged knee injury, was re-injured. According to Coach Mason, the team is "looking forward to an improved performance" in the rematch.

Garrett carded two more wins against Frederick and Penn State, Fayette, on October 5, but the stats were not available at press time.

SHOULD YOU SELECT YOUR FRIEND

Your best friend is a Realtor. You are about to sell your home. Should you list it with your friend or someone else? How do you go about this without hurting feelings?

Look at it this way: If you aren't feeling well, do you select a doctor because he is a friend or because you feel he is the best qualified to treat your problem? Are you concerned that if you select another doctor you might hurt the feelings of the doctor you know?

The really good physician is too professional to have "hurt feelings" if a friend selects another physician.

This is also true of a Realtor. The really good Realtor is concerned only with using all his or her efforts to give the best service to his or her clients. Like a doctor, a good Realtor is too professional to have "hurt feelings." Select the Realtor whom you believe can do the best job in selling your home. Make this a compieteiy objective, business-like decision.

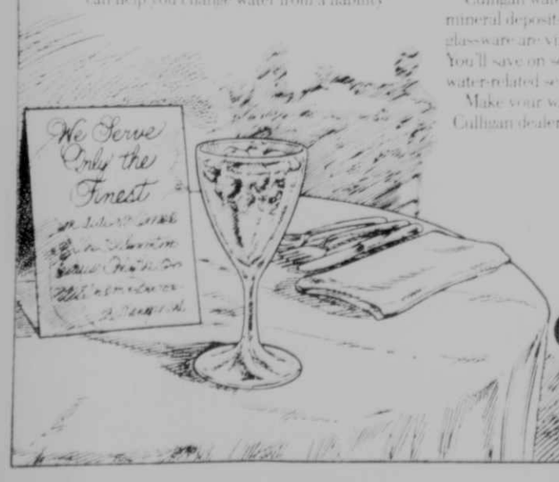
CRAFTS 'N Things

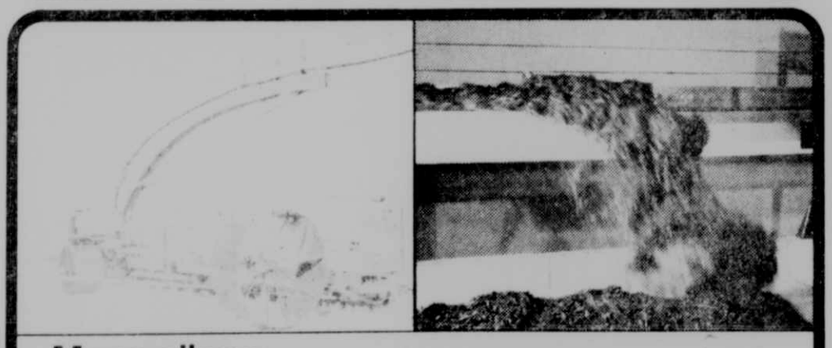
Make sure your water measures up to the rest of your menu.



Scotts silverware or etched, streaked glasses can really turn off your valued restaurant customers. The same goes for poor-tasting water inside those glasses.

A water analysis from your Culligan dealer can help you change water from a liability into an asset with Culligan drinking water systems or water conditioners.

Culligan drinking water systems make water—and all the things you make from it, like coffee and tea—taste better.



Culligan water conditioners help prevent mineral deposits, so dishes, silverware and glassware are virtually spotless after washing. You'll save on soaps. And require fewer water-related service calls.

6.65% Financing!
A Patz feeding system is headed by the unique Patz cutter-and-claw gathering chain silo unloaders. Select the surface-drive 98B or the ring-drive RD-820. The Patz gathering chain with chain-saw action cuts out frozen and hard-packed silage for full-flow feeding.
Spring tension keeps the Patz power cutter tight to silo walls, even if walls are irregular.
Choose from three over-under chain conveyors with varied capacities and one-way or two-way delivery. Or, chose a versatile side-by-side single chain Patz Material Mover.
The Patz Belt Feeder feeds quickly. The simplicity of design makes maintenance simple and keeps the price low. For other feeding situations, consider a Patz tapered-pan feeder or an in-bunk chain feeder.
All Patz feeding equipment offers a variety of optional accessories to meet your needs.
See your Patz dealer for details. He is experienced in installation, service and he has a parts supply on hand to keep you feeding.

Raccoon

brother and father subdued the raccoon and put it into a cage.

The family tried to nurse the obviously sick animal, but it died the third day of captivity. At that time, the family called a local veterinarian who referred the case to the Garrett County Health Department. Health department personnel advised the family to see a doctor immediately because of the number of days which had passed since the initial contact wth the raccoon.

When the lab reported a positive test on Friday, October 4, Garrett County Health Department officials contacted the Somerset County, Pa., Health Department, whose official, Kay Mahelcic, arranged for anti-rabies serum and post-rabies vaccine to be delivered to the family's doctor in Salisbury, Pa., that same day. The three members of the family have been receiving shots since that time.

The two unvaccinated family dogs were turned over to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for six months of quarantine.

Nordeck

sisting of "hot" type and weighing approximately 150 pounds each, was required. These were carried from the composing room down a flight of stairs to the pressroom, and then returned to the composing room after the press run was completed. The rolls of newsprint were twice the width and, consequently, twice the weight (1,600 pounds) of the rolls used today, each of which had to be manhandled into position to load onto the press.

The 40-hour work week was more of a dream than a reality and many times Nordeck worked all night composing pages in type or printing special jobs that had critical deadlines.

Nordeck experienced the transition of "hot" metal type to "cold" computer type, which eased the physical stress to some degree, but added a variety of new challenges to Nordeck's talents.

Nordeck is a long-time member of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club and a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church. He is married to the former Gladys Aronhalt, of Oakland, and they reside in their home on Bradley Lane.

COMPENSATION FILING LATE

Many employees who have been hurt at work think their employer has filed their Workmen's Compensation Claim. After the two year limitation period has passed, the employee finds out the employer only filled out the accident and sickness forms. This could mean you will not be eligible for compensation benefits such as vocational rehabilitation, permanent disability awards and the lifetime medical coverage not provided through accident and sickness coverage.

Teen Challenge Ministers To Local Church

Pastor Alvin Kyle welcomed an estimated crowd of 350 to 400 people to worship services with Teen Challenge on Saturday, October 5, at Mt. Top Christian Assembly.

A group from Crellin Assembly of God supplied the music for the evening. "These folks are dedicated to serving God and allowing God to use their talents for the upbuilding of His kingdom," remarked Pastor Kyle. Those participating were: Sharon Decker, piano; Lloyd Decker, trombone; Delano Martin, trumpet; Dave Martin, trumpet; Dennis Rodeheaver, bass guitar; Harold Hudnall, violin; and Bob DeWitt as emcee. The sound system was also provided by Crellin Assembly of God and was operated by the Rev. Ray Beahm.

Teen Challenge brought with them a film entitled "Epidemic."

After the film, two young men from the Teen Challenge program shared with the congregation their life-changing experiences, telling how God had helped them change from lives with drugs and alcohol. These men were Scott Cook from Delmar, Del. and Mike Kozak from Glen Burnie.

The Teen Challenge ministry returned to Mt. Top Christian Assembly for Sunday School and morning worship the following day, and during the service, two more young men shared their testimonies with the congregation.

One of these was a local man, raised in Oakland, and a 1969 graduate of Southern High School. Harrison Stewart III is now a very active member of the Teen Challenge program.

The other young man, Jose Colon came from Puerto Rico and served as an officer in the U.S. Army.

Both services were concluded with a message by the director and counselor of Teen Challenge, Brother Mason Sorensen. Many Bibles and New Testaments were given out during the two services, and a number are still available for the asking.

MESHACH'S DESK — A gift became a gift recently as Kevin Callis, the recipient of a desk which once belonged to the famous Meshach Browning, donated that desk to the Garrett County Historical Museum. Meshach Browning is the county's well-known hunter of yesteryear. The child's desk was given to Kevin Callis by William E. Ott during the summer of 1976. Mr. Ott originally purchased the piece at an auction in the Grantsville area in the early to mid 1950's. The auction was held by a family directly descended from Meshach Browning. One of the family members told Mr. Ott that the desk originally belonged to Meshach himself. The top section of the piece was in need of major repair work, so in the spring of 1977, it was taken to the home of the late John and Zonie Remboid for restoration. The Rembolds completely reconstructed the top part of the desk to its original state. It is made of walnut and mahogany and is believed to date back to approximately the 1840's. Kevin is contributing the desk to the museum in the following names: William P. Ott and Kevin E. Callis. Pictured above, in front of the museum, left to right, are Kevin Callis, William Ott and Ruth Calderwood, accepting the desk for the Historical Museum.

First Parent Meeting Held At Dennett Road

The first parent meeting of the school year was held at Dennett Road School last Thursday with Mrs. Barbara Flinn, Chapter I resource teacher, in charge.

The "Importance and Value of Parent Volunteers" was conveyed, as well as the goals of the program, general hints, signing in, parking, and keeping confidence. Each volunteer was given a handbook prepared by Mrs. Flinn.

Also presented and explained was the Chapter I Program at Dennett Road School, its goals, identification of participants, use of test information, how supplementary help is provided, the funding of Chapter I, and that aides work with only identified students.

The group decided that its next meeting would be Thursday, November 7, at 10:30 a.m. on the topic "What Children Learn in Kindergarten;" with a second meeting planned for Thursday, December 5, at 9:30 a.m., on "How to Help A Child With Word Recognition," and "Creating A Desire to Read."

All parents of Dennett Road School students are invited and encouraged to attend these meetings. The meeting ended at 11:30 and refreshments were served by Mrs. Flinn.

Enrollment At Frostburg State Largest Ever

Fall enrollment at Frostburg State College has reached a record all-time high with a total of 3,715 students enrolled in both undergraduate and graduate programs.

According to information released by the Office of the President, the history making figure includes 3,223 full and part-time undergraduate and 492 full and part-time graduate students. Of the 2,797 full-time undergraduates, 757 are incoming freshmen, 320 are transfer students and 1,720 represent returning or re-entering students.

Undergraduate majors showing an increase in enrollment over last year occurred in the college's academic fields of Education, Accounting and Business and Social Sciences. Of 1,980 students who have officially declared majors, the Accounting and Business courses are the most popular with 684 undergraduates enrolled. The Sciences are in second place with 443, and the Social Sciences have 341 majors.

Frostburg State College Acting President, Dr. Kenneth Jablon, attributes the increase in fall enrollment to greater involvement by faculty, students and staff in the recruitment process and more aggressive recruitment by the admissions staff.

"We are spreading the message throughout the State and beyond that Frostburg State College offers high quality programs taught by an excellent faculty in the concept of a close-knit residential campus, all at a relatively low cost," he said.

"In view of the decline in the number of traditional college age students, we are especially pleased with this increase," Jablon added.

The college offers a wide range of academic programs in three schools: Arts and Humanities; Natural and Social Sciences and Professional Studies. Graduate programs are offered through a separate graduate school.

GCMH EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH — Mary E. Beckman, laundry worker at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital since 1975, has been selected as September's Employee of the Month. Mary has lived in Oakland almost all of her life, and previously worked at Oakland Motel for three years. She has one son, Donald, who lives at home and works for Troy Gnegy Construction. In her spare time, Mary enjoys bowling and aerobics. She is also a member of the Deer Park Fire Department Auxiliary. Tom Dunbar, director of Housekeeping/Laundry, nominated Mary Beckman as Employee of the Month because she is "dependable, has a good attendance record, and is very congenial." Mary is pictured above with Larry M. Beck, hospital administrator.

The newest degree program to be added to the college's offerings is the Bachelor of Science degree in Social Work. To date, Frostburg students may select from 31 majors leading to either bachelor of arts or bachelor of scicene degrees. The College also offers seven graduate degree programs.

No Need For Gas Tax Increase, Says Bambacus

Senator John N. Bambacus, in an October 3 letter to Governor Harry R. Hughes, brought to the governor's attention the possibility of an increase in the gasoline tax discussed during the Maryland Department of Transportation's annual consultation meeting held recently in Allegany County.

Bambacus reported to the governor that it was mentioned that there may be a need to increase the gasoline tax by three or four cents within the next few years. "It seems to me," Bambacus wrote, "that we should be able to forego that possibility in view of the $47 million surplus of state funds." He went on to say that this may be a good opportunity to restore the $29 million transferred out of the Transportation Trust Fund during the 1984 fiscal year.

"I firmly believe that we do not need to be looking for areas where new expenditures can be made, but rather that we should be trying to save money for the state's taxpayers. I hope that you will give this matter some thought, in the interest of fiscal responsibility for our citizens," Bambacus told Gov. Hughes.

Park Employees Attend Chainsaw Safety Seminar

A special chainsaw safety seminar was recently held at Potomac State Forest for 20 employees of Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Parks and Potomac/Garrett State Forests. The program was hosted by Richard Wakefield, local forest and park safety person assigned to Potomac State Forest.

After an indepth discussion as to proper personal protection devices to be worn while using a chainsaw and various key points to consider while planning to fell a tree, the group received "hands-on" experience. A large nearby dead oak tree was appraised for felling by Foster Lewis of Potomac Garrett State Forest. Added information and instruction was provided by Joe Mechem and Bernie Zlomek, professional foresters also assigned to Potomac State Forest.

Zlomek and Mechem described a new tree felling technique developed in Europe which has proven effective in reducing "kick back" of the tree butt at the stump. Also recommended for use is the newly developed anti-kickback and reduced kick back chain. Saw kickback is one of the leading causes of severe injury to chainsaw operators.

Something To Think About

R. Mark Durst

PREPLANNING MAKES SENSE

It would not be amiss for persons during their lifetime to decide what they consider a dignified and meaningful funeral. This phrase has different meanings for different people, almost as wide a range as individual life-styles. A funeral home should make every effort, within reason and propriety, to accommodate these wishes.

Funeral costs should likewise be considered. It is helpful if the survivor understands how funeral charges in the community are computed. This could be investigated during the lifetime of a married couple. In that way, the survivor will be saved the task of making a judgment with respect to these matters at the height of his or her bereavement.

Such costs, as well as the cost of burial or cremation—and usually the cost for arranging for perpetual care of the plot—are considered proper estate expenses and should be billed to the estate.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO TO GREAT LENGTHS TO ENJOY THE COMFORT OF A GAS FURNACE.

Good news...you can have gas heat without a lot of expensive home alterations.

That's because some of the new high-efficiency gas furnaces vent through the wall, and don't need a chimney. So they can be installed easily—and in so little time, you can have it done on a cold winter day and never feel a chill.

Sound good? It gets better. A new high-efficiency model uses as much as 30% less energy—even as it keeps your home warm and cozy.

FORGET IT AND IGNORE IT!!

This is the wisest rule to follow whenever a well-meaning friend or relative—who does not have a medical degree—offers you some "advice" on how to treat an illness without having to bother calling a doctor. Such advice is almost always incorrect, even though it is offered with the best of intentions.

By heeding a friend's "medical advice" and not going to a doctor, you could lose much valuable time in getting the proper treatment for your condition. Today's doctors spend many years in medical school and in internships before they become qualified to practice medicine. And unless your friend has had identical training and experience, you should forget and ignore his advice and contact a doctor instead.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOUR LEGACY

October 13, 1985

Background Scripture:
2 Timothy
Devotional Reading:
2 Timothy 2:20-26.

I've made a very personal rendering of 2 Timothy 3:16, 17. It does not pretend to be a translation or even a good paraphrase, but, nevertheless, it does speak to me—and maybe you.

All scripture is inspired by God and much of it is effective in shaking me up and blasting me out of my complacency, so that I may get back to growing up in Christ and be of use in his kingdom.

That's what happened today when I read the rest of the background scripture for this week's lesson. The writer of 2 Timothy speaks of the faith which Timothy inherited from his family and I have previously used these utterances as texts for preaching sermons on the Christian family, saying something like this: "Give a child a Christian faith to admire and emulate and he or she will grow up in that faith."

WHAT YOU'VE LEARNED

Suddenly, as I read these words, it dawned on me that, judging from my own experience, I have not been a very good practitioner of what I have preached: neither of my two sons are currently related to the church. One of them might be described as "agnostic" and the other simply "confused." Yet, it would seem to me that, taking into consideration my human limitations, I tried to set for them an example in faith and conduct, to live and teach the Gospel and fulfill the baptismal vows to "bring them up in the faith." So, how do I account for their lack of interest and commitment to that which I professed to be the most important thing in my life?

Another irony occurred to me. Unlike my two sons, I was not reared in a church atmosphere. My parents believed in the essentials of Christianity and lived very moral lives. Still, they had little to do with the church. I entered the church by myself, as a youth, became a minister, and brought them back into the life of the church (in which they became quite active). In a sense, I influenced my parents, but not my children.

"YOU HAVE OBSERVED"

The writer of 2 Timothy says: "Now you have observed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love..." Perhaps my "teaching," "conduct," "life" and "faith" were not convincing. Maybe I taught them only the form of Christianity, not its power—despite what I thought I was doing. Or perhaps all we can do is our best and leave the results to God.

At any rate, just because there are some who do not respond favorably to our witness, is no reason to stop witnessing. I still have a witness to bear for Christ. I still have a legacy of faith to leave behind, whether or not it is claimed. And so do you.

Area Delegates Attend GYAC Orientation

Area delegates to the Governor's Youth Advisory Council, Spencer Schlosnagle and Shelli Terlizzi, recently attended orientation for new and returning delegates that was held in the Joint Hearing Room, Legislative Services Building, in Annapolis on September 14.

Schlosnagle, a Friendsville resident was reappointed to the Governor's Youth Advisory Council by Governor Harry Hughes. His term is for the 1985-86 year which expires on August 1, 1986. Schlosnagle serves as Outreach Committee chairperson, and was elected last year at the spring convention.

Terlizzi, an Oakland resident, is serving her first year on the Governor's Youth Advisory Council. Her term is for the 1985-86 year but does not expire until August 1987. Terlizzi is a member of the Outreach Committee.

The Youth Advisory Council expresses the concerns of Maryland's youth to the governor. The Governor's Youth Advisory Council was originally created in 1971 by executive order. The structure of the Council has been changed by a new executive order which was signed and became effective July 1 of this year by Governor Harry Hughes.

By the new executive order the council is composed of 60 youth from around the state who serve as delegates, and are between the ages of 13 to 20, have not yet graduated from high school and are citizens and residents of Maryland during their term on the Council.

The day of orientation began in the House of Delegates office building beginning with registration and check in. A welcome speech was given by the Governor's Youth Advisory Council president, Paul Comfort. Featured speaker for the morning was Secretary of the State, Lorraine Sheehan whose topic was "Do Legislators Listen to Youth?"

The day continued with introduction of the GYAC Executive Committee, Committees consist of Outreach, Current Issues and Governmental Action and Issues Research and Governmental Action, of which each committee chairperson spoke on their goals for the coming year. After lunch, delegates took a tour of the State House and Legislative Buildings. Following closing remarks a reception was held in the House of Delegates office building.

GYAC DELEGATES — Spencer Schlosnagle and Shelli Terlizzi are this area's delegates to the Governor's Youth Advisory Council in Annapolis, and attended orientation for new and returning delegates in the state capital on September 14. The GYAC expresses the concerns of Maryland's youth to the governor, and was originally created in 1971. Both Schlosnagle and Terlizzi serve on the Outreach Committee.

Student Government held a meeting Tuesday, October 8, in the cafeteria. They are sponsoring a Halloween door decorating contest. Doors will be judged on October 22.

The second edition of the school newspaper, the "SMS Mumbler," went on sale Tuesday, October 8. The newspaper will be published every two weeks.

The school yearbook sales will begin October 21 and will continue through November 8. They will be on sale in the main lobby for a price of $10.00. An additional $3.00 will be required for a dustcover.

The next school dance, sponsored by the band, will be held October 17.

"Back to School Night," held October 1, was a great success. Approximately 400 parents were in attendance and were familiarized with the school, the teachers and the daily schedule.

School pictures were taken Tuesday, October 8.

Mrs. Joleen Scofield recently filled the vacancy made by Ms. Thoman in the Science Department. Mrs. Scofield graduated from Kansas State University with a B.S. degree in science. Prior to her position at SMS she was a cancer research technician and also served as a substitute teacher at Northern High School.

Mrs. Schofield lives with her husband and two sons in McHenry. She enjoys both water and snow skiing, as well as gardening and needlepoint.

The girls' physical education "Star of the Week" is Heather Collins. Heather is a seventh grade student and displays two trophies in the school's trophy case. One of these trophies was presented for being "most valuable player" on her softball team. Heather played left outfield and pitched. Her second trophy was awarded for her accomplishments in the Presidential Fitness Program where she achieved perfect scores in all categories.

Mrs. Newman recently accompanied her seventh grade science class for outdoor study at Camp Hickory. This three-day event includes: forest study, soil study, plant identification, etc. Several guest speakers shared information with the students.

The California Achievement Test will be administered this month. The purpose of the test is to measure each student's knowledge of the various subject areas and compare these results with other eighth grade students throughout the nation. The test results are also used by principals and teachers for placement purposes.

Dates for testing are: October 22, 23, 24, 29 and 30.

Parents are urged to try to make sure students are not absent on these dates.

Some helpful suggestions to the eighth graders are: get a good night's rest before each test day; eat breakfast each test day; and if you wear glasses for reading, be sure to bring them for testing.

Our featured teacher for the week is actually our new administrator. Mr. William Carlson assumed the position of vice principal when Mrs. Wilda Massi was appointed principal of Northern Middle School.

Mr. Carlson is a native of Pittsburgh. Prior to this position, he was employed by the Garrett County Board of Education as supervisor of pupil services.

Mr. Carlson is a graduate of Frostburg State College with a B.S. degree in psychology and English. He received a master's degree from West Virginia University in 1973.

Mr. Carlson resides with his wife and two children in Mt. Lake Park.

Fire Prevention Week Underway

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele, The State Fire Marshal's Office, and the Maryland State Firemen's Association have announced that Fire Prevention Week is being observed in Maryland this week, October 6-12. The theme for the statewide, as well as national observance, of Fire Prevention Week is "Fire Drills Save Lives".

"Fire drills are essential for fire safety in the home, in our schools, and at the workplace", according to Gabriele. "Fire drills and escape plans are very important if our citizens are to effectively learn fire safety behaviors which may save their lives or those of loved ones in a real fire emergency," Gabriele stated.

Fire Prevention Week is traditionally the full week - Sunday through Saturday - that includes the date of October 9. This date marks the anniversary of the "Great Chicago Fire of 1871" which killed 250 persons, destroyed 17,400 buildings and caused $168 million dollars in damages. As a result of this fire, National interest in fire prevention began to grow.

President Warren G. Harding proclaimed the first Fire Prevention Week in 1922 to be observed "by every man, woman and child, not only during the week, but throughout every hour of every day of the year."

Gabriele advises all Marylanders to make the most of Fire Prevention Week and to examine their home for fire traps and hazards. "This is an excellent time for people to clean up around the house, to identify potential fire hazards and to eliminate them as well as to develop an effective fire escape plan" Gabriele said. We strongly urge people to prepare an escape plan and to practice the escape plan through exit drills in home at school or at work."

In 1984 Maryland fire departments responded to 131,866 incidents across the state. More than $73,000,000 in property damage and 130 people were killed as a result in Maryland last year.

Columbus Day Message To Air

A special Columbus Day address will be heard over radio station WMSG on Saturday, October 12, at 1:05 p.m., according to an announcement by Henry Gregory, grand knight of Oakland, Knights of Columbus, No. 1771.

Gregory stated that the address would be delivered by Virgil C. Dechant, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus. The executive head of the approximately 1.4 million member Catholic, family, fraternal, service organization will speak on "The Spirit of Discovery."

In commenting on the program, Gregory said "493 years ago, Christopher Columbus completed one of the most daring and courageous exploratory sea voyages recorded in the annals of mankind - the discovery of the North American continent. Approximately 1.4 million men of the Western hemisphere, all Knights of Columbus members, join together this week in observing this anniversary of Columbus' epic voyage."

Child Safety Seats Must Be Used Properly

Maryland state health and police officials report both good news and bad news about the state's new Child Passenger Protection Law which went into effect January 1, 1984. The law requires safety seats for all children under age three, and safety seats or regular safety belts of all three and four-year-olds when they ride in cars.

"The good news", explained Larraine Bernstein-Cohen, of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Project KISS—Kids in Safety Seats," is that many more car safety seats are being used than ever before.

"The bad news, however, is that many parents, grandparents and other drivers have not followed the manufacturers' instructions regarding proper use of safety seats", she said. "Car safety seats will protect children only if they are used correctly and on every ride."

Ms. Bernstein-Cohen said there are several ways in which car safety seats are incorrectly used. First, seats for infants must always ride facing the rear of the car while safety seats for toddlers must always face forward.

Second, all car safety seats are secured into the automobile with the regular safety belt. If the car's safety belt is not fastened, the safety seat will not protect the child.

Third, all internal harness straps on the safety seat must be fastened to fit snugly over the child. If the seat has a shield, it must be in place for the seat to provide protection.

Fourth, if the seat has a tether strap, it must be used properly at all times for the seat to be safe. This means that a small hole must be drilled in the car's rear window shelf, or in the cargo area of station wagons or hatchbacks. The tether strap must be bolted into place in every car in which the seat is used.

For more information on proper use of car safety seats, or for a guide to the various types of car safety seats, persons may contact Project KISS at 300 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland, 21201; or at 301-225-1376.

Maryland Ranks Fourth In Births Out Of Wedlock

More than 8,900 babies were born to teenagers in Maryland in 1982 and 68 percent of these babies were born to unwed mothers. Maryland ranks fourth in percentage of out of wedlock births falling behind the District of Columbia, New Jersey and New York.

These are among the factors which prompted Governor Hughes to appoint a Task Force on Teen Pregnancy which has completed its final report. The 80-page report is a comprehensive overview of the extent of teen pregnancy in Maryland. "Our overarching goal is to reduce dramatically the incidence and the rate of teen pregnancy in Maryland," says John B. Slaughter, chancellor of the University of Maryland, College Park, who chaired the 17-member Task Force.

The Task Force's conclusions are stated in a series of recommendations aimed at reducing the incidence of teen pregnancy in Maryland and helping teen parents become self sufficient.

Through various means of gathering information, the Task Force concluded that the problem of teen pregnancy faces all socioeconomic groups and is not confined by race, religion or ethnicity and is clearly not a one-gender issue.

Having submitted the final report to the governor, Chancellor Slaughter said, "The Task Force is united in its belief that educational and employment opportunities and achievement are crucial factors in the prevention of teen pregnancy and in the support of parenting teens and their children."

Marla's mixed past; Kim ties the knot

By Kimberly Redmond

I think Marla Adams does a superb job as Dina Abbott Mergeron on "The Young and the Restless." What can you tell me about her career? — D.N., Mapleton, Minn.

Marla Adams

Miss Adams portrayed Belle on the defunct daytime soap "Secret Storm," and has appeared on numerous nighttime series, including "Hart to Hart," "Barnaby Jones," "Emergency," and "The Love Boat." On the stage, Miss Adams has appeared in productions of "I Do! I Do!," "Deathtrap," and "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." She was in the films "Splendor in the Grass" and "First Delivery."

Will "Days of Our Lives" ever bring back the character of Maggie Simmons Horton, the role that was portrayed by Suzanne Rogers? — M.A., Philadelphia, Pa.

Miss Rogers left the NBC soap one year ago when she became disappointed over her character's lack of story line. Nearly a month ago, after stating that she had suffered health problems, the actress returned to the soap.

I heard that Kim Delaney, who used to portray Jenny Gardner on "All My Children," has gotten married. Is this true? If it is, who's the lucky guy? — B.M., Charles Town, W. Va.

Miss Delaney married former "Edge of Night" star Charles Flohe, the actor who played Preacher Emerson. They met while doing a personal appearance for their respective soaps.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

Pierce Brosnan, the name alone drives me crazy! Val, what can you tell me about the hunky "Remington Steele" star? — C.L., Greenville, Texas.

Pierce Brosnan

The 33-year-old actor was born on May 16 in County Meath, Ireland. When he turned 11, his family moved to England. Three years ago, Brosnan moved to the United States to star as Remington Steele in the NBC series.

Brosnan studied acting at London's Drama Centre. He made his professional acting debut in a 1976 stage production of "Wait Until Dark." His first television appearance was in the 1979 British drama "Murphy's Stroke."

The actor has appeared in numerous British television shows, including the multi-part series "Nancy Astor," in which he played Robert Gould Shaw. Brosnan is married to actress Cassandra Harris. The couple live with their three children in Hollywood, Calif.

Please settle an argument. My mother insists Madeline Kahn starred in the series "Oh Madeline," but I say it was Gilda Radner. Who's right? The loser must cook an Italian meal! — S.B., Largo, Fla.

Get out the oregano, S.B., you lose! Miss Kahn was the star of "Oh Madeline," which ran on ABC from Sept. 1983-May 1984. By the way, I'll have baked ziti — with extra cheese.

Madeline Kahn

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

In an episode which was nominated for an Academy Award in 1984, Gwynne Dyer will take a look at profiles of professional soldiers, the career military officers in every country who devote their lives to maintaining military organizations and nurturing the attitudes that go with them. It airs Tuesday, Oct. 15 on PBS. (Check local listings.)

Miss Savidge relishes idea of playing nasty

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — Perhaps you haven't noticed, but St. Eligius, the fictional hospital that serves as the setting for "St. Elsewhere," has a declining nursing staff. It also has a declining female doctor staff. Perhaps you haven't noticed, but Jennifer Savidge has.

Jennifer Savidge

Miss Savidge, who has been portraying Nurse Lucy Papandreou since "St. Elsewhere" premiered in 1982, is one of the few surviving females on the NBC series. Most of the female regulars — actresses such as Cynthia Sikes and Kim Miyori — are gone. And they have not been replaced.

"I think the answer is," Miss Savidge says, "that it is much easier to write for men than for women. So the writers are taking the easy way out, and the result is that there aren't as many women now."

Yet, because Nurse Papandreou is such a nasty person, it is easier — and more fun — to write for Miss Savidge. "My character is usually in a rotten mood," explains the actress. "She invariably talks back to the doctors, and her only friend on the staff has been Nurse Helen Rosenthal (the character played by Christina Pickles), but now that friendship is over — our characters had a terrible fight."

Miss Savidge says that though her character was never "exactly sweet, she was bearable, and she had a good sense of humor." But the actress claims she twisted that sense of humor herself, "for the fun of it," and made it sardonic. That gave the "St. Elsewhere" writers some ideas, and they ultimately made Nurse Papandreou bitchy.

Miss Savidge is so good in her role that new staff writers have been amazed when they meet the actress. They had believed they were writing to mirror a real person, and expected Miss Savidge would be as bitchy as the character she portrays. "Before this," the actress says, "I generally played victims. So it's fun for me to be mean and nasty."

She thinks the fun of playing mean and nasty is to try and dig into her character's past and figure out what it was in her life that made her that way.

"The writers haven't started that digging process yet," she says. "But I've talked to them about it, and I imagine it will show up in a script. I've even told the story editor my idea of what Lucy's past was by coming up with an explanation for her nastiness."

After witnessing a rape committed by her brother-in-law, Anne Dunne (Valerie Bertinelli) is faced with the dilemma of testifying or remaining silent to protect her family, in "Silent Witness," airing Monday, Oct. 13 on NBC.

TUESDAY

Jack Palmer (Robert Mitchum) suddenly reappears without an explanation for his disappearance 30 years earlier and evokes different reactions and painful conflicts among his family, in "Promises to Keep." It airs on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," Tuesday, Oct. 15.

Valerie witnesses her growth in TV movie

By Marc Minnelli

No one's been a silent witness to Valerie Bertinelli's career. Ever since she began appearing, at age 14, on the 1974-75 CBS series, "Apple's Way," audiences have enthusiastically watched her grow. For nine years — from 1975 to 1984 — the actress starred on the CBS series "One Day at a Time," playing "bubbly, cutesy, Barbara Cooper."

Valerie Bertinelli

"Barbara's been good to me," Miss Bertinelli, 25, says. "And I've been lucky because she hasn't stood in my way. My career hasn't been hindered by other giggly roles."

Indeed. In 1980, Miss Bertinelli starred in "The Promise of Love," a story of a young bride whose life is shattered when her husband is killed in the war. Last year, she starred as a nun in love with a priest in a made-for-TV movie "Shattered Vows." In "Ordinary Heroes," the still unreleased remake of the 1945 "Pride of the Marines," Miss Bertinelli stars (with "MacGyver" star Richard Dean Anderson) as a woman whose life is made tumultuous by the Vietnam War. And in "Silent Witness," the actress plays Anne Dunne, a woman who witnesses a rape committed by her brother-in-law. The made-for-TV movie, co-starring John Savage, airs Monday, Oct. 14 on NBC.

"Most of the things sent to me are pretty bland," Miss Bertinelli admits, "but when I got the 'Silent Witness' script, I couldn't stop turning the pages. I feel it's an important, urgent story to tell. Especially in the light of alleged rape victim Cathleen Crowell Webb. 'Silent Witness' isn't based on her story," Miss Bertinelli adds, "but the message is clear enough. A person must tell the truth despite any hurt he or she may feel."

Miss Bertinelli admits that filming "Silent Witness" made her uncomfortable. "We shot the film for six weeks in Pittsburgh and after every day of filming, I'd go back to my hotel room and stare at the wall." The actress offers a tired giggle. "People may think I'm making fun of Pittsburgh — they may think there's really nothing to do there — but I sat and I stared because I was so drained from filming. The thought of rape... being raped... witnessing a rape... is frightening." The actress pauses, paraphrasing the reporter's query. "'What would I do if I was raped?' I take preventive measures," the actress says, "but you never really know if it will happen to you." Miss Bertinelli shudders. "Oh, my God! The thought of rape shatters me. It's a crime so devastating, that I pray I never have to experience it."

Joan Collins finds a home video dynasty

By Frank Lovece

First she acted. Then she produced. Now Joan Collins, star of "Dynasty" and star and producer of the upcoming CBS miniseries "Sins," has turned to narration. The actress is making her entry into the world of videos with "The Joan Collins Video Selection," a series of $59.95 home videos in which Miss Collins introduces "classic" films.

Joan Collins

"I'm choosing the films," the actress explains, "and writing about them (for package copy). I'm doing everything but starring in them." The actress even got to choose what she wears on the covers of each film package: a pink dress created by "Dynasty" designer Nolan Miller.

If the actress's first three choices — "The Carpetbaggers," based on Harold Robbins' novel; Jacqueline Susann's Once Is Not Enough" and Harold Pinter's adaptation of F. Scott Fitgerald's "The Last Tycoon" — are any indication, "The Joan Collins Video Selection" promises to be an exercise in high camp. Coming up next: "Alfie," the 1966 film which earned Michael Caine his first Oscar nomination. Future films will be released approximately once every three months.

How did Miss Collins choose her selections? Darts, perhaps?

She erupts into laughter at the thought. "Darts! Heavens no. I talked to the video companies about the sort of films I wanted, the kind of stars and time period I liked, and they brought me a selection of 50 films. I chose 15. I didn't screen them all, but strangely enough, I'd seen them all with the exception of two."

As a youngster, Miss Collins confides "I used to be a big movie goer. I saw everything — I'd go two, four, five times a week to the movies — but now, I'm afraid I don't get out very often. Just synchronizing my schedule to go to the movies is tough. Now, however, I'm a big video watcher."

And she watches a little of everything. What she wants us to watch are movies close in style to "Dynasty" — steamy, but not sweaty. "There's no gratuitous violence or things that degrade women," says the actress about her collection. "There are love scenes, but they're not over-the-top, they're soft-core."

It's a good thing then that Joan's own over-the-top videos, "The Stud" and "The Bitch" (both are based on sister Jackie's novels), are already on video. They may be musts for any Joan Collins collection, but they're not the stuff that makes it to "The Joan Collins Selection."

Landon's hair care; Conway's new flick

By Cindy Adams

Michael Landon has a secret formula for keeping his hair thick and slick: a mixture of plums, peaches, bananas and avocados. He throws them into a blender and mixes the gook into his scalp. I guess whatever's left over he has for lunch.

Michael Landon

Elaine Crispin, Nancy Reagan's personal secretary, is moving upward. Or sideward. She'll be Mrs. R's new press secretary — the old one's pulling out. Jim Rosebush, Nancy's chief of staff, will assume Elaine's old duties until Jane Erkenbeck takes the job.

At the White House, this is known as "musical offices."

Stefanie Powers has collaborated with Oscar-winning screenwriter Edward Anhalt on the CBS movie "Mixed Doubles." It's a spy story that's been taken from an idea by Stef.... "The Thorn Birds" paid off for author Colleen McCullough. She's selling her Connecticut home, complete with an indoor pool and 72-foot living room. The price? A mere $1,250,000. ... Alan Jay Lerner picked unknown actress Amanda Waring for Leslie Caron's role in the "Gigi" revival. Thank heaven for little girls.

Tim Conway, Carol Burnett's former TV sidekick, has written Orion's big holiday film, "Longshot." Naturally, he wrote himself into it ... along with Harvey Korman, Jack Weston and Jonathan Winters playing losers. Winner Mike Nicholas is the producer.

Tim Conway

An early Christmas present for 80-year-old film director Vincente Minnelli. MGM renamed Stage 29 — the lot on which Liza's dad filmed such classics as "Meet Me in St. Louis" (with Liza's mom Judy Garland) and "An American in Paris" — the Vincente Minnelli Stage. Well deserved!

Hectic career keeps Anne Simon in shape

By Renee Ross

Unlike most of us who sweat on the tennis court or in an occasional exercise class, Anne Simon lives sports 'round the clock — and loves it.

Anne Simon

As sports correspondent for "Entertainment Tonight," she brings her own love of athletics to interviews with famous sports figures. "I'm very active and exercise a lot," says Miss Simon, 33. "It would be very difficult to do this job if I wasn't interested in athletics."

Since her schedule keeps her constantly on the go, she has learned to incorporate tone-up exercise into her non-stop lifestyle. "Last week, I flew from New York to Mexico, then to Los Angeles, back to New York, then to Canada and back to New York," Miss Simon says. "Sitting on planes is certainly not conducive to exercise, so I try to double my workouts when I get back home."

"I'm lucky I live in Manhattan because I walk everywhere," she adds. "I walk miles every day. It helps keep me in shape and is faster and certainly less expensive than taking a cab in midtown traffic.

"I'm not obsessed, but it's good to get out and exercise. I work out aerobically and lift weights; it keeps me in good condition." When she's not reporting the world of touchdown and tennis stars, Miss Simon also enjoys activities ranging from golf to skiing.

The former ABC sports commentator says she now feels comfortable as a female in the male-dominated sports world. "When I first started out, there were few — if any — women in sports broadcasting. That's changing, and so is the whole face of TV sports," explains Miss Simon.

"Athletes really are entertainers," says Miss Simon, recalling an interview in which Canadian hockey superstar Wayne Gretsky explained why the distinction between athletics and performing is blurring. "Wayne said 'When I get out there on the ice, I feel like I'm center stage. People spend a lot of money to see our team play, and I'm out there entertaining them and giving them the best possible performance I can.'"

This merging of sports identities adds interest to her new "E.T." position. "To my knowledge, the sports segment I'm doing for the show is the first time audiences are being offered upclose, personal looks at sports celebrities and not just scores. I think it will entice the male viewers to turn on the show, as well as encourage more women to become interested in sports. It's a great way to educate and entertain people."

FAMILY CORNER

by Jane E. Gibson
Extension Agent, Home Economics

FIRE SAFETY IS YEARLONG JOB

The smell of burning leaves is a familiar sign that autumn is here. It should also be a good reminder that open fires should be handled with caution. If not watched carefully, a pile of burning leaves could prove disastrous.

Fire hazards are not exclusive to seasons. Whether it's a brushfire or a fire caused by a kerosene heater, the danger is the same throughout the year.

Be aware of all potential fire hazards and be prepared. Here are a few guidelines for practicing fire safety all year long:

*Fire can strike suddenly at any time of the day or night, so both parents and children should be ready to act. Why not make a family fire drill a monthly routine, so that everyone is prepared?

—Appoint a family fire chief.

—Plan two escape routes to the outside from each room.

—Agree on a meeting place safely away from the house. Here you can count noses to make sure no one has been left behind.

—Make sure emergency routes are practical and safe.

—Time all fire drills and review procedures with family members.

*Install smoke detectors in the bedrooms, kitchen and furnace room.

*Purchase a commercial fire extinguisher and place it in or near the kitchen.

*Place telephone numbers for the fire department, ambulance, police department and family doctor on or close to all telephones.

*Put a fireplace screen in front of the fireplace to keep sparks from flying and to keep burning logs in place.

*Keep baking soda within reach of your range in the kitchen to extinguish small electrical or grease fires.

REMEMBER: If you are unable to control a fire, or have any doubts, call the fire department or "911" immediately!

FOOD NOTES

An unusual dessert idea is the following recipe which contains relatively little added sugar. If it is to be used as a snack or lunch box item, leave the meringue off, substitute additional nuts, cheese and possibly a few sprinkles of brown sugar, and return to the oven (at 350° F.) for about 20 minutes more. This recipe was tested in the Maryland Department of Agriculture test kitchen by Marilyn Latham.

MARYLAND APPLE MERINGUE PIZZA

Filling: Pare and thinly slice 4 medium or large apples (about 4 cups sliced apples) and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Set aside 1 cup shredded Cheddar Cheese.

CRUMB CRUST

1½ cups all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup quick cooking oats
¼ cup chopped walnuts
½ cups shortening
4-5 tablespoons water

In a medium sized bowl, mix flour, salt, oats and walnuts. Cut in shortening until particles are the size of small peas. Sprinkle water over dough and mix with fork until moist enough to form a loose ball. Pat or roll out on floured baking sheet to 13 inch circle or 13x10 inch rectangle. Sprinkle cheese and distribute sliced apples on crust to within one inch of edge. Turn edge up to form raised border and cover with foil. Bake in preheated 450° F. oven for 20 minutes. Remove from oven to rack, reset oven to 350° F.

TOPPING

¼ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 egg whites

Combine dry ingredients. Beat egg whites in medium bowl until soft peaks form. Add dry ingredients and beat until thick and glossy. Spread on pizza. Return to oven for 20 more minutes, until meringue is lightly browned. Serve as dessert or snack.

EXTENSION HAPPENINGS

"Food and Your Mood" will be the topic of a program to be presented on October 17, 1985 at 7 p.m. at the Extension Office in Oakland. The program will be presented by Dr. Tamara Vega, Health, Food and Nutrition Specialist for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. All interested persons are invited to attend. For more information, call 334-2145.

The fall Homemakers County Council meeting will be held on October 21, 1985 in Room 010 at Garrett Community College in McHenry. The executive board will meet at 11 a.m. and the council will meet at 1 p.m. All interested Homemakers are invited to attend.

Yough Mt. Resort Property Owners Plan Meeting, Social

The Youghiogheny Mountain Lake Property Owners Association wishes to invite anyone who is a property owner in the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort to attend a meeting at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, October 12, at the resort clubhouse. This will be the last meeting of the year, and the officers want to acquaint all property owners with the progress made in the lawsuit against the development owners, Piney Mountain Corporation.

According to Lucille Monar, vice president of the association, individual property owners have not had the use of the clubhouse or the swimming pool for the past two years and roads in the resort have not been maintained, or the security gate been in use. The association feels that the developers, Piney Mountain Corporation, have a responsibility to provide these services and amenities for lot purchasers.

Association officers say they have had a good response to an open letter recently sent to all property owners, but since membership in the association is voluntary, not all property owners attend meetings.

The last social event of the year will follow the meeting and feature a kielbasa and wieners with sauerkraut cookout and a hayride. Those attending who are not members of the association will be asked to pay $1 for the social.

JWCC Plans October And November Events

The Junior Woman's Civic Club met on October 3 at St. Paul's Methodist Church with the highlight of the evening being a scavenger hunt. Winners of the hunt were: Glenda Newcomb, Debbie Friend, Linda Severe and Kim Greene.

"Harvest of Fashions", sponsored by the JWCC and APA will be held on October 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Southern High School's cafeteria. A special guest, Jennifer Charlton, Miss Maryland, will model various evening gowns. Rehearsals are scheduled for October 14, 15, and 16 from 7 to 9 p.m. All members are also asked to be present on Saturday morning, October 19, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for decorating.

The club has scheduled a hoagie sale for October 28. On November 3 from 1 to 5 p.m. the club will be collecting for the March of Dimes in Oakland.

The next meeting is scheduled for Sunday, November 10. It will be a shopping trip to Century III Mall. Members and their guests interested in attending should contact Mary Lynn Bosley.

Stemple Receives Safety Award

The Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service recently named Robert W. Stemple of White Church as "Safe Employee of the Month" at its Herrington Manor State Park facility. Stemple's selection was based on his persistence in use of safety devices, his positive attitude toward the promotion of safe work habits among co-workers and his leadership in providing a safe environment for co-workers and park visitors. This is the second time within two years that Stemple has received recognition for his safe workmanship.

Stemple resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stemple, along White Church Road. In addition to his employment at Herrington Manor State Park, he is a member of the Maryland National Guard, Company C 121st Engineer Battalion, Oakland.

Sines noted the appreciation of his agency for the many Oakland area businesses, civic and veteran organizations that have contributed to the safety incentive awards program at Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Parks and Potomac-Garrett State Forests.

Friendsville UM Church Slates Harvest Dinner

A Harvest Dinner will be held Saturday, October 19, from 5 to 8 p.m. in the Friendsville United Methodist social room.

Golden Chain Plans Halloween Party

The Golden Chain Club will have a Halloween party, October 22, at 1 p.m. at the social center in St. Peter's Catholic Church.

A short business meeting will also be held.

Mathias Supports Literacy Bill

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., (R-Md.) said recently he is cosponsoring a bill to establish pilot reading and writing programs for low or non-literate parents of children attending schools in economically disadvantaged areas.

"Projects funded under this act will combat illiteracy when it begins, and benefit not only adult illiterates, but their children as well," said Mathias.

Dubbed the Even Start Act, the bill is designed especially for areas where high rates of illiteracy and unemployment breed further illiteracy and unemployment. The objective of the bill is to break that cycle so that parents can help their children as they go through the education process. The program is designed for parents of children between the ages of four and eight.

To qualify, schools systems must coordinate their programs with other social service programs such as Head Start, or Chapter 1 (formerly Title 1), established in 1965 to allow economically disadvantaged children to attend pre-school.

The bill would designate the first $5 million of the $500 million already authorized by the Educational Consolidation and Improvement Act (also known as the Chapter 2 block grant program).

TWIN TROOPERS HONORED — Tfc. Randall J. Resh, left, and Tfc. Randy C. Resh, right, both of the McHenry detachment, were honored recently during the annual inspection at the Maryland State Police barrack, LaVale. R.J. Resh was named Criminal Investigation Trooper of the Year, and R.C. Resh was named Garrett County Trooper of the Year.

PSI Ordered For Grantsville Man

In Garrett County District Court proceedings on October 1, Judge Jack Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation for William T. Wright, 18, of the Meadow Mountain Youth Center, Grantsville.

The judge found Wright to be guilty of a charge of malicious destruction of property which was filed by Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell after a July 27 incident.

According to court documents, Wright and a juvenile punctured the tires and caused extensive damage to the electrical system of a Ford 5000 diesel tractor, the property of Allegheny Welding, Inc.

The judge also found Wright to be guilty of charges of breaking and stealing, theft, and malicious destruction of property filed by Tichnell after a separate incident on the same date.

According to court records, Wright and the juvenile broke into a cabin belonging to George, David, and Walter Scheffel. Stolen items included a first aid kit, two large butcher knives, a pair of pliers, and a digital wrist watch, a total value of $92. Damage to locks, windows, and frames totaled $460. Floors and mattresses in the cabin were also damaged by whiskey and wine, which was poured over them. Total losses from the alcohol reached $75.

A charge of escape from confinement filed by Tfc. R.M. Hershberger of the Maryland State Police was not prosecuted in exchange for pleas of guilty on the other charges.

Wright was represented by John R. Toston, Public Defender.

In other court cases, the judge found Donna I. Schramm, 19, Oakland, to be guilty of a charge of alcoholic beverage intoxication filed by Cpl. Ronald E. Beeghly of the Oakland City Police Department on August 22.

Schramm was granted probation before judgment, fined $25, and placed on 60 days unsupervised probation.

Ernest Martin, Oakland, was found not guilty of a charge of operating and maintaining a junkyard subsequent to revocation of a Garrett County junkyard license.

According to court documents, Martin's license for his junkyard on Route 219 South was indeed revoked on April 11, but the judge could find no evidence that he received a copy of the notice of revocation.

The charge was filed by John E. Nelson of the Oakland Zoning Administration.

A charge of alcholic beverage intoxication against Eddit T. War, 31, Mtn. Lake Park, was placed on the stet docket.

The charge was filed by Deputy Larry E. Gnegy following a September 6 incident in Oakland.

Also placed on the stet docket was a bad check charge against Geoffrey L. Miller, 28, Baltimore.

The charge was filed by Robert Huebner, president of the Echo Marina, Inc., Swanton, following a June 29 incident.

Charges of battery and malicious destruction of property filed against Harold E. Dillsworth, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, were placed on the stet docket.

Sheila Dillsworth, also of Mtn. Lake Park, filed the charge after an August 29 incident.

Also placed on the stet docket was a charge of battery filed against Robert R. McRobie, 26, Oakland, after a September 9 incident. McRobie will receive alcoholic counseling from the Garrett County Health Department.

Gladys M. Pifer filed the charge. McRobie was represented by Henry R. Adams, Public Defender.

A disturbance of the peace charge against B.J. Whistler's, Glendale Road, was also placed on the stet docket.

The charge was filed by James Wilburn, Deep Creek State Park assistant supervisor following an August 16 incident at the bar. The defense attorney was Thomas R. Janes, Oakland.

Also placed on the stet docket was a charge of assault filed by Alysia E. Corby, Oakland, against Randy Waybright, 30, also of Oakland.

A charge of illegal possession of a prescription drug against Andy T. Swisher, 26, Fairmont, W.Va., was not prosecuted by the court.

According to court documents, the crime lab failed to furnish analysis for the drug, and the case had already been postponed six times. The charge was not prosecuted due to insufficient evidence and violation of the right to a speedy trial.

Cpl. Michael R. Mattingly of the Maryland State Police filed the charge in February. Swisher was represented by John R. Toston, Public Defender.

A charge of assault filed by Ronald P. Buckingham, Mtn. Lake Park, against James Murray, Oakland, was not prosecuted by the court due to insufficient proof of charge.

The charge was filed after a July 28 incident. Murray was represented by Thomas R. Janes, an Oakland attorney.

WASHINGTON COMES TO FROSTBURG — U.S. Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron from Maryland and U.S. Congressman Alan B. Mollohan from West Virginia held a subcommittee hearing on "The Problems Facing Small and Medium Size Coal Operators" in Frostburg on Saturday, September 28. The hearing was well attended by approximately 50 state and local officials, coal industry representatives, and interested citizens.

Coal Problems Highlight U.S. Congressional Hearing Sept. 28

The United States House of Representatives Subcommittee on Mining and Natural Resources held a hearing Saturday, September 28, at Frostburg State College to examine the nature and scope of the problems facing small and medium size coal operators in the region.

Representative Alan Mollohan (D-W.Va.) filled in for Subcommittee Chairman Nick Rayhall (D-W.Va.) and welcomed the witnesses and audience noting Representative Beverly B. Byron's (D-Md.) work on the Interior Committee and said, "Beverly Byron makes a strong contribution in her work as a member. She is particularly knowledgeable about coal issues, and she was instrumental in bringing this hearing to Frostburg."

State Senator John Bambacus (R-Garrett/Allegany) added to Congressman Mollohan's remarks saying, "We gratefully acknowledge your responsiveness and initiative in coming directly to the coal fields to find out what's going on."

Opening the hearing Mollohan stated, "The information we receive from this hearing will assist this subcommittee in formulating policies to preserve the independent sector of the coal industry. It is my philosophy, and one shared by the subcommittee chairman, that the independent coal producer is essential to maintaining a competitive U.S. coal industry."

Sen. Bambacus and Delegates Casper Taylor (D-Allegany/Wash.) and George Edwards (R-Garrett/Allegany) along with Garrett County Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II comprised the first panel of witnesses and were unanimous in their feelings that state and federal regulations were adding to the cost of domestic coal resulting in a U.S. coal market vulnerable to foreign competition.

Bambacus said, "Something is wrong when other nations can ship coal to the U.S. and sell it here cheaper than domestic companies can produce it."

Commissioner Groves reiterated the sentiment in reference to Maryland coal operators dependency on rail transportation, "It is difficult for me to understand why it's more expensive to get coal from Garrett County to the Port of Baltimore than to ship coal from Baltimore to Europe."

The panel members agreed that regulation has led to model health, environmental, and safety programs for the coal industry, but other areas such as securing of permits and duplicate on-site visits by federal and state officials place an unnecessary and prohibitive financial burden on all but the largest operators.

A report, in detail, of comments made by the members of Panel I along with the testimony of John Carey, president of the Maryland Coal Association, was included in last week's edition of The Republican. The following is the continued report of the September 28 subcommittee hearing beginning with those speaking in Panel II for the coal industry, Alfred E. Whitehouse, environmental engineer for Buffalo Coal; Blucher Allison, of the Mettiki Coal Corporation; and Lawrence Streets, vice president of operations at Allegheny Mining in Mount Storm, W.Va.

Whitehouse gave a technical explanation of some current coal technology. He also questioned the stability of the Office of Surface Mining. According to Whitehouse, remining is a matter of survival in the state and he recommended lifting the ban on steep slope mining. A bill to that effect was vetoed by Governor Harry Hughes after passing through the General Assembly last session.

He described the concept of "man-made bogs", and noted that there are many small wetlands being built throughout Appalachia. Not all of these bogs are successful, and he feels one reason is that no money has been allocated for follow-up scientific studies to see why one bog works and another doesn't. "The government will spend seed money to get them started," he said, "but no one is trying to keep track of why some fail."

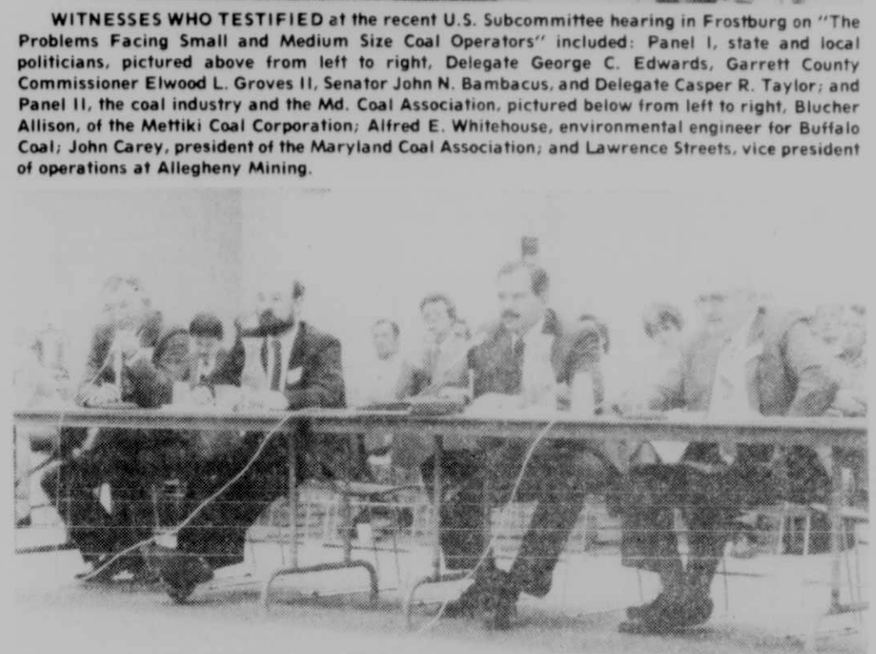
Streets talked of the benefit of remining gob piles. He said that six operators who processed gob piles have gone out of business since the 1977 Surface Mining Act. He said that prior to the federal act, 45,000 tons of coal per month were produced from gob piles. "Gob pile removal is a short term operation with long term effects," he said.

Testimony was also presented by Allison, and among his remarks, he stated, "In most cases, the environmental regulations for coal mining in the state of Maryland exceeds federal standards for coal mining and exceeds standards for other industries in the state. With these types of regulations and the vast amount of agencies involved, it seems senseless to continue OSM oversight inspections in the state of Maryland.

"The whole program appears to be nothing more than a regulatory agency regulating a regulatory agency. Cost effective it is not. These federal dollars could be used for research, reclaiming abandoned mines which is where the environmental problems exist rather than current mine sites, or perhaps to help pay off the national debt," he said.

Panel three consisted of Anthony Abar, director of the Maryland Bureau of Mines, accompanied by Jeffrey McCombs, and John N. Murphy, director of the Pittsburgh Research Center Bureau of Mines, U.S. Department of Interior.

Murphy presented a slide presentation during his testimony and provided technical information concerning the industry.



Abar touched upon several issues of interest to the subcommittee, including acid mine drainage and the regulatory environment of coal mining. In his summary, Abar recommended the subcomittee continue their interest in the Office of Surface Mining's efforts with regard to a plan for abatement of abandoned mine drainage in the North Branch of the Potomac River; support research on methods of abating acid mine drainage, and make changes in the federal SMCRA which would benefit all interests, residents of coal mining regions, the environment, the mining industry, and mining regulatory agencies.

Lois Crossland, a Georges Creek resident, asked to testify and expressed a concern that the "citizen" was being overlooked during the hearing. Crossland stated her feelings that coal is not the only industry in the area and should not be over emphasized.

Additional comments were received from attorney Donald Goldbloom, who represented environmental issues; and Jim Ross, a resident of the Youghiogheny River area, who expressed concern that the environment must be protected.

Del. Timothy Finan, who had declined the offer to be a panelist in order to allow others time to testify, summed up some of the comments made earlier in the hearing.

The last testimony to be given before the hearing was adjourned was by Roger Brashear, a small coal operator, who said the presence of Westvaco Corporation in the county shows there is great confidence in the coal supply of Western Maryland being ample.

Brashear expressed disappointment that no Allegany County commissioner had testified, and said, "If we had the same fighting spirit from the Allegany County commissioners as the Garrett County commissioners have, we wouldn't have anything to worry about."

In discussions with the coal industry representatives and state and local officials after the hearing, the comments were all similar, "It was very successful, well attended, and we were satisfied with what took place," is what one representative said. "The hearing gave a very balanced picture," said Commissioner Elwood Groves.

John Carey of the Maryland Coal Association said, "I'm not sure what was accomplished, but I hope they lean toward possible changes. The federal program is strangling small operators with increased costs, increased permit fees, and increased red tape. Reopening the federal law for changes has been discussed, but it hasn't been done."

Sen. John Bambacus said that the hearing was certainly productive. "It was nice to have Washington come to Frostburg," he said. "We must tell them to enhance the competitiveness of Western Maryland coal on the world market, and to provide incentives to bring new industry in. Maryland has a single-minded purpose—regulations. They have no intention of trying to enhance production."

Del. George Edwards felt that it was good that the subcommittee listened to the people who have to deal with the magnitude of regulations and gave them an opportunity to express their thoughts. "It was a wide mix of people, a diversity of groups, and a very open discussion," he said.

No matter how good your homeowner's policy was when you bought it, it may be out of date today. It's smart to review your coverage every two years.

Automatic escalation clauses are helpful in keeping up with inflation, but they may not reflect actual values in your location. Consider an independent appraisal of what it would cost to rebuild today.

Liability coverage probably needs upgrading, in light of the large awards that juries are granting these days. It's not expensive to increase your limits, especially with an umbrella policy.

Have you bought a lot of things since you moved into your house? Most people do. Is your personal property coverage adequate to cover it all?

Coverage on valuables such as silver, furs and jewelry is strictly limited on household policies. A personal articles floater may be a good idea for you.

Nationally Known Evangelist To Speak In Area

Harold S. Leake, nationally known evangelist from North Carolina, will be preaching and singing nightly at 7:30, from October 20 through 25, at the Victory Independent Baptist Church located on Route 42, Elder Hill, near Friendsville.

As a song writer, Leake's most notable work is "Excuses," a song which held the number one spot on the national gospel charts for 12 months. Presentation of original songs, accompanied by his self-styled guitar work, will be featured before the message each evening.

The evangelist entered into the ministry as a teenager and his early ministries were in jails, tents, rest homes and on the street. He was also occupied with the church related responsibilities of youth director in Sunday School and choir ministries.

Serving as pastor for nearly 10 years in a growing Missionary Baptist Church in central North Carolina, his success was marked by extension ministries to a home for underprivileged children, good neighbor rescue mission, church chapel and camp meeting ministries. Also during this time, he conducted radio broadcasts over a number of stations reaching into many states from coast to coast.

For more than 17 years evangelist Leake has given his full time to local church revival ministries, serving in more than 500 churches in 25 states from Michagan to Florida.

As a recording artist, he projects Bible truths nation wide through the outreach of recordings, eight-track tapes and cassettes by mail and on countless radio stations where the numerous record albums of the evangelist and Mrs. Leake are played regularly. He is assisted in many meetings by his wife, Brenda, who is a singer, ventriloquist and teacher.

The pastor of Victory Independent Baptist Church, Rev. Bob Brenneman, extends an invitation to all to attend the services.

Rev. Sisler To Lead Services At Loch Lynn Church

Rev. David Sisler will be be the speaker for revival services October 13-16 at the Loch Lynn Evangelical Free Church (formerly the United Brethren Church). Rev. Sisler, a native of Garrett County, will be preaching Sunday at 11 a.m. and each night at 7:30 p.m.

At age 16, Rev. Sisler was licensed by this Loch Lynn Church. In 1969 he joined the Church of God (Cleveland Tenn.), and was ordained in 1978. He has pastored churches in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Connecticut, and South Carolina.

Rev. Sisler is a graduate of Frostburg State college, as is his wife, Bonnie (nee Carter). Mrs. Sisler is currently teaching mathematics at Parker High School, Greenville, S.C. They are the parents of four children.

Rev. Sisler is the son of Melvin and Elizabeth Sisler, Loch Lynn.

Rev. Russell Hamilton, pastor, invites all to attend these revival services.

Bus Inspection Schedule Noted

Savage River Forest Timber Sales Record High During Fiscal '85

Savage River State Forest set an all-time high in timber sale revenue during the 1985 State fiscal year, which runs from July 1 of 1984 to June 30, 1985. This was primarily due to an excellent market for high grade red and white oak sawtimber and veneer, according to the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service. This market resulted in stumpage values that averaged nearly double those of the previous year.

During the year, just over three million board feet of sawtimber, 1,000 cords firewood, and 4,000 cords of pulpwood were sold for a record revenue of just over $540,000 from 714 acres of the forest. Garrett County government receives 25% of these revenues in lieu of property taxes, as well as 25% of all other revenues taken in by the state forests and state parks of Garrett County. All sales estimated to have a value of $200 or more are sold to local registered forest product operators and individuals directly as needed for forest management. This provides additional local revenue, taxes, and employment.

At present, Savage River employees 11 fulltime classified employees, and eight seasonal employees to maintain, manage and protect the 53,000 acres of forest resources under its control.

The seasonal employees are now in the process of conducting a new forest resource inventory, which will hopefully show that the forest can support even higher annual cuts in the near future. If market values remain constant or increase, additional increases in annual forest revenue can be expected, the service said. However, current stumpage values have declined significantly to level of what they were in 1984. For nine out of the last 10 years, annual forest revenues have exceeded annual operating costs.

Besides timber revenue and local employment the forest also provides many other services and benefits. Field estimates show that over 100,000 visitors came to Savage River during 1985 for various recreatioanl activities. Sightseeing, hunting, fishing, primitive camping, and ORV use being the leading visitor categories. The forest is also an excellent watershed for both the Potomac and Youghiogheny River systems and provides high quality water for use by many surrounding towns, cities, and industries. Record deer and turkey harvests by hunters also occurred in 1985 and the forest provides home and habitat for many wildlife species. The forest also provides many other environmental, economic, and social benefits including the scenic mountain beauty of the fall autumn season.

The forest is managed under the concept of "multiple use" and sustained yield. Under this concept all the resources of the forest are maintained, managed and were possibly enhanced for the benefit of the people who use and enjoy them, a Forest Service spokesman said.

Gov. Hughes Appoints Commission On Excellence In Higher Education

Governor Harry Hughes has announced the appointment of a Commission on Excellence in Higher Education and appointed Alan P. Hoblitzell Jr., a prominent Baltimore banker, as its chairman.

The commission was created under a joint resolution of the General Assembly for the purpose of maintaining and enhancing the quality of higher education offered by public and private Maryland institutions in the face of inflation and proposed reduction of federal aid.

The resolution was introduced in the General Assembly by Senator John N. Bambacus, who represents Garrett and Allegany counties.

Besides Hoblitzell, who is board chairman and chief executive officer of Maryland National Corporation and Maryland National Bank, the commission includes the following persons: John F. Dealy, former president of Fairchild Industries and now chairman of the governor's ad hoc committee on high technology; George L. Bunting, president of Noxell Corporation; Ms. Ernie Honig-Kent, director of legislative services for the Maryland Chamber of Commerce; Edward H. Nabb, attorney, of Cambridge; Lisle C. Carter Jr., Washington attorney and former president of the University of the District of Columbia; and James A. Flick Jr., managing partner of Ernst and Whinney.

Also serving on the commission will be State Senate President Melvin A. Steinberg, House Speaker Benjamin L. Cardin, Senator Arthur Dorman (D-Prince George's Co.), Delegate Nancy K. Kopp (D-Montgomery Co.), and Charles S. Steiner of Cumberland.

Responsible for introducing the resolution, along with Sen. Bambacus, were Speaker Cardin, Del. Kopp, Sen. F. Vernon Boozer, and Sen. John W. Derr.

The resolution requests that the commission submit to Gov. Hughes and the General Assembly its findings on questions including funding for, cooperation among, and accountability of colleges and universities supported by the state.

It suggests that current levels and distribution of state support may no longer be appropriate "in an era of stable or declining enrollment and may not provide sufficiently for changes in types of programs required in our new technological era."

The commission is scheduled to prepare an interim report by November 18, and a final report by July 1, 1986.
